U. S. MOVES TO SEIZE RAILS

FLYERS SIGHT 20 JAP SHIPS IN MARSHALLS

Army-Navy Planes Bomb Islands.

PEARL HARBOR, Dec. 23 (AP).—Army and navy bombers teamed up in a two point raid on Japanese positions in the Marshall Islands and reported sighting 20 enemy vessels, possibly bearing men and materials for a showdown fight to retain this threatened Japanese stronghold. The ships were discovered in the lagoon of Kwajalein atoll.

The raids, announced today by Adm. Chester W. Nimitz, carried the sustained American air offensive against the mid-Pacific Marshalls into the 14th straight day. The new attacks were made Monday on Emidj Islet in the Jaluit atoll and the following day on Kwajalein atoll.

Jap Fighters Attack.

Nine Japanese fighters attempted to intercept the bombers over Kwajalein, where the enemy has an excellent air field on Roi Islet, at the northern end of the atoll. None of the bombers was damaged, however. There was no mention in the Nimitz press release of action against enemy shipping spotted in the lagoon.

Enemy installations on Emidj islet were bombed and strafed by a force of navy Hellcat fighters and army and navy Dauntless light bombers. A medium cargo ship and a small vessel in the lagoon were damaged in the midday attack. Heavy anti-aircraft fire was encountered and one American plane lost. Jaluit has a good harbor and seaplane base and also facilities for servicing submarines.

Adm. Nimitz also reported another nuisance raid against Tarawa in the Gilberts by two high flying enemy planes. One American plane on the ground was damaged slightly by bombs from great altitude.

Rain Bombs on Gloucester.

ADVANCED ALLIED HDQ., New Guinea, Dec. 24 [Friday] (AP).—Allied Liberator heavy bombers have dropped 153 more tons of bombs on oft-battered Cape Gloucester, key Japanese airdrome and supply base on the western end of New Britain Island.

This latest raid of a succession which have hammered the area with around 2,200 tons of explosives since Dec. 1, was staged Wednesday, setting fires which were visible 40 miles away.

Gen. MacArthur's bulletin today reporting the raid also said that the Japanese had attacked again thru the air at Arawe, New Britain, where American troops were consolidating invasion positions, dropping 150 bombs which caused only little damage. The attack was Thursday night, two days after another aerial assault which cost the enemy 16 planes.

Strike at Wewak.

Low flying Mitchell medium bombers had a field day in a Wednesday assault on the Japanese airdrome and shipping at Wewak, on the northeast coast of New Guinea.

The bombers scored two direct hits on each of two 6,000 ton transports and a 3,000 ton freighter. Lightning fighter planes flying as escort peeled off into 30 enemy interceptors, knocking down 14 and probably destroying two more. Two of our fighters were shot down and one of the Mitchells was badly damaged in the battle which was furiously fought over land and sea.

Vital to Japs.

A headquarters spokesman said the enemy air strength at Wewak and Rabaul, the air and sea base on the northeast coast of New Britain, is now less than it was several months ago.

Both of these bases are vital to Japan's defenses in the Southwest and South Pacific. Rabaul, additionally threatened by the American landing at Arawe and the allies' increasing strength at Empress Augusta bay on Bougainville Island, in the Solomons, has been described by the Tokio radio as a place that the Japanese must hold.

A delayed dispatch, telling how American destroyers had bombarded the northeastern shoreline of Bougainville on Dec. 20, reported that Lt. Byron [Whizzer] White, former all-American football star, had taken part.

WOMAN SMILES AMID GUNFIRE; CITED BY army

BY JOHN THOMPSON.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

ALLIED HDQ., Algiers, Dec. 23.—A smiling young woman who waded thru Italy's deep mud amid shell bursts to bring hot coffee and doughnuts to front line soldiers has been cited for courage by the commander of a Ranger battalion and Lt. Gen. Mark W. Clark, commander of the 5th army.

She is Miss Lois N. Berney of Fallon, Nev. Before coming to this theater last February with a Red Cross clubmobile, Miss Berney had served as a secretary in the treasury department, for the American minister to Latvia, and later for Harry Hopkins, adviser to President Roosevelt.

Served Also in Africa.

Her wide warming smile and crinkling eyes were well known to Rangers in North Africa before she took the clubmobile to the peninsula shortly after the Italian invasion. Hence her appearance on the Italian front was a renewal of friendship with the men serving under Maj. Roy A. Murray Jr. He issued the following citation:

"During the most inclement weather my men have had to endure since the beginning of the Italian campaign, Miss Berney was present at my forward command post on Nov. 17 and distributed coffee and doughnuts to all my men. Our bivouac area is about a mile from our forward outposts and is subject to harassing artillery fire, and on the above mentioned date enemy shellfire fell close by her during her visit.

Express Their Gratitude.

"Miss Berney remained unconcerned and her smile and cheerful word for each man as he came to her and received his rations were indeed an excellent morale builder. She cheered up my men and successfully changed a tense atmosphere into one of cheerfulness.

"All officers and men of my command express their gratitude and thanks to Miss Berney and desire she be recognized as a real and true American Red Cross girl who has afforded good cheer by her visits to them in Africa and here at the fighting front."

In transmitting the citation Gen. Clark and Lt. Col. Michael L. Connors added their praise of Miss Berney for her action.

FOOTBALL STAR DOWNS BANDIT; TEN BEAT HIM

Woodrow Spencer, 25 years old, 7628 Cottage Grove avenue, who starred on the University of Alabama football team of 1938, downed a robber in the Grove lounge, 7608 Cottage Grove avenue, late last night. Spencer and nine other persons, including two women, then beat the robber into unconsciousness.

Police identified the robber as James McCormick, 35, of 4201 Drexel boulevard. They took him to Jackson Park hospital, where his condition was said to be critical. Later he was transferred to the Bridewell hospital.

After the robber had seen Spencer's brother-in-law, Guy W. Rudd, 7555 Evans avenue, flash a $600 roll of bills, he stepped behind a counter, pulled out a pistol, and ordered the bartender and nine customers to put their money and their hands on the bar. McCormick took $15 from the cash register, was struck in the forehead with a whisky glass, and fired a shot that went thru the shoulder of Spencer's coat. Then Spencer brought McCormick down in football fashion, and bartender and customers began to pummel the robber.

HIS BIRTHDAY

New York, Dec. 23 [Special].—His name is Cannonball. He's been thru nine major battles in Africa and received four shrapnel wounds in the Sicilian campaign while serving as a message-bearer but he has no ribbons or citations. He's now having the time of his life in New York.

He's a year old Arabian mongrel picked up by Sgt. John Alfor, an artilleryman of the 9th division, on the outskirts of Casablanca. The sergeant liked the dog's looks and offered his owner a pack of cigarets for him. It was a deal.

Learns About Foxholes.

Everybody in the outfit cottoned to Cannonball. He became the company's mascot and scooted from one battlefield to another and learned to get into foxholes with the speed of . . . well, a cannonball. That's how he got his name. He learned to take bombings, strafing, and gunfire in stride and to ride in tanks, half-tracks, landing barges, planes, and jeeps. He became, so one of the boys said, the "best damn soldier in the whole division."

But he was a sad sailor. There came a time when Cannonball's outfit was transferred to England. He went along, of course, but the British port authorities wouldn't let mascots land.

Sgt. Alfor was heartbroken. He figured he might never see Cannonball again. On the journey Cannonball had made friends with Seaman Herbert Flournoy of the American transport service.

Will Go to Michigan.

Flournoy agreed to care for the dog. For two weeks the lonely little mongrel stayed in the bottom of the ship and then the transport started back to the United States. Cannonball was seasick all the way, but he's a happy dog now.

He's staying with Flournoy and his wife, Mildred, but after the holidays the seaman will ship him to the sergeant's father, Arthur Alfor, at Mount Pleasant, Mich.

BRITISH TO SHOW YANKS HOW TO ACT IN ENGLAND

[By Wireless to the New York Times and The Chicago Tribune.]

LONDON, Dec. 23.—A motion picture will soon supplement the many pamphlets and guides prepared for American troops telling them how to act in Britain. It has been produced for the British war office by the minister of information in cooperation with the office of war information and the army's European command.

The film shows examples of conduct which might be acceptable in the United States, but are not in Britain. Covering almost every possible situation, the movie shows the Yank how to act in a pub, home, theater, bus, subway, or restaurant. All scenes were filmed in Britain.

Most persons in the film are farmers, station masters, waitresses, and taxi drivers, but Capt. Burgess Meredith, Broadway playwright; Bob Hope, radio and movie comedian, and Beatrice Lillie of the British stage, also appear briefly.

Gunmen Seize Couple's Coats in Astor Street

Robert E. Tuttle, vice president of MacFarland, Aveyard & Co., advertising agency at 333 North Michigan avenue, and his wife were robbed of their coats worth $675 and $8 in cash last night by two Negroes who held them up in front of their home at 1309 Astor street.

Tuttle told Hudson avenue police that he and his wife were returning from a walk. As they entered the vestibule their dog, Prince, a black and white collie, suddenly turned around, growled, and slipped out of the door.

Two Shots Fired.

Opening the door to investigate, Tuttle said he heard two shots.

He shouted, "Don't kill my dog."

The two colored men then ran up to him. They demanded his money. He gave them $8, which was all he had with him, he said, but they demanded more.

Seize Coats and Flee.

The pair then seized Tuttle's coat, valued at $75, and his wife's Persian lamb coat, valued at $600, and ran toward a green sedan parked at the curb.

As Tuttle started to follow them, they fired two shots at him. They then jumped into the car and sped away.

Thieves Pump 550 Gallon Car Tank Almost Empty

Bettendorf, Ia., Dec. 23 (AP).—Arthur Voelliger, a filling station operator, told police last night someone had pumped all except 39 gallons of high test gasoline from a 550 gallon tank at his station. A similar loss of 450 gallons at a Moline, Ill., station was reported last week.

SEEK TO BREAK JAM OF RECORD MEAT SUPPLIES

Bar By-Products from Freezers.

Washington, D. C., Dec. 23 [Special].—Capitol action on the nation's food situation, overshadowed generally by cramming of refrigerated warehouses amidst consumer curtailments, today produced the following major developments:

1. To free 10 per cent of the nation's freezer space, the war food administration barred certain meat byproducts and limited other meats in the use of public freezer storage.

2. Sen. Alexander Wiley [R., Wis.] charged an artificial pork shortage is being created, termed the office of price administration's 5 point pork bonus useless in removing the hog market glut, and recommended a moratorium on pork points.

OPA Admits Mistake.

3. The OPA acknowledged its mistake in reducing the ceiling on grapes and reinstated an original 56 cent markup when warned that 90 million pounds of cold storage grapes would spoil unless sold in time for Christmas dinner tables.

4. A uniform cents-a-pound ceiling on onion sets was established by the OPA in the place of previous price freezing at individual dealers' highest levels.

The need for making room for the abnormally high production of meat motivated the WFA's action in its efforts to reduce the nation's freezer stocks. The agency reported that freezer space was 89 per cent occupied on Dec. 1, compared with 76 per cent a year earlier.

Russia Gets More Butter.

Barred from public freezer storage were meat byproducts such as lard, cured meats, tallow, rendered suet, bones, lungs, udders, and horsemeat. Ten day limits in freezer space were placed on other meats including stomachs, pork skins, hearts, heads, ears, tripe, chitterlings, snouts, hocks, pigs' feet, knuckles, kidneys and pork, veal and ox tails.

Government procurement agencies and processors were urged to withdraw butter, frozen eggs, fruits, and vegetables from storage. Officials said the OPA may reduce point values of frozen fruits and vegetables to stimulate their sale. Butter stocks in cold storage, now at record levels, are being whittled heavily by expanded lend-lease shipments to Russia.

In addition to the OPA's "Christmas present" of five additional pork points for use in the next 10 days, the agency is expected to reduce point values Jan. 5 of numerous slow selling meat products now occupying needed warehouse space.

More Confused, Says Wiley.

The OPA's special pork "bonus" was attributed in some circles to Sen. Wiley's blast at the agency last week for tying up surplus pork thru rationing. However, he declared today in a letter to OPA Administrator Chester Bowles that the action "simply confuses the issue."

Charging that the pork shortage is artificial, Wiley declared that the OPA is missing the prime point of the whole situation—waste of feed. He said that feed, which could be used to fatten pigs preparing to produce new stocks of pork, is being necessarily wasted by farmers in feeding already fattened hogs which they can't sell.

Wiley said he and 20 million other people would like to buy a ham for Christmas but haven't enough ration points, adding that "my ham and 20 million other hams would make a lot of space in warehouse refrigerators."

Confusion on Grapes.

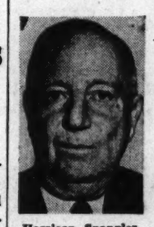
The need for storage space also influenced the OPA in reinstating the grape ceiling price. On Dec. 6 the agency reduced the wholesalers' price markup from 56 to 42 cents per 28 pound "lug" box. But it learned the wholesalers had paid most or all of the 56 cents to growers and shippers and consequently dealers were holding stocks in storage awaiting a higher ceiling. The restored markup will remain in effect until next Feb. 15, giving dealers time to dispose of their holdings at the higher price.

The new uniform ceiling on prices farmers can charge for onion sets for planting will replace a previous regulation which froze prices at the highest level charged between Feb. 10 and 15, 1943.

F. D. R. Thru with New Deal as Party Tag

BY WALTER TROHAN.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Dec. 23.—President Roosevelt today moved to repudiate the label "New Deal"—coined by him a decade ago to identify his administration.



Harrison Spangler.

The chief executive was revealed as seeking something in the way of a slogan which would tie up his party with the war. He suggested "Win the War" as a new label for his administration as the term "New Deal" was reeling under staggering attacks in congress and unfavorable election returns. His suggestion was made to Dilworth Lupton, a visiting Cleveland newspaper man, after last Tuesday's press conference.

Spangler Is Critical.

The dropping of the one-time victory slogan brought pointed gibes from Republican leaders and accusations Mr. Roosevelt was attempting to steal the Republican party's slogan.

Harrison Spangler, chairman of the Republican national committee, expressed doubt that "the leopard can change his spots."

"The American people adopted the slogan 'Win the War' the day after Pearl Harbor," Spangler said. "After two years Mr. Roosevelt has caught up with them. But the administration's spots still remain."

Likened to Stalin.

Sen. Hugh A. Butler [R., Neb.] charged Mr. Roosevelt is trying to run away from the disgraced New Deal and attempting to grab the Republican slogan "Win the War and Bring the Boys Back Home."

"This is magnificent," said Rep. Paul Shafer [R., Mich.]. "Joe Stalin dissolves the Internationale and President Roosevelt wants to dissolve the New Deal. That about makes it unanimous."

"President Roosevelt has finally been forced to admit it is the New Deal's mixing of social pipe dreams with the reality of war that breeds confusion on the home front," said Rep. Charles A. Halleck [R., Ind.].

Early in Accord.

"It remains to be seen whether the President will follow up his slogan building with corrections in his administration. That obviously would mean getting rid of the Hopkins-Frankfurter-Wallace scheming, and planning the winning of the war first."

White House Press Secretary Stephen T. Early revealed Mr. Roosevelt feels the term "New Deal" is outmoded.

"The phrase was born back in the days of the 1932 emergency, and it was the slogan thru the campaign," Early said. "This is now 1943."

President on Air Today.

The greatest network of international radio facilities ever organized will carry President Roosevelt's address tomorrow to the far corners of the world. The President will speak at 2 p. m. Chicago war time from Hyde Park, N. Y. He has announced he will discuss the Teheran and Cairo conferences.

All domestic radio networks will broadcast the address, as will the entire British Broadcasting corporation's system, the Australian and New Zealand networks, and stations in Algiers, Palermo, Bari, Naples, and India.

UNIONS REJECT ARBITER OFFER OF ROOSEVELT

Biddle Gets Order to Prepare Papers.

BY LAURENCE BURD.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Dec. 23.—President Roosevelt moved tonight to have the government seize the nation's railroads should such action become necessary to prevent a nationwide strike called by the brotherhoods for Dec. 30.

The action was disclosed in a White House statement, which said the President had directed Atty. Gen. Francis Biddle to prepare the necessary documents for the government to take over the railroads, but added that no date for such a step has been set.

The announcement followed an unsuccessful attempt by the President earlier today to settle the wage dispute between the railroad unions and managements thru submitting their differences to him personally for arbitration.

F. D. R. Issues Warning.

The President made the proposal to representatives of the carriers and brotherhoods at a White House conference this afternoon and coupled it with a warning that the dispute must be settled to avert a strike which would imperil American lives and American victories.

The Presidential offer of arbitration was accepted promptly by the management representatives and by two of the operating unions—the brotherhoods of railway trainmen and locomotive engineers—but was rejected by the other three—the brotherhood of firemen and enginemen, the railway conductors, and the switchmen's union.

At a later conference the President made the same arbitration proposal to officials of the 15 nonoperating unions, which have voted to join the operating groups in the strike as a protest against refusal to meet their demands for wage increases.

New Proposal Offered.

The White House announcement said the nonoperating groups did not decline the arbitration offer but submitted a new counter proposal. The new offer will be submitted to the carriers today by James F. Byrnes, war mobilization director, and also will be referred to Fred M. Vinson, stabilization director, to determine whether its adoption would contravene the administration's wage stabilization formula.

It was reported the new proposal called for an increase of 8 cents an hour originally sought by the nonoperating unions plus time and a half for overtime in excess of 40 hours a week.

George Harrison, a spokesman for the nonoperating unions, told reporters the nonoperating groups will meet with the President again Monday after Vinson and the carriers have studied the new proposal.

In spite of President Roosevelt's order to prepare the legal machinery for government seizure of the railroad system, observers close to the dispute expressed the opinion tonight that such a drastic step will not be necessary.

U. S. Operation Opposed.

Those close to the controversy expressed belief the unions would accept the arbitration offer before Dec. 30 or would reach an agreement with the managements which will avert a strike. It was said both parties to the dispute are opposed to government operation of the roads for many reasons, among them their recollection of government operation in World War I.

The brotherhoods, representing 350,000 workers, originally asked an increase of $3 a day, but have receded to a demand for a raise of 8 cents an hour, time and a half for overtime above 40 hours a week instead of the present 48 hours, and a week's vacation with pay.

They originally were offered a raise of 4 cents an hour, but President Roosevelt suggested a compromise including the 4 cent boost, plus an additional 4 cents to come from payments for overtime beyond 40 hours.

The 15 nonoperating groups, with 1,100,000 members, originally sought an increase of 8 cents an hour, which was approved by an emergency board appointed by the President, but was vetoed by Vinson, who suggested a sliding scale of increases ranging from 4 to 10 cents an hour.

GEN. 'IKE' FINDS ITALY GAIN WELL WORTH THE TOLL

Visits 5th Army Front; Confident of Victory.

BY HERBERT L. MATTHEWS.

[New York Times Correspondent.]

WITH 5TH ARMY IN ITALY, Dec. 23.—The Italian campaign has well repaid all the efforts made, Gen. Eisenhower believes, for it has given the allies the great port of Naples and the invaluable airfields of Foggia.

The impression one gathered during a talk by the allied commander in chief here today was one of realism, but satisfaction that the best had been done under terribly adverse conditions of weather, logistics, and terrain.

Up in the mountains of central Italy there is nothing to do but slug it out with the Germans from hill to hill, but Eisenhower indicated he is sure his armies are going to crack the Germans some day, but it may be a slow process. The important thing is to reach the point where the enemy will crack. Pressure must never be abandoned.

Goes Up to Front.

Here in the 5th army sector Eisenhower saw Italian and French commanders and drew an eloquent moral from the general proposition of how well all the allied forces are working together.

On his trip to the front, Eisenhower appeared impressed by the difference air superiority makes compared to Tunisia a year ago. He found trucks rolling along, their drivers confident that the Germans could not come over and do them any harm.

Yanks Capture Peak.

ALLIED HDQ., Algiers, Dec. 23 (AP).—American 5th army troops driving on Cassino in a flanking move from the east captured 3,000-foot Mount Cavallo and from that lofty vantage point began shelling the fortified village of Viticuso, eight miles from Cassino, allied headquarters announced today.

American troops fought up the slopes of Mount Cavallo in a drenching rain, where only the previous day they had had snow under foot. The Germans made one counter-attack on the peak, but were driven back.

French units participating in the side-door assault on Cassino scored their first important strategic victory of the Italian campaign when, after three days and nights of fighting, they won a key mountain pass near the site of the American advance.

Most of Ortona Cleared.

Cassino, major highway and rail junction guarding a wide valley 70 miles from Rome, now was within allied artillery range from the southeast, east, and northeast.

Canadian tanks and infantry of the 8th army, after three days of house-to-house fighting, cleared the Nazis from all but the northwestern corner of Ortona on the Adriatic coast.

The Germans defending this fortress with a fury commensurate with its importance to their winter line, even used parachute troops as infantry to battle the Canadians.

Inland from Ortona, 8th army troops drove north from the Ortona-Orsogna road toward the provincial capital of Chieti, approximately 12 miles distant.

Foresees Cave by Cave Push.

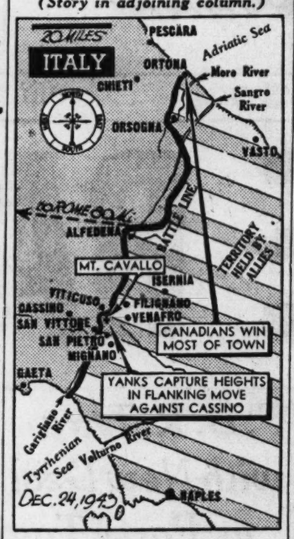
Associated Press Correspondent Don Whitehead wrote from the front: "There can be no blitz warfare here to sweep the army forward in a great smashing drive. The Germans must be dug from their caves one by one with hand grenades in close-range fighting." He emphasized that the Nazis were ordered to hold "at all costs" and were obeying literally.

For a second day most of the allied air fleet was grounded by the weather. Fighter-bombers destroyed three trains near the Adriatic, however, and fighters shot up a Nazi schooner and radio station near Zara on the Jugo-Slav coast. Two allied planes were missing.

Meanwhile, the northwest African air force announced the names of Liberator gunners who participated in shooting down German planes over Augsburg, Germany, and Sofia, Bulgaria, in the raids of Dec. 19 and 20. They included Sergeants Melvin Sayers, Knoxville, Ill.; Leonard J. Majcher, Milwaukee, Wis.; and John Nyszczak, Hammond, Ind.

War in Italy

(Story in adjoining column.)



Latest developments.

PARTISAN CHIEF ASKS RETURN OF JUGO-SLAV SHIPS

Tito Sends Mission to Italy.

[By Wireless to the New York Times and The Chicago Tribune.]

CAIRO, Egypt, Dec. 23.—Marshal Josip [Tito] Broz of the Jugo-Slav people's army of liberation has requested the allies to hand over to his provisional government all Jugo-Slav war and merchant vessels captured by Italy during the 1941 campaign against his country. He has also requested that Jugo-Slav prisoners in Italy be organized at his direction.

A Partisan military delegation has been sent to Italy to negotiate these problems. The deputation was sent with the approval of Gen. Henry Maitland Wilson, allied commander in chief in the middle east, who directs Balkan operations.

Ever since September, 1943, Gen. Wilson had recognized Tito as commander of the people's army. At that time Brigadier Fitzroy Maclean was sent into Jugo-Slavia as new chief of the mission bearing a letter of accreditation from Wilson according Tito that recognition.

Introduces Draft Law.

The Partisan government has now introduced selective service in all liberated territory, drafting Jugo-Slavs between 18 and 50 into the people's army.

Meanwhile, the free Jugo-Slavia radio today repeated with new emphasis the attacks on the government in exile and young King Peter. The youthful ruler was expressly forbidden by Tito's provisional government to return to his land "until the question of king and monarchy is solved by the people themselves after liberation of the whole country."

Partisan Drive Rolls On.

LONDON, Dec. 23 (AP).—The Jugo-Slav partisan army of Marshal Josip [Tito] Broz announced today that it was maintaining its general offensive across Croatia and Bosnia against a strong army of German and satellite troops.

Tito, now a full allied commander in close touch with American, British, and Russian military missions, announced these principal gains in his new thrusts:

Advances in heavy fighting in the Croat province of Baniya, with the Jugo-Slavs cutting a subsidiary railroad leading to the main Sarajevo-Mostar line.

Recapture in Bosnia and the Bosnia-Herzegovina frontier areas of a number of towns and settlements.

BROOKS BLAMES BROKEN PLEDGE FOR RAIL CRISIS

There would be no threat of a railroad strike and of government operation of the rail lines if the Roosevelt administration had not broken its promises to the unions, Sen. Wayland Brooks said here yesterday.

"I believe that the railroad employes themselves are anxious there should be no strike," Sen. Brooks said.

"No branch of American enterprise has done a finer job than the railroads of America.

"The operators and employes have agreed on the necessity of increased pay of 8 cents an hour. It was reported to the senate, furthermore, that the administration on at least two occasions had assured them of its acceptance of the raise. The senate voted overwhelmingly in favor of the increase.

"There is no controversy now about the increase in pay—it has only been this administration's confusion between various boards and its desire to dictate the method in which the increase can be allowed that has caused the threat of a strike which would be disastrous to our war effort."

BRITISH RESTORE U. S. NAMES TO LIBERTY SHIPS

Baltimore, Md., Dec. 23 (AP).—A British shipping official says that the English merchant shipping mission in Washington has restored the original American names of several Liberty ships, under pressure from the United States maritime commission.

The spokesman also told the Baltimore Sun that "whenever objections have been raised about the changes, original names have been restored," and indicated several such restorations are planned.

His statement was made after maritime commission representatives and officials of the Bethlehem-Fairfield Shipyard, Inc., of Baltimore, said names of some Liberty ships had been changed after elaborate christening ceremonies at the yards. Liberty ships allocated to the British government now carry place names prefixed with "Sam," in tribute to "Uncle Sam."

MORE NEWSPRINT SEEN LIKELY IN CANADA SUPPLY

New York, Dec. 23 (AP).—Harold Boeschenstein, director of the war production board forest products board, said tonight if the latest revised Canadian predictions of increased supplies of newsprint for United States publishers are substantiated, "the meeting of the newspaper industry advisory committee in January will have an opportunity to recommend the use of this excess newsprint."

Published reports from Canadian sources indicated that Canada would be able to supply 200,000 tons of newsprint a month to the United States for the first half of 1944, as compared with a previous estimate that it would supply the United States 182,000 tons a month for the first quarter.

On the basis of the earlier estimate, the newspaper advisory committee recommended an average cut of 23.6 per cent in the use of newsprint in the United States.

Break in Main Cuts Off Buffalo Water Supply

Buffalo, N. Y., Dec. 23 (AP).—Virtually all of Buffalo's water supply was cut off tonight for two and a half hours before a break in a 60 inch water main was segregated and pressure started to return to normal.

BATAAN HERO'S BODY IS ON WAY TO TEXAS TODAY

Albany, Tex., Dec. 23 [Special].—Six months and a day from the date he cabled he had escaped from Bataan and was safe, the body of Lt. Col. William Edwin Dyess, 27, will be en route by train tomorrow for burial Monday.

Dyess, who lived a hero's life, died a hero's death Wednesday night when he deliberately crashed his flaming and faltering P-38 fighter plane into a Burbank, Cal., vacant lot to avoid striking an auto and some children.

Town Flag at Half Staff.

Albany's huge American flag flew at half staff on the courthouse lawn, just a block east of the Dyess' yellow frame home and just across the street from the office of his father, Draft Board Chairman Richard E. Dyess.

Intimates of the family recalled that the father, a former county judge here, gave Ed his first plane ride 23 years ago. A barnstorming pilot had landed at Albany and the judge, with 4 year old Edwin on his lap, took their first and last plane ride together.

In a quiet way, sorrowing neighbors and friends tonight gave a hint to a thought on their minds, the possibility of Jap-inspired sabotage of "Ed's plane."

One of the town's leading businessmen put it this way: "We are just wondering if there is a chance the Colonel's plane was sabotaged. We are sure that every angle is being checked. Most of us are asking ourselves that question."

Clips Burbank Church Steeple.

Col. Dyess' plane had just taken off from Grand Central air terminal early Wednesday afternoon when the plane suddenly faltered and sputtered in midair over Burbank and shot earthward.

Dyess started to land on a wide street, but a motorist and two children appeared. He swung the plane away from the street and clipping a church steeple, hurtled over a row of war worker homes and crashed into a lot.

Mystery had shrouded the colonel's career since he escaped by a secret route from Bataan and returned home in November. For security reasons few intimates even knew he was stationed at the army air field at Burbank.

Father Wants Story Told.

How he escaped from the Japs is still one of the great untold stories of the war, one that his father believes every American should know. Emphasizing that he knew none of the confidential military secrets of his son's escape, the father declared "the treatment of the prisoners of Bataan" should be made public.

Col. Dyess, he said, had begged his chief, Gen. Henry H. [Hap] Arnold, to be allowed to return to the Pacific theater and had marked a date on a calendar when he would be allowed again to fight the Japs.

His former fighting comrades and chums of training days at Randolph, Barksdale, and other fields, have telegraphed and telephoned to Albany, where his father awaits return of his son's body, saying they will attend the funeral services. Messages have come from Spokane to Florida.

Funeral to Be Monday.

The services will be held at 2 p. m. Monday in the stone Matthews Memorial Presbyterian church a 100 yards from the Dyess home. The Rev. J. A. Owen, pastor and Edwin's scoutmaster 15 years ago, will officiate. The colonel will be the first Dyess to be buried in the Albany cemetery.

Col. Dyess' body, accompanied by his widow, the former Marajene Stevick of Champaign, Ill., and a military escort, will leave Burbank tomorrow afternoon following memorial services at the field here.

DEMANDS STORY

Charging that the Washington administration is "trying to make us forget about Bataan," Albert C. McArthur, president of the American Bataan clan, urged yesterday that the full story of the late Lt. Col. William E. Dyess be told to the nation at once.

Col. Dyess, army air force hero of the Philippine campaign who escaped from a Japanese prison camp and made his way back to the United States, was killed on Wednesday in the crash of his P-38 fighter plane at Burbank, Cal.

McArthur, who lives at 310 South Villa avenue, Villa Park, noted that Dyess received a strange reception when he reached Washington, D. C. Instead of having been hailed as one of America's foremost heroes, he was told that he knew too much. He was told that he might tell his story to certain officers of the army and navy but he might not tell it for publication.

Lt. Col. Dyess, who was 27 years old, is survived by his widow, the former Marajen Stevick, and his parents. His widow is co-publisher of the Champaign [Ill.] News-Gazette.

ARMY OFFICER GETS 18 MONTHS FOR KILLING PAL

Georgetown, Del., Dec. 23 (AP).—Carl Moulinie, 38 year old army warrant officer stationed at nearby Fort Miles, was sentenced to 18 months in prison today on a charge of involuntary manslaughter in the shooting of his close friend, Warrant Officer John H. Worthington, in the latter's Rehoboth Beach home last Nov. 4.

The state charged Moulinie killed Worthington after a quarrel in which Worthington accused his wife, Elaine, 25, of intimacies with Moulinie. Moulinie said the shooting was accidental.

BERLIN REPORTS RED BREAK-THRU ON VITEBSK LINE

Russians Claim Only Minor Advances.

LONDON, Dec. 24 [Friday] (AP).—The Russians have forced a new breach in the German lines before Vitebsk, Berlin admitted today, while Moscow dispatches said the soviet Baltic army had battered to within 12 miles of that Nazi fortress.

The soviet midnight war bulletin reported only that Russian forces had captured several populated places and additional "advantageous positions" and killed 800 Germans.

However, the Moscow announcement, recorded here by the soviet radio monitor, for the third straight day told of furious German counter-attacks in the Kiev bulge and Zhlobin areas.

In the fighting around Zhlobin, a key rail junction on the upper Dnieper northwest of Gomel, the Russians said they repulsed heavy German attacks, killed 1,500 Nazi soldiers, and wrecked 56 tanks.

Improve Kiev Bulge Lines.

In the Koroster area of the Kiev bulge, about 85 miles west of the Ukrainian capital, the Russians repulsed all attacks by German armored forces and improved their positions. Here the enemy lost 800 men and 27 tanks.

Cavalry and ski troops were playing a leading role in the Russian drive for Vitebsk thru a region of forests, swamps, and lakes.

A Berlin broadcast said that "north and southeast of Vitebsk the Russians in heavy, fluctuating battles succeeded in breaching our lines. At some points heavy battles are still in progress.

Admits "Two Local Breaches."

A German radio commentator said that "on the northwestern arc the Russians have brought up fresh infantry and tank units and continued violent attacks. After several hours' bitter fighting the enemy forced two local breaches."

A Moscow dispatch later reported the Russians battering at the outposts of Vitebsk—within 12 miles of the fortress city.

The Germans have fortified numerous villages in the area south to Viterbsk and built defense points in a range of chalkstone cliffs and sand hills. Vitebsk's strong fortifications indicate the Germans may make a protracted stand for the city.

Nazis Report New Drive.

The Germans talked of a new Nazi counter-attack at Rechitsa, south of Zhlobin in the Gomel area. They reported "driving back," the Russians, claiming the capture of "a number of inhabited places."

They claimed 76 soviet tanks were destroyed in the Kiev bulge when the Russians tried for a break-thru. In the Kirovograd area the Germans said they took an important ridge.

CHINESE CLOSE IN ON JAPANESE YANGTZE PORT

CHUNGKING, China, Dec. 23 (AP).—Chinese, making a further comeback after having cleared the Japanese from half of the rice bowl in the Tungting lake area, pursued fleeing enemy troops and reached the vicinity of Sungtze, a Yangtze port midway between Shasi and Ichang, the Chinese high command announced tonight.

The Chinese also reached the neighborhood of Kungan, a Japanese base 30 miles southwest of Shasi.

American Liberators based in China on Tuesday conducted a "highly successful" raid into Thailand [Siam], bombing railroad yards at Chiengrai, just south of the Burma border, Lt. Gen. Joseph W. Stilwell's headquarters announced.

Eighteen Japanese bombers escorted by 40 Zeros struck at a main base of the 14th air force yesterday, causing some damage. American fighters definitely destroyed 11 Zeros and 4 bombers, probably knocked out 13 Zeros and 3 bombers and damaged 11 Zeros and 3 bombers.

American losses were 1 fighter missing, 1 transport and 1 fighter destroyed on the ground, and 5 fighters damaged.

BERLIN BOMBED; FEAR OF GERMAN REPRISALS SEEN

BULLETIN.

LONDON, Dec. 24 [Friday]—(AP).—A DNB [German] broadcast said British heavy bombers attacked Berlin again last night. The broadcast said German night fighters and anti-aircraft fire knocked down a considerable number of four engined aircraft over the German capital. There was no British confirmation of the reported new attack on Berlin altho earlier night bombers had been heard heading across the channel.

BY LARRY RUE.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

LONDON, Dec. 23. — That the American and British war chiefs may be taking seriously the German threats of reprisals for the heavy raids on Berlin and other German cities is becoming more likely with the concentration of day and night attacks on "Hitler's secret weapon coast" in northern France.

British newspaper headlines for the last day or two have featured the "rocket gun coast attacks," and today a warning that "the Germans will have a comeback at us" soon was made by Gen. Frederic A. Pile, chief of the anti-aircraft command. He pointed out that "the Germans have a lot of kick in them yet."

THE TRIBUNE correspondent understands that both the American and British commands here have been making plans to meet possible new attacks, which many newspapers believe may be made by a rocket gun firing an explosive charge estimated at between 7 and 21 tons, or some explosive which can absorb tremendous quantities of oxygen and suffocate every one within an unspecified area.

Assault Continues.

It is in the French department of Pas-de-Calais that the Germans, according to neutral sources, have installed their rocket guns and it is this area which allied bombers have been attacking day and night recently.

Allied bombers flew out in great force in their attack today, continuing an offensive which has been maintained practically thruout each day since Monday.

Bomb carrying American Thunderbolt fighters attacked the important German air base near Gilze-Rijen, southern Holland, while the northern French targets of R. A. F. medium and light bombers included a camp near Merlimont, a coastal village 19 miles south of Boulogne, and two railway junctions. One medium bomber was lost.

Call Bremen a "New Hamburg."

STOCKHOLM, Sweden, Dec. 23 (AP).—Crewmen of the Swedish steamship Granada, sunk at Bremen in an American air attack Dec. 16, today said the northwest German port "is a new Hamburg."

Rocket Gun "No Bluff."

New York, Dec. 23 (AP).—Allan A. Michie, magazine correspondent returning from Europe, today said allied officials regard Germany's rocket secret weapon as "no bluff." He said the allies believe it is a rocket type projectile weighing approximately 50 tons, including 10 tons of explosives, which "can be shot from the French coast into England."

346 FLYERS LOST IN SCHWEINFURT RAID ARE SAFE

Washington, D. C., Dec. 23 (AP).—The relatives of 346 airmen who failed to come back from the big American raid on Schweinfurt, Germany, last fall have received Christmas greetings from the army—notification that the men are alive, altho prisoners.

The war department today said 59 per cent of the 581 missing crew members of the 60 Flying Fortresses lost at Schweinfurt "have been officially reported prisoners of war" and it is expected further reports will increase this percentage. To date, only 18 of those listed as missing have been transferred to the death list. Still unaccounted for are 217 men.

Under international agreement nations exchange prisoner lists thru the Red Cross and it is from this source that the army presumably is reporting the names of the imprisoned airmen.

Record U. S. Plane Loss.

The loss of 60 Fortresses set a record for American losses in one mission.

In carrying out the attack on Oct. 14, the United States bombers shot down 186 enemy fighter planes, probably destroyed 27 and damaged 89, revised war department figures show. In addition, fighter escorts destroyed 13 enemy fighters, probably destroyed one and damaged five. Two American fighters were lost.

Vital ballbearing plants at Schweinfurt were wrecked by raiders which flew 500 miles into Germany to knock out factories making at least half of the ballbearings manufactured in German-occupied Europe and 75 per cent of those made in Germany.

Plant Three-Fourths Razed.

The war department said reconnaissance photographs indicate approximately three-fourths of the production capacity of the plants were destroyed. Gen. Henry H. Arnold of the army air forces rated the Schweinfurt destruction in importance with the Ploesti [Rumania] oil field bombardment.

The raiders dropped 485 tons of high explosive and incendiary bombs.

The principal targets were the Kugelfischer works and Vereingte Kugellager Fabriken works 1 and 2.

The army said all important building at the Kugelfischer works were destroyed, that all buildings of the VKF works 2 suffered great damage and that VKF works 1 was damaged severely.

Heavily damaged were the less important Fichtel and Sachs plant, the Deutsche Star Kugelhalter plant and an unidentified factory.

OPINION GROWS U. S. MUST HAVE PACIFIC BASES

Guarantee of Frontiers After War Sought.

San Francisco, Cal., Dec. 23 [Special].—Growing thruout the country, and especially on the west coast, is the conviction the United States should hold sufficient islands in the Pacific after the war to guarantee America against future attacks from that direction.

"Today the United States is carrying the responsibility of the Pacific," the San Francisco News commented editorially, "not because we want to but because we must—Britain and our other allies insist that we do so.

"No more proof is needed that America in the future must have the sea and air bases to protect the Pacific—bases with which America might have prevented this Jap war."

Full Control Urged.

Royce Brier, chief editorial writer and columnist of the San Francisco Chronicle, declared that his paper strongly supports the proposition that the United States should have full control of strategic bases in the Pacific.

Rep. E. V. Izac [D., Cal.], a former naval officer whose home is in San Diego, has indicated that he long has believed that this country should have fortified more securely its island outposts.

Various other California officials are understood to have felt generally, altho they have not discussed the subject in detail, that the United States should have every island outpost that may be necessary for security of the nation, unless security can be guaranteed in some other way which has so far remained unspecified.

Editorial writers in Los Angeles have observed that such a post-war plan would be dependent upon the islands that actually come into our possession as a result of the conflict.

Thirty Islands Called Keys.

More than 30 atolls and islands between the Americas and the orient, in addition to the Hawaiians and the Philippines, are so situated and geographically adequate as to make them of strategic importance to the United States as future bases for protecting the continent against an invasion from the west.

Those off Mexico and the northern coast of South America include Guadalupe, Revilla Gigedo, Clipperton, Cocos, Malpelo, and Galapagos. Among those in the mid-Pacific are Marquesas, Line, Tuamotu, Samoa, Cook, Society, Tubuai, Phoenix, and Tokelaus.

Farther west there are the Marshall, Gilbert, and Caroline groups and to the south of them the strategic Solomons, New Hebrides, New Caledonia, Fiji, Santa Cruz, Tongas, Ellice, and Uvea. Closer to the Philippines are Yap and Palaus and toward Japan are Bonin, Marcus, and Marianas.

Asks U. S. Keep Control.

Washington, D. C., Dec. 23 (AP).—Rep. Fred Bradley [R., Mich.] suggested today the government should arrange immediately to retain control of United States air bases thruout the world after the war for military protection and development of commerce.

"Under present arrangements," he said in a statement, "they all will be turned over to the government under which they happen to be located after the cessation of hostilities.

"It is obvious these countries themselves can never operate such costly enterprises and it is equally true the United States cannot allow these valuable properties to fall into the hands of any potential enemy.

"While these fields took us closer to the enemy, they are at the same time bringing the enemy closer to us and we today are in more danger from attack than before the fields were built, unless we maintain control of them."

CHICAGOAN BACK WITH GRIN, 1,000 PIECES OF SHELL

New York, Dec. 23 (AP).—Coast Guardsman Charles Giamonna, 20 years old, of Chicago, is back home for Christmas today with 1,000 shell fragments in his body and a grin on his face. A German shell struck his invasion barge off Salerno Sept. 9 and when Charlie reached proper medical care doctors found his body had absorbed more than 1,300 fragments. They removed 300.

Charles Giamonna.

Charlie has lost 30 pounds, he walks with a limp and his left arm is in a cast. Doctors say it probably will take two years for the fragments to work out of his flesh.

"I was hit by one of those shells that didn't whistle," he said. "My medal and dog chain were blown away from my neck, and my lifebelt, trouser legs and jacket were torn away by the explosion. Fortunately, my canteen and Mae West [lifebelt] absorbed plenty of the shrapnel."

Charlie said sulfa drugs and blood plasma saved his life. Prior to the war he lived with his guardians, Mr. and Mrs. Vito Mattera of 6823 South Wood street, Chicago. He is a graduate of Harper High school.

Poultry Dealer Denies Sales Over OPA Ceiling

Sol Goldwasser, 50 years old, manager of the Frank G. Heilman company, poultry dealers at 943 Fulton Market, pleaded not guilty yesterday before United States Commissioner Edwin K. Walker to a charge of selling poultry at prices above the ceiling set by the office of price administration. Bond was set at $1,500 and the hearing continued until Jan. 6. Assistant United States Atty. Richard G. Finn said Goldwasser had received side payments totaling $1,700 from other poultry dealers.

Gen. Marshall (right) leaving White House in Washington yesterday with Secretary of War Stimson after reporting to President Roosevelt on results of his tour of South Pacific area.

Washington, D. C., Dec. 23 (AP).—President Roosevelt conferred today with Gen. George C. Marshall, army chief of staff, just back from a circuitous return trip from the Cairo and Teheran conferences by way of Australia, the Solomons, and Hawaii.

Adm. William D. Leahy, chief of staff to Mr. Roosevelt, joined the President and Marshall in the chief executive's White House study, and later Secretary of War Henry Stimson came over to sit in on the conference.

Marshall made a swing around the world in returning from the middle east conferences, stopping over a meeting with Gen. MacArthur in the Southwest Pacific.

SERVICE JOURNAL ASKS MARSHALL BE RENOMINATED

Holds Move Would Kill Transfer Rumor.

Washington, D. C., Dec. 23 (AP).—The Army and Navy Journal tonight urged President Roosevelt to renominate Gen. George C. Marshall as chief of staff in order to show the world that Marshall is not to be transferred to some other position.

The unofficial but authoritative service publication said in an editorial:

"Because his term as chief of staff has expired, Gen. Marshall is in office by virtue of the pleasure of the President. This is permissible under the national defense act.

Sees Effect on Allies.

"But it occurs to us that to show anew his confidence in this officer and to indicate he is not to be transferred, the President should transmit his renomination to the senate. That chamber would confirm promptly and unanimously, and again our allies and the world would be on notice that our chief of staff speaks not only for the army but for a determined and united nation."

Some time ago it was reported Marshall was slated to head the forthcoming invasion of western Europe, but more recently Gen. Dwight D. Eisenhower has been mentioned for that post, with Marshall said to be in line for a higher staff position. Other recent versions are that Marshall may command the invasion from Washington as headquarters or that he may go to London to head the allied invasion forces after perfecting details of global strategy here.

Transfer Is Doubted.

The Army and Navy Journal took it for granted in its editorial tonight that Marshall is not to be transferred from the chief of staff post at Washington.

"It is a matter of keen satisfaction to the country, no less than to the army," it said, "that Gen. Marshall is to continue as chief of staff and is not to be transferred to London to assume direction of the operations in connection with the establishment of a second front.

"It is true the report of the latter assignment was gilded by suggestions that it would be a reward for the exceptional service he has rendered and, in fact, would be a promotion.

"But, as we pointed out in the editorial in our issue of Sept. 18 which aroused nation-wide opposition to the transfer, the detail would have had the effect of opening the way to changes that might have been harmful to the war effort, and in any case of upsetting the army organization."

650,000 FARMERS IN 3 STATES WILL GET AAA CHECKS

Farmers in Wisconsin, Michigan, and Indiana will get Christmas presents in the form of checks from the government for complying with the agricultural adjustment act conservation program during 1943. There are approximately 650,000 checks to be sent, W. W. Weldon, assistant disbursing officer for the United States treasury department, said yesterday. Checks for Illinois farmers are handled from the St. Louis office and probably will be sent out the first of the year, according to C. A. Hughes, Cook county farm adviser.

NEW CALEDONIA RULER ACCUSES NEGRO SOLDIERS

NOUMEA, New Caledonia, Dec. 22 [Delayed]—(AP).—Conduct of American troops and installation of nonprofit canteens by the United States army forces in Noumea were criticized today by Gov. Christian L'Aigret, and defended by Americans.

Gov. Christian L'Aigret.

The governor, retiring to take another Free French post in Algiers, said United States Negro troops attacked white women of New Caledonia "even in the company of their husbands and brothers."

L'Aigret made a prepared statement.

"The colored troops are the terror of the white women of New Caledonia. Our women are afraid to go out of the house after nightfall," he said.

The situation has been "a bit better" said the governor since Maj. Gen. Rush Lincoln, commanding American forces, "took action." Young people "have decided to organize into bands in defense against Negroes," he added. Gen. Lincoln declined comment.

Other officers said that most of the points of friction were minor.

Does Not Criticize White Troops.

Americans said the behavior of Negro troops had been equal to that of white troops. Gov. L'Aigret said he had no complaint against the white troops, adding "they do give trouble when drunk."

L'Aigret criticized nonprofit canteens located in buildings assigned to the Americans for military purposes. Asked whether he had acted to protect Americans from extortionate prices, he replied prices here were similar to those in New Zealand and Australia.

Before the canteens were put in the French charged 40 cents for a soft drink sold ordinarily for 5 cents and 25 cents for a small ice cream cone. One French woman was reported to have made $100,000 in a year operating a fruit juice stand.

Another of the governor's complaints was that occupation forces monopolized docks and warehouses. When Americans arrived there were docking facilities for only four ships. Ten vessels now can be docked due to American construction. L'Aigret will be succeeded by Jacques Tallec, former French commissioner for Syria and Lebanon.

AP Man Tells of Gouging.

New York, Dec. 23 (AP).—J. Norman Lodge, Associated Press correspondent, who recently returned after nearly a year's service in and around New Caledonia, said today he "found nothing to substantiate allegations made by Gov. Christian L'Aigret. On the other hand," Lodge said, "the native population of Noumea continually gouged American troops, one shopkeeper in particular having become a local millionaire. Gov. L'Aigret long has been critical of the Americans."

MANY MISSING IN ARAWE RAID REJOIN YANKS

Men in Rubber Boats Hit Main Jap Base.

BY ROBERT EUNSON.

WITH THE AMERICAN 6TH ARMY AT ARAWE, New Britain, Dec. 23 (AP).—American troops who attempted to make a landing from rubber boats Dec. 15 at Umtingalu village on Cape Merkus apparently paddled straight into the main Japanese garrison in the Arawe area.

Racks for rifles were found in the barracks there which apparently had been occupied by Japanese naval forces. The gun which threw its shells into our rubber boats has been captured and proved to be a Japanese twin 20 millimeter piece which handles cartridges almost twice as long as our 20 millimeter weapon.

Two hundred rounds of howitzer fire were poured into the village before it finally was taken from the mainland approach.

Bury Yanks on Beach.

The bodies of American soldiers drowned or killed near Umtingalu are being buried on the beach. Many men missing from the rubber boat party, which met such heavy opposition when crossing a reef on the approach to Umtingalu, have been coming in all week from ships which had picked them up and taken them to various Southwest Pacific ports.

Organized ground resistance in the Arawe sector has been smashed and American patrols are enlarging the outer perimeter of their eight day old invasion front virtually unmolested.

The main beachhead consists of the Arawe peninsula from Cape Merkus to a position a few miles inland. Patrols are digging into coral caves along the beaches, killing the few Japanese stragglers still in the vicinity.

Jap Bombings Heavy.

American casualties to date have been light, Brig. Gen. Julian Cunningham, commander of the American task force, told us.

Sitting in his headquarters tent, Cunningham declared the only remaining difficulty seemed to be the Japanese night bombing which has been very heavy.

We spent most of Tuesday night deep in a foxhole while enemy raiders swooped over the tiny peninsula one at a time in about 15 sorties.

That night low flying Japanese bombers came in unmolested and executed a pattern bombing. Pileo and Arawe Islands, just off the American beachhead, also have been heavily bombed.

Yanks Strengthen Line.

American forces are establishing a firm fire line along the beaches in case the enemy should attempt a counter-invasion. A battery of four 75 mm. guns was added to the heavy guns protecting the beachhead. Maj. Alexander Barr of Milwaukee, Wis., directs the movement of supplies from a concealed spot on the beach.

Aside from the bombings there is little activity. The other night two Japanese sneaked thru the lines and tried to charge the command post. They were killed.

Japanese bombing has destroyed practically all of the remaining coconut trees on Amulet plantation which our bomber and destroyer bombardment didn't get the first day.

Coconuts, lying all over the ground, are being used to supplement rations, altho the men are now getting war meals.

Our fighter planes in the area circle high overhead, tearing into any opposition which might try to force its way into the area during the day. But the nights are different. Four Jap sorties last night, however, did very little damage.

PILOT WHO MADE 50 RAIDS CALLS HIMSELF LUCKY

Capt. Joseph Marquette, 26 years old, yesterday described his record as a fighter pilot veteran of 50 missions and 174 combat hours over China and India without getting so much as one bullet hole in his plane as "just lucky." Back in this country on leave after nearly two years overseas, he is visiting his brother, Arthur F. Marquette, at 109 Lakeview terrace, Highland Park.

Marquette in one instance was chased so closely by six Zeros that he recalls looking around "to see eyes blinking." But his amazing luck held and, he said, it must have included the 37 American fighters in the squadron, for they destroyed nine of 45 Jap planes in that engagement with no losses. There was a single bullet hole in the entire squadron as a memento of the event.

Marquette has the air medal and has been recommended for the distinguished flying cross and silver star. The son of Mrs. Elizabeth Marquette, he is a former student at the Indiana university.

Here's How to Have Safe Christmas: 'Keep Sober'

A rule for drinking during the holidays and current cold wave was issued yesterday by the Greater Chicago Safety council thru Joseph F. Stech, manager, as follows: "Keep sober."

TELLS HOW JAPS KNIFED WOUNDED YANKS IN BATTLE

Topeka, Kas., Dec. 23 (AP).—This will be Sgt. Sam Riffice's happiest Christmas.

Nearly forgotten now is the horror of lying wounded in the darkness of a New Georgia foxhole, feeling sharp pains in his neck, shoulders and back, and realizing, after a moment, that he was being stabbed. . . .

Sgt. Sam Riffice.

"Those Christmas chimes are sweet this year," says the 29 year old Chicagoan of 7647 Dobson avenue, who is convalescing in Winter general hospital, "and my girl, Martha Deluca, is waiting for me. . . . We want to get married as soon as we can."

He wants to return to active service, too, after his wounds are healed—the dozen deep cuts in his neck and back, the mangled left foot and the bullet wound in his spine.

Yet cold sweat forms anew on his face as he tells of Japanese torturing the wounded Americans on New Georgia.

Men of his company, the "Barracuda Commandos," were being knocked out fast, he said, as they tried to hold a hill in the fight for Munda air field. Riffice suffered a bad leg wound from a grenade and was one of 40 men sent back for medical aid. They were cut off before they could reach the beachhead.

Wounded Dig In.

"The little men [Japanese] did most of their damage at night, harrying us to reveal our positions. They screamed, lighted matches, and shouted English greetings, trying to attract our shots," he said.

On about the third night "we dug in," he said; and the stretcher cases, about 20, were lined up close so they could be treated in the dark. Others were scattered in shallow foxholes.

"Twice shadowy forms crawled to the edge of my fox hole and were shot before they could drive their knives home. More attackers came. Suddenly I felt sharp pains in my neck, shoulders and back. It was a minute before I realized I was being stabbed. I felt blood gushing from my neck and tried to hold it in with my hand," Riffice continued.

Kicked in Jaw by Jap.

"A little later a Jap grabbed me by the hair, jerked me up and kicked me in the jaw. The only thing that kept my head from being chopped off right there was a commotion in a nearby foxhole that drew my attacker away. I rolled back into my hole and lay nearly unconscious until morning.

"In the morning was the most gruesome sight of all. The men on stretchers had all been bayoneted and chopped up."

On the fifth day, Riffice said, the survivors reached their home base.

Riffice was operated on later by flashlight during an air raid on Guadalcanal. He said he talked the doctors out of taking off part of his foot. A small caliber bullet was taken out of his spine three months later.

Riffice is in the reconditioning squad and hopes to see his family soon in Chicago, where his father, Carlo Riffice, has been a member of the city street department 20 years.

VISITED IN CHICAGO.

Sgt. Riffice visited his fiancee, Miss Deluca, who is 25 years old and lives at 9445 Cottage Grove avenue, and his family while here on furlough several weeks ago. Before he entered the army more than two years ago he was employed in the steel mills on the south side.

FLAMES DAMAGE WAR PLANT.

Hagerstown, Md., Dec. 23 [AP].—Flames touched off by a paint shop explosion today destroyed approximately 75 per cent of an airplane subcontractor's factory and resulted in injury to at least seven workers. One residence also was burned.

Japs Build Up Air Forces in Asia, U. S. Gunner Says

Japanese air forces in the India-Burma-China sector have been greatly strengthened during the last few months and the American flyers there now invariably are outnumbered in combat by three or four to one, Sgt. Frank B. Hobbs, ball turret gunner on a B-24 Liberator who is in Chicago on furlough, said yesterday.

Sgt. Hobbs, a singer and dance band leader before he enlisted, is the son of Mr. and Mrs. John McNamara, 7702 Wabash avenue. Overseas 13 months, he has been on 45 bombing missions and had 400 combat hours. He is 24 years old.

Lending credence to a theory recently advanced to explain the progressive decline in Japanese air strength in the South Pacific, Sgt. Hobbs said he believes the Japs have withdrawn their more experienced pilots from that area to the India-Burma-China sector.

Calls Japs Tough Fighters.

"The fighter strength we have been meeting in the last few months has been terrific," he said. "We've always been outnumbered. The Jap pilots are experienced men and they are using a new improved type of Zero plane.

"They are tough fighters. But don't let any one kid you into believing that whenever a Jap's plane is shot up he commits hara-kiri, refusing to save himself. I've seen plenty of them using parachutes."

Sgt. Hobbs participated in what he asserted was the longest bombing mission made in the war so far, from their Burma base to blast the city of Bangkok, Siam. The 2,800 mile round trip flight took 16 hours, he said.

Carried out by 10 of the big Liberator bombers without loss of a ship, the mission used a novel method to confuse the anti-aircraft and fighter plane defenses of the city.

Bombing Ruse Succeeds.

"The bombers approached the target singly, by night, flying from five to 10 minutes apart," Sgt. Hobbs said. "As we rose over the target and prepared to drop our bombs, our captain, Walter Stewart of Mississippi, began talking to other planes in the mission, giving them a lot of phony orders.

"He'd tell one of them to bring his 25 planes in from the north, tell another to approach with his formation from the east, and call on still another to bring in his bombers from the west. The Japs thought they were going to be blasted by several hundred planes."

The ruse apparently worked, Sgt. Hobbs said, because Jap fighters didn't leave the ground, afraid, apparently, to go up when they were so outnumbered.

Has Two Narrow Escapes.

Sgt. Hobbs had two narrow escapes. While bombing Mandalay one engine in his plane was shot out of action, and they were forced to drop out of formation.

"We lost altitude," he said, "and we barely were able to get over the Chin hills, which are 10,000 feet high between Mandalay and our base. Then we ran into a storm front. We couldn't get over it, or around it. Our gas began running low, and we got orders to stand by with parachutes.

"Finally we turned away from the storm, and tried to get another landing field, not our own. Just as our wheels touched the runway another engine 'conked out.' We'd run out of gas."

Another time, Sgt. Hobbs said, a 22 mm. shell pierced the plane fuselage where he had been standing only a moment before. He kept the shell as a souvenir.

PROBE OF GLIDER CRASH BRINGS SLAP AT ARMY

'Neglect and Dereliction' Charged by Grand Jury.

St. Louis, Mo., Dec. 23 (AP).—A federal grand jury, reporting on an army glider crash in which Mayor William Dee Becker and nine other men were killed Aug. 1, today criticized the war department for what the jury said was the "indefiniteness," before the accident, of its inspection requirements for army glider construction. The jury, which conducted a week's investigation of the crash, did not return any indictments.

It charged, however, there had been "negligence and dereliction of duty" in inspection on the part of the Robertson Aircraft company of St. Louis, which manufactured the glider; two of its supervisory officials and three civilian inspectors of the army air forces.

The grand jury said there was no statute on which it could base an indictment and declared, "In time of war, dereliction of duty in the manufacture of vital war equipment should, in our opinion, be a criminal offense."

Cite "Cagey" Contrast.

The report asserted the war department's contract for the Robertson gliders called for "merely 'adequate' inspection" and did not specify exact requirements. The use of the world "adequate" by the war department was described by the jury as being "cagey."

The effect, it continued, was to place on the chief air forces inspector responsibility for determining what constituted adequate inspection. This, the grand jury declared, was "risky and unnecessary."

The glider crash was blamed on the collapse of a defective steel fitting which fastened the inside edge of the wing strut to the fuselage. The jury said this fitting, manufactured by a subcontractor, the Gardner Metal Products company of St. Louis, had been machined to a thinness "far beyond the tolerance allowed by army specifications."

No Inspector Obligations.

The Gardner company had no contractural obligation to check and inspect the measurements of its fittings but the jury's report alleged the company was "careless and shirked its moral responsibility" in failing to do so.

Prime duty of inspection rested with the Robertson company, the grand jury said, but it asserted the glider manufacturer had no inspection training program and its inspection system was characterized by "uncertainty and general looseness." The report cited the testimony of employes of the firm that they had never checked strut fittings, "having no method or instrument suitable to the purpose."

Remedial Steps Taken.

"Had the war department contract contained specific requirements as to company inspection," the jury continued, "this would have automatically compelled the company to establish a training program for inspection, the procurement of proper inspection instruments and the establishment of proper inspection procedure."

The report said the war department, since the accident, "has taken remedial steps which, in our opinion, will prevent a recurrence of the unfortunate glider crash."

These steps, it stated, were establishment of schools for training inspectors, requirements for the same rigid inspection for gliders as for other aircraft, and reorganization of inspection to make it independent of production and responsible directly to the commanding general of the air forces.

MERRY ANDREW RIDES HIS HORSE TO A FINE ENDING

Andrew Gotshall, 32 years old, 2612 North Hoyne avenue, was arraigned in Safety court yesterday charged with driving while intoxicated.

Andrew Gotshall.

"I was only driving a horse, judge," Gotshall explained.

Policeman William Walsh related, however, that Gotshall was astride the horse and the animal was attached to a grocery wagon owned by Gotshall's employer and was traveling on the sidewalk. Two autos had been sidewiped and a crowd had gathered when the policeman appeared.

"When the horse gets in a tight spot it gets nervous," Gotshall said.

"It looks like you were the one who was tight," remarked Judge William V. Daly. He dismissed the driving charge and imposed a fine of $1 and costs on a second charge, disorderly conduct.

MONTREAL CITY STRIKE PERILS RELIEF WORK

Deadlock in 3d Day; No Pact in Sight.

BY DON STARR.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

MONTREAL, Que., Dec. 23.—This city's clerical work, including the posting of water and tax bills, piled up today as 2,300 white collar employes ended the third day of a strike still deadlocked by the provincial government's insistence that the workers submit their case to arbitration and the unions' demand that a pay increase be promised before negotiations begin.

Included among the strikers are 150 nurses employed in the city's free clinics and other workers who staff the five city refuges which care for approximately 250 penniless men and women each day. The Brothers of St. Jean de Dieu, who work in the refuges, have appealed to city officials and strikers for help, pointing out that many of the indigent are ill and will be compelled to sleep on bare floors unless the refuges are kept open.

Draft Black List.

Strike leaders, sending their pickets out in half hour shifts because of the 14 below zero temperatures, have begun to compile a blacklist of alleged strikebreakers. Prominent on this list are physicians assigned to the city clinics.

L. E. Potvin, chairman of the Quebec municipal commission which governs Montreal because the city has defaulted on its bonds, said the strike question is in the hands of Edgar Rochette, provincial minister of labor.

Suburban Workers Meet.

Girard Picard, general secretary of the Congress of Catholic Workers, largest of the three unions whose members are striking and the union which actually directed the walkout, returned to Montreal today and announced that "the strike is continuing even after our visit to Quebec." He conferred with provincial officials in Quebec yesterday.

Meanwhile, employes of the 10 suburbs of Montreal, including policemen and firemen, called a mass-meeting tonight to formulate demands for wage increases. They were to be addressed by Paul Marquette, czar of the Canadian Congress of Labor, who successfully directed last week's strike of Montreal's policemen and firemen.

Representatives of the Civil Servants Association of Quebec province called on Premier Adelarde Godbout in Quebec today to present their demands for wage increases up to $500 a year and readjustment of the cost of living bonus. The increase is the same as that promised to policemen and firemen and requested by the white collar workers. The Civil Servants' association has about 12,000 members in the province.

II., 6 years old.

HULL PUTS OUT FEELER ON NEW RULE IN BOLIVIA

Diplomats Say U. S. Will Be Guide.

Washington, D. C., Dec. 23 (AP).—Secretary of State Cordell Hull said today that the United States is conferring with other American governments on recognition of the new regime in Bolivia.

He said he had no further comment concerning recognition of the government of Maj. Gualberto Villarroel. Hull yesterday threw doubt on likelihood of prompt recognition, saying that it would have to be determined whether enemies of the allied cause prompted the revolution.

Argentina a Suspect.

This was interpreted as questioning whether Argentina may have inspired the overthrow of President Enrique Penaranda.

Latin American diplomats indicated their governments will follow the lead of the United States in withholding recognition until the situation clears.

Enrique De Lozada, appointed Bolivian representative here, said the new Bolivian regime is "fundamentally liberal" and that it would "undoubtedly be recognized" by the United States.

Worked for Rockefeller.

Lozada, who worked for Nelson Rockefeller's office of coördinator of inter-American affairs until he accepted appointment, said the revolution which overthrew President Enrique Penaranda was "true revolution in the profound sense." He said the new government of Maj. Villarroel remains close to the United States and supports solely the allies.

Asked about Secretary Hull's statement that the United States must learn whether "outside influence unfriendly to the allied cause played a part in the coup."

"My only answer," he said, "is that there are anti-allied sympathizers even in the United States. But I emphasize that my government is close to the united nations."

BRAZILIANS INSPECT FRONT.

WITH THE FIFTH ARMY IN ITALY, Dec. 23 [AP].—A Brazilian military mission concluded a three day inspection of the 5th army fighting front today.

MEDAL-LOADED 'HERO' EXPOSED AS ARMY THIEF

Herbert C. Erkenswick, 27 years old, weighted down with 15 campaign ribbons and medals, was introduced at the recent Night of Stars show in the Chicago Stadium as an "extraordinary hero." Asked to tell of his exploits, he modestly said he'd "rather not discuss them." Yesterday he pleaded guilty before Federal Judge Philip L. Sullivan to wearing the army uniform illegally.

Herbert C. Erkenswick.

Asst. United States Atty. John Owen told Judge Sullivan that Erkenswick, who said his father is employed at the army proving ground at Aberdeen, Md., was a private and was discharged from the army as an undesirable after serving six months in the Camp Maxie, Tex., stockade for petty thievery. Erkenswick then came to Chicago, Owen said, donned a master sergeant's stripes, bought an array of ribbons and medals, including the Purple Heart, and stole a distinguished flying cross from a bunkmate, Sgt. Fred Bond, now overseas. A night club tour finally was ended by military police.

Highland Park Air Hero Missing, Wife Is Advised

Technical Sgt. Ray Shupe, 21 years old, 447 Glencoe avenue, Highland Park, a gunner on a B-17 bomber, has been missing since Nov. 27 when he failed to return from a mission over Italy, his wife, Mrs. Mona Shupe, was advised yesterday by the war department. As of Sept. 30, he had participated in 36 missions and had 247 combat hours. He held the air medal with two clusters for valor in action.

The COVERED WAGON RESTAURANT
2140 S. Michigan Ave.

TOMORROW MORNING —

You'll really hear the jingle bells that children dream of!

IN A COMMUNITY AS BIG AS THIS it will take Santa Claus a long time to fill all the stockings that are hung, for he'll try not to miss a single one.

And so, very late in the night, he'll be starting back north . . . with a jingle of bells . . . as Donder and Blitzen and the rest of the celebrated reindeer team go prancing away. Children always hear those bells in their Christmas dreams. But, this year, they will really hear them. So will you . . . and quite clearly . . . if you get up early with the children. Or later, you'll hear them faintly in the distance.

Really and truly you'll hear jingle bells. They'll be on every Bowman steed . . . on all the many routes of Bowman.

Their merry music may recall other Christmases when Santa came down the chimney to fill your stocking. But what we intend them to do is to bring an extra thrill to youngsters all over town. Quite likely they'll do that.

You see, many little children have never heard jingle bells on Christmas morning . . . never really heard them!

M'ARTHUR STOCK RISING IN INDIANA —WILLKIE FADING

Dewey Shows 'Surprising' Popularity.

BY ARTHUR EVANS.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Indianapolis, Ind., Dec. 23.—Republican Presidential politics for 1944 is slowly shaping up in Indiana. General opinion at the statehouse—filter of news from the rural regions—is that sentiment for Gen. MacArthur is rapidly growing among Hoosiers. Scouts also report a surprising amount of talk for Gov. Thomas Dewey of New York.

Wendell Willkie is held to be still dwindling in his native state. Gov. John W. Bricker of Ohio, who is rated rather dormant at present, has many friends and is popular especially in the regions adjoining Ohio. One often hears mention of Gov. Dwight Green of Illinois.

Committee Taking No Sides.

The Republican state organization itself is taking a middle-of-the-road position, and is keeping aloof from commitments. Members, of course, as individuals, have their own favorites, but with factionalism removed for the first time in years the organization is operating as a unit.

The aim is to send an uninstructed delegation to the national convention, one that will be allergic to high pressure salesmanship and one that will be unified instead of being split among several candidates as it was in 1940.

Political attention this week has been directed to the activities of the Indiana MacArthur for President club, which started in Muncie last July. It now has chapters in some 30 other cities, according to Willard A. Bartlett of Muncie, acting chairman of the club. Since the announcement in Washington, D. C., a few weeks ago that there is no official bar against any officer accepting nomination for office, Bartlett says the movement has been growing.

Sure He Can Be Drafted.

He says MacArthur's supporters are now convinced he could be drafted as a nominee. The slogan of the club is "Make MacArthur commander in chief." Committees of 100 have been set up in six large cities, and committees of 50 in more than a score of smaller towns. Activities are to begin soon after New Year's. The idea is to develop the movement as a mobilization of public opinion and not to get it involved by any local factionalism.

"We shall start an educational drive," said Bartlett. "People are writing us, eager to learn more about MacArthur's career and his qualifications as an executive. By radio and print we shall let them know about MacArthur's experience, which has made him the best informed man on the Pacific section, given him first hand knowledge of Europe, and his five years as chief of staff which brought him into constant contact with senate and house and gave him invaluable political experience."

In Touch with Vandenberg.

The Indiana movement, Bartlett says, is in close touch with Sen. Arthur Vandenberg [R., Mich.], and with clubs in Illinois, Pennsylvania, Ohio, Wisconsin, Missouri, New York, and California.

Among the cities in which MacArthur chapters are set up in are: Gary, Fort Wayne, Warsaw, Wabash, Marion, Portland, Angola, Winchester, Richmond, Hartford City, New Castle, Jeffersonville, Connersville, Columbus, Anderson, Frankfort, Elwood, Alexandria, Kokomo, Evansville, Terre Haute, and Indianapolis.

Bartlett says the tone of letters pouring into the Muncie headquarters is strongly against a fourth term, global union, and encroachments upon constitutional government by New Deal burocrats.

A movement to draft Gov. Dewey, was launched in Fort Wayne last week by the Allen county Republican club.

Willkie Barometer Falling.

Organization war horses here seem almost unanimous in declaring the Willkie barometer is still going down. They declare he is no more a favorite son than a year ago. After the rocking chair visit of Willkie to Rushville in August his stock went up a bit, but dropped again.

Statehouse leaders say more than 75 per cent of the county chairmen are against him. His chief strength is held to be in the 11th district [Indianapolis] and in the 10th, his home district. In the latter, however, prevailing comment among ordinary voters is said to be much as in some other rural sections: "He's another New Dealer."

One of the leading Republican authorities here estimates that as of today, Willkie has a possibility of getting not more than six of Indiana's 29 delegates to the national convention.

150,000 PAY TAX BUT FAIL TO FILL OUT FORMS IN '43

Approximately 150,000 new taxpayers, unfamiliar with procedure, in 1943 sent in income tax payments unaccompanied by tax forms, raising a new problem in a record year, Carter H. Harrison, collector of internal revenue, said yesterday. A record tax collection of $2,100,000,000 from all sources was estimated by Harrison, compared with $1,157,562,855 actually collected in 1942.

The mailing volume of the Chicago district increased to 10 million from 7 million last year, of which incoming mail brought 4,500,000 tax returns, compared with 2,750,000, while the number of income tax payers rose to 2,750,000 from 1,700,000 in 1942, Harrison said.

SENATORS TELL WHY THEY BALK AT TAX INCREASE

Budget Cut, Lower Income Cited.

BY PHILIP WARDEN.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Dec. 23.—The senate finance committee, in its formal report today on the changes it made in the house approved tax bill, disclosed for the first time the two major factors that caused it to agree with the house that taxes are heavy enough and that sharp increases should be avoided.

The committee disclosed the reasoning back of its action in reply to administration demands that taxes in 1944 be increased by at least 10½ billion dollars. The committee bill boosts federal taxes next year by a little more than 2 billion dollars. Its reasons for not increasing taxes more were:

1. Between the time the treasury representatives testified before the house ways and means committee and the senate committee, the bureau of the budget lowered by 11 billion dollars its previous estimate of the current year's deficit.

Income Cut Foreseen.

2. Already "small-scale" instances of unemployment of men and resources have appeared as the government revised downward its requirements for certain lines of war goods. In view of this, the committee reasoned, national income may be lower than first estimated by the treasury and more civilian goods may be available, so that the "inflationary gaps" might not be nearly so large as anticipated.

The report said the committee was not convinced that a sum as great as proposed by the administration could "equitably" be raised at this time in the manner suggested by the treasury. The treasury had asked sharply higher income taxes on individuals and corporations.

"It is believed the individual income tax burden should not be appreciably increased over that of existing law, since individuals will be paying for the next two years a carry-over of liability for the lesser of the years 1942 and 1943," the report stated.

Oppose Surtax Hike.

"So far as corporation taxes are concerned, your committee is in agreement with the house bill that any increase in corporate taxes should be by way of excess profits tax rather than normal and surtax."

The additional taxes that will be imposed next year would be raised from the following sources under the house approved bill and the bill as revised by the senate finance committee:

	House bill.	Senate bill.
	[Millions of dollars.]
Individual income and victory taxes	$ 154.8	$ 664.9
Corporation income and excess profits	616.0	502.7
Taxes on commodities and services	1,197.2	1,011.1
New postal revenue	171.3	96.9
Total	$2,139.3	$2,275.6

The senate will vote on the bill when it returns from its Christmas recess.

COAL SHORTAGES PUTS N. Y. IN FOR COLD CHRISTMAS

New York, Dec. 23 [Special].—Many New York City and Long Island homes faced the prospect of a heatless Christmas as the coal scarcity today became critical. The situation was described as desperate, with freezing of water pipes imminent and the health of occupants in danger.

Telegraphic appeals for immediate relief were sent by the New York real estate board to Mayor Fiorello La Guardia, Solid Fuels Administrator Harold Ickes, and other high officials.

The board said that among those "up against it for coal," in addition to a host of householders, were owners and operators of hotels, office buildings, apartment houses, and loft buildings in Manhattan. They said the situation is particularly serious on Manhattan's teeming west side as dealers were informing even their largest buyers that they had absolutely no coal in bins or that "10 customers are waiting for every ton of coal on hand."

Friend of the Yanks' Kin

BY SALLY JOY BROWN

Mrs. A. G. writes: "My son, who is in the army stationed abroad, has asked me to obtain information as to whether he has to file an income tax report, and if he has to pay income tax while he is overseas."

ANSWER: Men in the service who are stationed overseas are granted an automatic postponement of income tax payment until they return to the United States, or until after the war is terminated. This does not necessarily relieve men of the liability of income tax; it merely postpones the time when returns must be made and taxes paid. This is applicable only to taxable years beginning after Dec. 1, 1940.

R. B. writes: "I am a sergeant in the army and have been undecided as to whether I should continue to receive the quarters allowance for my wife, or discontinue it in favor of a family allowance. I notice that in your bulletin you say that if the quarters allowance is continued, "the service man must allot the same amount from his salary to the dependent for whom the government allowance is provided." Does that mean that I will be expected to allot an equal amount, as well as the entire quarters allowance to her?"

ANSWER: No. The monthly allowance in lieu of quarters will continue to be paid directly to the enlisted man, as it has been previously, but it will be mandatory for you to allot at least that amount to your wife. This ruling guarantees that the amount provided for dependents is actually sent to them by the service man who receives it.

Mrs. H. M. writes: "I expect that my husband will be called into the army within the next few weeks. At the present time I am unemployed. I would like to know if I could receive an allotment if I found work after he entered the service."

ANSWER: Since an allotment is a contribution paid entirely from the soldier's own salary, there is no question of dependency involved. If you are referring to the family allowance, as a wife and class "A" dependent, you are entitled to receive one, even if you are employed.

We have a bulletin which explains the rulings of the various branches of the service with regard to the family allowance, which may be obtained on receipt of a stamped addressed envelope.

Mrs. P. W. writes: "My brother, who is in the navy, applied for an allowance for his wife when he went into service last spring. When he returned home on a furlough he learned that she had been living with another man, and he filed suit for divorce. Can he have the family allowance stopped now, or will his wife continue to receive it until the divorce has been granted?"

ANSWER: To the best of my knowledge, the wife will continue to receive the family allowance until the divorce has been granted. At that time your brother need only submit a certified copy of the divorce papers and the allowance will be canceled, unless the wife is awarded alimony.

FAVOR COURTNEY FOR GOVERNOR IF HUGHES FALTERS

BY GEORGE TAGGE.

Democratic state leaders in their first big pow-wow yesterday informally agreed that if Edward J. Hughes, the ailing secretary of state, cannot run for governor the only nominee with a chance of becoming governor would be State's Atty. Thomas J. Courtney.

Downstaters predominated at the closed meeting in the Morrison hotel and there was no dissent to this view from the Cook county delegation, headed by Mayor Kelly.

Previous reports that Mayor Kelly would support Courtney appeared to be confirmed. The mayor came out and told reporters that all of the talk was for Hughes, and for Courtney if the secretary of state does not make the race. Hughes has been confined to his Springfield home since leaving a Chicago hospital a month ago.

Hughes May Ask Re-Election.

Harry Wernsing of Hughes' office indicated that Hughes may run for a fourth term as secretary of state. Several downstaters expressed the belief that he could do this without making a single speech.

State's Atty. Courtney has not breathed a word of his intentions, even to close friends, but is reported to be a bit bored with the office he has held for 12 years.

Also unanimous, it was reported, were expressions that only Roosevelt can carry Illinois for President, and only the incumbent, Scott W. Lucas, can win for senator. Lucas, just arrived from Washington where he talked with the President, said they had not discussed politics.

"There were no indorsements," Mayor Kelly reported. "This was an American meeting, not a party meeting. What was done here will be done in each district. We are not making a slate. This is to be an open primary without back room picking. We can have concerted action without slate making."

McKeough Fate Recalled.

Many of the speakers pleaded for a ticket made up of men "who do not need to be introduced to the people." This point was more eloquent because it was made by Harry Hershey of Taylorville, 1940 Democratic nominee for governor, who was not well known in Cook county and lost to Gov. Dwight H. Green.

Thomas P. Sinnett of Rock Island, former majority leader of the Illinois house of representatives, and John C. Martin of Salem, former state treasurer, joined in this chorus.

Speakers generally agreed that the campaign plea to the public will be that Roosevelt must "finish the job." This phrase was used by Former Justice Warren Orr of the Illinois Supreme court.

"The issues," said Sen. Lucas, "will far outweigh irritations caused by semi-regimentation and OPA regulations which have been necessary but in many cases have not been administered properly. Seventy-five per cent of the so-called burocrats in the New Deal agencies, higher up, are Republicans."

Orr Surveys Newspapers.

Former Justice Orr, assured the meeting that Democratic newspaper strength here has improved. He damned THE TRIBUNE and praised the New Deal morning newspaper. He also praised the New Deal afternoon newspaper. He said Democrats could count on support from a former Republican afternoon newspaper.

"Frank Knox is a member of the President's cabinet, of course, and will fight whatever THE TRIBUNE is for," Orr declared.

With Mayor Kelly were Albert J. Horan, chairman of the executive subcommittee of the Cook county central committee, and Minority Leader Richard J. Daley of the Illinois senate, who is being mentioned as candidate for state auditor.

Downstaters included United States Atty. Howard Doyle of Decatur; Edward P. Allen, state central committee chairman; John E. Cassidy of Peoria, former attorney general; Walter Williams of Benton, former chairman of the board of trustees at the University of Illinois; John P. Devine of Dixon, former speaker of the Illinois house; Bruce Campbell of East St. Louis, former state chairman; Mrs. Blanche Fritz of Bridgeport, chairman of the downstate women's division, and several members of the state legislature.

NEW GUN SIGHT SETS RECORD IN AERIAL FIRING

Atlanta, Ga., Dec. 23 (AP).—A machine gun sight which gives exceptional accuracy in aerial gunnery has been developed by Warrant Officer Jon H. Hulme of Atlanta, the army disclosed today.

The sight was mounted on an airplane machine gun and was so successful that it established a record at Harlinger army air field, Texas, where Hulme is stationed.

The army withheld details of the sight, but said its adoption by the air forces would not necessitate great change in sighting processes now taught gunners.

ICC RULES RACE SEGREGATION ON TRAINS IS LEGAL

Washington, D. C., Dec. 23 (AP).—Segregation of races on railroad trains, where equal accommodations and services are provided, does not constitute "unlawful discrimination," the interstate commerce commission ruled today.

In dismissing a complaint filed by 18 Negro seamen against the Atlantic Coast Line railroad, the ICC said the right of a railroad to maintain rules separating white and Negro passengers had been upheld by court decisions.

The complainants had asked for a "bold declaration that segregation, in and of itself, must today be regarded as constituting an unlawful discrimination even in those cases where the Negro, while segregated, is actually furnished with equal facilities and accommodations."

"What complainants asked us to decide is in its essence a social question and not a question of inequality of treatment such as is prohibited by section 3 of the [interstate commerce] act," the commission commented.

The complaint grew out of a trip from Tampa, Fla., to New York more than three years ago. The complainants alleged that the railroad refused to serve them breakfast and dinner in the dining room and that they were allowed to eat lunch in the dining car only after white passengers had finished.

They said the railroad sought to serve breakfast to them in a Pullman car.

CUT OF $50,000 FOR OCD URGED BY ALD. BOWLER

Move to Bring City Budget Figures Into Line.

An additional $50,000 slice in the city budget appropriation for the office of civilian defense was recommended yesterday to the finance committee of the city council by Ald. James B. Bowler [25th], chairman of the committee. The OCD asked for an appropriation of $400,000 for 1944, but that figure already has been slashed to $300,000 by the finance committee.

Ald. Bowler.

Ald. Bowler told the committee that Ralph H. Burke, deputy coordinator of the OCD, would have a complete itemized statement of the expenditures of the office ready for submission to the council early next week. However, it appeared, he said, that the $50,000 could be cut from the OCD appropriation without trouble. This reduction would bring the final appropriation down to $250,000.

Corporate Fund Slashed.

The cut brings to $300,000 the amount the finance committee has taken off the corporate purpose fund. Ald. Bowler had told the committee that $500,000 must be taken off the fund, which was fixed at $58,980,919, if the budget is to balance.

The cuts made in other appropriations are $25,000 from the budget of the police department, which was originally set at $19,679,672; $100,000 from the $2,854,101 appropriated for the health department, and $25,000 from the mayor's contingent fund of $75,000.

Would Go for Pay Raise.

The $500,000 saving in budget appropriations, under Ald. Bowler's proposal, would be combined with $2,167,000 added revenue expected from new license fees and increases in all other license fees. The $2,667,000 would be spent for a salary raise for all city employes now making less than $3,000 annually.

Further action on budget cuts has been deferred until the committee meeting on Monday.

Trustees of the sanitary district of Chicago yesterday passed a budget for 1944 calling for $8,371,375.24 in the corporate [operating] fund, including $6,500,000 in taxes to be raised under the pegged levy law of last summer. Revenues from the sale of electricity and sludge and other sources will make up the difference, it was explained.

Small Savings Made.

The budget figure was set after a score of motions had shaved small amounts from various appropriations for a total cut of $99,699.74 from the $8,471,395.24 which had been set in a tentative budget. No provision was made for pay raises, although five groups of union employes asked raises at a public hearing Dec. 14.

Reducing the operating fund, however, did not reduce the tax bill. Other funds remained the same, calling for the same taxes as formerly planned, with the levy for all funds at $19,699,728.40, or about half a million dollars above 1943. The bonds and interest levy, not pegged, is up $410,000 and the annuity and benefit levy, $145,000.

CHRISTMAS TREE SURPLUS SERVES DEALER AS FUEL

Stuck with hundreds of unsold Christmas trees which he bought last month for $2.50 to $3 a bundle, Phil Burtle, owner of a filling station at 7006 Ogden avenue, Berwyn, yesterday was chopping up the trees for us as fuel in a stove used to heat the station.

Meanwhile, he was disposing of them for prices ranging from 35 cents to $1 a tree, depending on size.

Other dealers likewise reported more trees on hand than they could sell, and prices plummeted. They said receipts of Christmas trees in the Chicago area this year exceeded by 100 cars the number received last year.

WARNS HUNTERS TO HOLD FIRE—AND SAVE WOODS

Drouth Adds to Peril of Carelessness.

Hunters in Illinois should be extremely careful not to drop lighted matches, cigarets, or sparks from pipes because of the extreme dryness of the ground and the underbrush, Joseph Loomis, acting state forester, cautioned yesterday in Springfield. Loomis declared that, since the state has experienced a period of drouth for several weeks, carelessness at this time might cause a damaging prairie or forest fire.

Loomis's warning coincided with a report from Forecaster G. L. Canaday that Chicago has had no measurable rain or snow since Dec. 6. During the last rain in the state, a scant .04 of an inch fell on the night of Dec. 13-14.

Fire Sweeps 2,500 Acres.

Loomis emphasized that Illinois is not in the same condition as Wisconsin, where the state conservation department announced Wednesday that it was almost helpless to fight increasing fires because of unusual weather conditions. A series of fires recently swept 2,500 acres in Wisconsin, the department said.

Records of the Illinois department of conservation for 1942 show that 40 per cent of the fires were started by careless hunters. He said he expects forthcoming statistics for this year to show that hunters were almost as guilty in 1943.

Another common cause of prairie and forest fires is the negligent and indiscriminate burning of brush piles, Loomis asserted.

Education Cuts Toll.

Altogether, he said, the state this year endured only about half as many prairie and forest fires as it did last year, when approximately 170,000 acres were scarred by flames. Loomis ascribed the curtailment to two factors: [1] a state-wide fire protection program, in which the conservation department did pioneering educational work among farmers, and [2] fortunate rains which frequently arrived just in time to dampen an incipient conflagration.

Snow is needed urgently for farm fields, agricultural authorities said.

ADMIT KEEBLER, 5 OTHERS OWN 10 STORY HOTEL

$600,000 Reported Paid in Country Club Deal.

Gilbert E. Keebler, former state administrative auditor, and five other individuals have purchased the 10 story Country Club hotel at 6930 South Shore drive at a price reported to be $600,000.

Sale of the property was disclosed last May but it was not until yesterday that Morris Alexander, attorney, admitted that Keebler was one of the six individuals for whom he was acting. He refused to disclose the identity of the five others. Philip W. Collins, head of the state department of revenue who had been linked with the new ownership in newspaper reports, denied he had any connection with the property.

Conveyed Thru Deed.

The property was conveyed to Alexander thru a trustee's deed dated April 7, 1943, by the trustee for the Country Club Hotel Trust. Alexander reconveyed the property by warranty deed to the Metropolitan Trust company as trustee, acting under an undisclosed trust agreement dated April 27. Both conveyances were recorded on April 30.

Alexander said property owned by Keebler at 500 South Oak Park avenue, Oak Park, was given as part consideration.

Bowles Settles Dispute

The building, consisting of 176 apartments of one, two, and three rooms overlooking the grounds of the South Shore Country club, had been involved for more than a year in a rent control controversy.

The controversy was settled this month when Chester Bowles, national price administrator, overruled the decision of the Chicago OPA area rent office and granted an increase in rent for 65 of the apartments, involving approximately $400 monthly and retroactive to Nov. 25.

KING APPROVES CASEY FOR NEW POST IN BENGAL

LONDON, Dec. 23 (AP).—Appointment of Richard Gardiner Casey as governor of Bengal, was approved today by King George VI. This was interpreted as indicating the importance attached to the situation in India's famine-ridden Bengal, main base of the southeast Asia command of Adm. Louis Mountbatten in a drive against the Japanese.

As minister in the middle east, Casey worked out military and supply problems. Long prominent in Australian politics, Casey served as Australian minister to Washington in 1940. Casey, persuaded to accept the new post by Prime Minister Churchill, is expected in Bengal in January.

CHURCHES PLAN ALL DAY SERVICE WHEN WAR ENDS

Davenport, Ia., Dec. 23 [Special].—The day after the surrender of Germany the 63 churches in this city will be open from 8 a. m. to 10 p. m. so that all citizens of the community, which has a large German-American population, may have an opportunity to offer prayers of thanksgiving.

William T. Waterman, a lawyer who originated the plan which has been approved by members of the Protestant, Catholic, and Jewish faiths, said clergymen in other parts of the country are considering the idea.

The program, Waterman says, provides that the observance be repeated the day after Japan is conquered.

TRACE CANDIED FRUIT MADE OF NAVY GARBAGE

Federal food and drug administration officials still are tracing out of state shipments of candied fruit made from garbage by the Garden Fruit Glacé company, 955 Schubert avenue. Seizures of the fruit have been made in Iowa and other states, and hundreds of pounds have been taken and dumped here by the foods and dairies division of the Illinois department of agriculture.

M. R. Stephens, chief of the Chicago station of the food and drug administration, said yesterday that the two partners in the business, Benjamin Weinberg and Archie Bacarro, would be summoned before him at an early date for an informal hearing.

Both Contracts Terminated.

The garbage, consisting principally of grapefruit rinds, was bought from the Navy pier technical training center and the Great Lakes Naval Training station under contract. The contract with the pier began Nov. 20 and was to run until March 31, 1944. The contract with the training station started Dec. 1 and was to run for 60 days. Both contracts now have been terminated.

Under the contract the navy sorted out the citrus rinds in the galleys, and collected them at one central station where they were hauled away by the fruit company. The company agreed to pay $20 a ton for the rinds and was told it might expect around 10 tons a week when citrus fruits were on the navy menu.

The navy contracts specified that "the citrus fruit rinds must be disposed of in a manner complying with the sanitary regulations of the community."

Finished Product Analyzed.

Stephens declared that an analysis of the finished product disclosed the presence of rat hairs, egg shells and other foreign matter. Pictures taken in the plant by the department of agriculture showed the fruit rinds being cooked in open vats mingled with empty cereal boxes, egg shells, and other debris. Department officials said the company was housed in an old garage and conditions were extremely insanitary.

OPA ASKS BANKS' HELP IN CURBING GAS CHISELERS

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Dec. 23.—Reporting what he termed "alarming" gasoline black market operations, Chester Bowles, price and rationing administrator, called upon the nation's commercial banks to help in the detection of counterfeit and stolen gasoline coupons. More than 10,000 banks handle the ration coupon accounts of gasoline dealers.

"The gasoline rationing program has recently attracted the attention of a sizeable number of racketeers and petty chiselers," Bowles said in a notice to the banks. "Thefts and counterfeiting of coupons in some areas have reached alarming proportions. In an eastern city, for example, a counterfeit ring was recently uncovered. It had passed enough counterfeit coupons to supply gasoline to take 1,000 bombers over Berlin for five nights."

OPA officials said most counterfeit gasoline coupons are crude and easily detected but that some are excellent imitations. They said most of the gangs doing the skilled counterfeiting have been apprehended and the engraving plates seized.

U. S. EASES RULES FOR CANADIANS CROSSING LINE

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

OTTAWA, Ont., Dec. 23 [Special].—Birth or baptismal certificates with a photograph attached, or expired passports and expired border crossing cards will be sufficient for Canadians crossing into the United States for visits after Jan. 1, the United States embassy said today.

The eased restrictions apply only to native born Canadians on visits of 29 days or less. For non-natives or those intending to stay a longer period, existing regulations will apply.

"This relaxation of the border crossing restrictions, as they affect native born Canadian citizens has been made because of the desire to extend to Canadian citizens as nearly as possible the same privileges of entering the United States temporarily as the Canadian government grants to American citizens entering Canada," the embassy said.

Eight hundred children of the 1st ward were guests last night at a Christmas party sponsored by the business men's committee, a Republican party group, in the hall of the Charles L. Hunt post, No. 2024, Veterans of Foreign Wars, at 3016 Lake Park avenue. A Santa Claus passed out gifts to all the guests. Bernard J. Black, ward captain of the committee, was in charge of the party.

It is our sincere wish that Health, Happiness and Security will be yours during the coming year; and that we may all soon be blessed with Victory and a just and lasting Peace.

NEWS FROM CANADA.

Recent news from Canada has come as a surprise to most people on this side of the border who have come to regard the majority of Canadians, whether of British or French extraction, as instinctively conservative people.

Yet while American voters were registering their resentment this fall at the radicalism of the New Deal, Canadian voters in Ontario were plumping in spectacular fashion for the Co-operative Commonwealth federation. The CCF, translated rather roughly to our own political terms, is the Nonpartisan league, plus the CIO, plus a splash of communism.

The Montreal police strike came nearly a quarter of a century after Calvin Coolidge established the precedent, which has been virtually unbroken since, that members of those services in American cities shall not strike. The successful police strike, conducted by the relatively new Canadian Congress of Labor, which has ties with the CIO, was a competitive spur to the Canadian Trades and Labor congress, which has AFL affiliations, and to Montreal Catholic unions, and further strikes are threatened.

The Montreal strikes called attention to the fact that the first city of the dominion is technically bankrupt, having defaulted on its bonds, and in consequence has had to surrender control of its municipal government to the provincial authorities of Quebec. Such local authority as remains is exerted thru a corporative assembly that stems more from Mussolini than from the witenagemot.

That Americans should be so ill-informed on many important phases of the life of their closest neighbor is traceable in small part to the news judgment of American managing editors who, perhaps lamentably, proceed on the theory that their readers are normally more interested in what goes on in their own back yard than in what goes on in their neighbors' back yard. But theirs is the minor fault, at best. The principal reason why American newspapers don't tell their readers more about Canada is that they don't get the news to print.

The Associated Press gets its Canadian news thru exchange with the Canadian Press. The Canadian Press furnishes only such news as Canadian newspapers see fit and are permitted to publish. This control, while it may be ruptured temporarily by such events as the Montreal strikes, is quickly reëstablished.

Canadian control of the press is, in its way, as complete and unscrupulous as the censorship in Germany. The dominion has maintained a rigid censorship since the war, with all of the oppression and stupidity inseparable from such business, but the official interference is on the whole less rigorous and less onerous than the unofficial one.

The economic development of the dominion has only started to pass beyond the extractive stage—the exploitation of soil, mineral, and forest resources, and, in many instances, of the Canadians along with the rest. In such a society the man who furnishes the capital holds the whip. By the development of branch banking virtually every business in Canada that needs credit is dependent upon one of eight great banks.

Even in the palmiest days of Wall street it was scarcely possible to collect at the luncheon hour in a single club a quorum of the men who ran this country, yet that is possible almost any day of the year in Montreal. Canadian newspapers are no exception to this centralized control. Few of the larger ones have succeeded in establishing their financial independence. The majority of them are maintained as the mouthpieces of various financial groups.

A conservatism based on such a system as this is not a very stable one. Sooner or later it is bound to collide with the 20th century, but until the control that the economic and political rulers have maintained so successfully is broken we can do little more than guess what is going on in the country north of us.

THE OCD ON THE AIR.

The office of civilian defense, trying to justify the $437,000 of city funds it spent in 1942 and the $300,000 to $500,000 it says it will need to operate in 1944, disclosed that one of its budgeted items for the new year will be $20,000 to pay radio actors for dramatic skits.

This certainly is not a prospect to brighten the lives of habitual radio listeners. Even the devotees of soap operas, quiz programs, and quippy comedy have a saturation point beyond which they no longer can absorb corn. Twenty thousand dollars' worth of local talent reading from OCD scripts promises to add an awful lot of roughage to their diet.

The OCD is in the radio business for propaganda purposes. Its highest motive, if it sticks to that, is to sell civilian defense to the public. At this stage of the war, OCD's radio campaign has the same outlook for success as a Christmas sale of tropical worsteds. It would be a good time for OCD to cut back its advertising budget. Since the money to pay for it comes out of the city treasury, the taxpayers should see that it does.

TWO APPEALS.

There lie before us two notes, one asking us to say a final word on behalf of Chicago's Community Fund, and the other from a settlement house in New York City pleading for a contribution for its work among the children in its neighborhood.

As to the Community Fund we don't know what can be said in addition to all that has been said already. A great number of Chicago's charitable institutions and other causes which Chicagoans have long supported have united in an appeal for contributions. The single campaign saves a great deal of time and effort on the part both of solicitors and donors. The beneficiary organizations have been closely scrutinized before being allotted a share of the receipts. Included in the list are all the principal agencies, except the Red Cross, that serve our men in uniform and their families. The appeal is one that every Chicagoan who knows his city and its needs will recognize as worthy and to which every Chicagoan with a heart and a sense of duty will respond as generously as he can. Perhaps the strongest point that can be made on behalf of the Community Fund is the fact that it has won the enthusiastic support of many thousands of our people.

In contrast, the request from New York can be regarded only as a shameless impertinence. New York is at once the largest and wealthiest city in the land, and its people do not lack the means to support their own charities. If New York has to turn to Chicago for money to provide wholesome recreation for New York's children, the explanation may well lie in the fact that the wealthy people of New York have no time and attention left for the social problems of their own community because of preoccupation with Europe. They send their money abroad because that is the way to win prestige where they value it most.

The doctrine that charity begins at home can be overworked, but it has its validity. Certainly New Yorkers should be ashamed to pass the hat outside their own community, but that kind of shame is something they don't know anything about. What shames them is the failure to get an invitation to dine with the duke and duchess. It's a queer obsession and happily it is seldom observed in this country west of the Hudson.

MR. ROOSEVELT'S SURPRISE PARTIES.

Mr. Roosevelt aims to be a master of surprise, a valuable but tricky device of the theater which can be used as a substitute for more solid qualities of the art. Ingenious in itself, it can disguise a failure in substance. Our chief executive gave his art a workout in 1940 when he tried to conceal from a thoroly conversant country and the not too dumb delegates to the Democratic national convention that he was the third term nominee. He employed it with more success when he made his country-wide tour of the military stations and war plants and had the armed and unarmed citizenry pop-eyed at seeing him unexpectedly in their midst.

With the aid of the newspapers Mr. Roosevelt could disappear from Washington. Later the curtains would part and he would be found to be or to have been on the high seas with Mr. Churchill, in Casablanca with Mr. Churchill, in Quebec with Mr. Churchill. Or Mr. Churchill would pop up somewhere in the United States and Mr. Roosevelt would make the disclosure at the proper moment. Everything went well until the Cairo and Teheran meetings. In these lands of ancient glories, where one could really bask in the dramatic, everything went wrong, and Mr. Roosevelt stepped into one anti-climax after another. On his return home he issued an order forbidding any release of news which might affect the security of future conferees.

That was gratuitous. There was no leak in American sources of information. The British let the Cairo story out and the Russians beat the gun with the story of Teheran. And the Germans had the whole play from the beginning. The tip-off in Egypt came when it was reported from there that the hotel in the shadow of the pyramids had been cleared out, obviously in preparation for great arrivals. From then on, any one who wanted to know what was going on tuned in on the Berlin radio.

Teheran was selected for the meeting with Stalin because in Persia the Russians are almost at their own fireside. The country has been under a sort of Anglo-Russian condominium, with Russian interest paramount in the north. It's a good guess that soviet police were everywhere in Teheran before Stalin moved in and that undesirable gentry had either taken to the hills or were in protective custody. Nevertheless Mr. Roosevelt came home with a story that he lived in the Russian embassy at Stalin's insistence because the soviet secret agents had discovered a plot against the big three. You can't trust Josef's smile. It is too droll.

In spite of untoward events Mr. Roosevelt nevertheless did succeed in puzzling many of his fellow countrymen not by what he did but by what he didn't. Our own Marco Polo will tell what he did, or part of it, on the radio. He may not explain what he didn't or why he didn't. England more than half expected to see him. It was remarked there that Mr. Churchill had been in America or American waters six times as prime minister. A little shuttle trip from North Africa would put Mr. Roosevelt in London. There was talk of a joint session of the peers and commons to hear a speech from him. London crowds would have waited on him. He could have made it a surprise by taking off without notice. He might have rung King George's doorbell and almost bowled that amiable monarch over. Why didn't he?

Maybe Mr. Roosevelt is frugal and is saving something in the locker. Mr. Churchill wasn't home, and as it turned out, couldn't get home. The king had the flu or was just recovering from it. England has a severe type of flu, not as bad as the 1918 variety, but bad. Ours is a mild type. There are supposed to be several million American troops in England waiting for the jump off. Mr. Roosevelt might have been tempted to appear as their commander in chief. It was just the time for that. The call of events must have been in his ears. He turned away and came home. That was his big surprise. And a build-up is saved for the future—unless a fourth term candidate doesn't want English acclaim. That might be the secret of his abstention.

The Tojo theory of the war situation seems to be that the Japs have got so strong that the allies are striking back harder and harder with their constantly "dwindling" power.—Kansas City Times.

MR. PEPYS' DAY BEFORE.

24th Dec.—While awaiting the Eve, always a blessed time, will prepare a column of poems for the Day, and also a column of jottings about this and that for the following Monday. So do not expect to find time to dip my bill into the bowl of eggnog that one of my clubs is offering from noon until 4 p. m., and may also miss the noggins of Tom and Jerry that will be passed out at my other club in the early evening. Nevertheless, will manage to find a cup of good cheer here and there as I make my way thru the Silent Night to my own little tree.

My friend and contributor, Shandy Gaff, has sent me a Christmas card in water colors from his own easel which depicts a scene of early Chicago. At dock in the river is a three-master, ready to sail, while quaint villagers cluster around it. By the boat is a jaunty figure in hunting dress, superintending the lading of a huge wastebasket, a typewriter, a geographic globe, and a stack of books. Mr. Gaff writes this legend for the drawing:

"Mr. Pepys stands by the boat Con-Trib, making last minute preparations for the trip. The dock is crowded with his followers who seek to make the journey with him; to give a helping hand and cheer the way.

"Beyond stand Fort Dearborn and John Kinzie's house, with the river winding thru lonely stretches into the distant haze. Far off a Great Fire lights the sky, and from the smoke, above the flames and clouds, great Towers of Progress rise in crowning triumph."

This masterpiece among Christmas cards will go into the permanent archives of Mr. Pepys, who now wishes all his contributors and readers a Christmas of communion with friends present and absent, and all the merriment that the times permit.

POEMS FOR PAM—XXI.

Here's your Christmas stocking darling—
Dig down in the toe.
There's a formal gown, wee one,
A string of pearls or so.
Down below the blocks, sweetheart,
Underneath the ring—
There's a scrap of paper. . . .
Does it look like anything?
Perhaps it's that sorority pin
That you will some day wear,
Plus a college wardrobe
To make the fellows stare.
Can't you see them, darling?
Don't you really know
They're in that war bond, wee one,
Deep down in the toe! B. J. K.

A Fine Night for Stars.

If Christmas eve is a night of clear sky, forsake the felicity of the punch bowl awhile, go out-of-doors, and look aloft. At midnight, almost overhead as you face south, you will see the planets Mars and Saturn, outshining the great stars of the constellation Orion, which will be close by. In the east, half way up, Jupiter will appear as a rich solitaire. When the day breaks, a brief view of Venus, almost as glorious as the star of Bethlehem, may be found, low in the southeast.

Then consider what the Lord said to Job:

"Canst thou bind the sweet influences of Pleiades, or loose the bands of Orion? Knowest thou the ordinances of heaven? Canst thou set the dominion thereof in the earth?"

THE HOLY EVE.

The roofs are white with angled spars
Of crystals winking to the stars;
So hushed, so tranquil is the scene
An angel host might pass unseen;
Each crystal plume of frost-work swings
As might the air be full of wings.
So close is heaven that the air
Is breathless with swift mounting prayer;
Like wreaths of vapor's frozen steam
White prayers of mothers upward stream.
S'Amuser.

Christmas Card Trouble.

I received a Christmas card from a soldier in Australia, showing pictures of an odd animal resembling a bear. Printed on the card were the words, Koala, Australia. There was the clew, safely past the censor; at last I would know just where he was.

Maps and atlases were closely studied; no Koala. I called THE TRIBUNE; the lady was polite but sorry, no Koala. Rand-McNally were next; they made a thoro search, no such town. Finally in desperation I called the British consulate. The lady answering the phone said she would look it up and call me. She called me a little later saying, "I am sorry, I cannot locate the town, but every one around here thinks it is a bear."

My face is still red. The Mud Hop.

THE CONSTANT LIGHT.

"For they that walk in darkness shall see light,"
Isaiah prophesied to Israel,
Then wandering in the shadow of a blight,
Their exile from their land and God as well.
So we today in lonely darkness go,
While brothers, sons, and lovers, lonely too,
Are striving to turn back the bitter foe
Of all that we have cherished as the true.
"A virgin shall conceive and bear a son;
Immanuel shall ye call His glorious name;
Messiah shall He be while rivers run,
And endless grow the luster of His fame."
That star which led the Wise our Lord to see
Will guide our men, wherever they may be.

The Christmas Trees.

Red spruce: For years the common Christmas tree; when grasped it is sharp to the touch; its short, sharp needles begin to fall off in a few days.

Douglas fir: Soft needles, blue-green, which do not fall off easily. It is advertised as the tree that does not shed its needles.

Balsam fir: Fragrant, dark green, flat needles set horizontally; it exhales the true odor of Christmas.

White pine: Used in many rural districts in the United States; long, soft needles in bundles of five; graceful cones tipped with white resin.

KLEPTOMANIA, A SUBSTITUTE FOR SATISFACTION.

IN KLEPTOMANIA the profit motive is lacking. The individual may wish to gloat over his acquisitions or perhaps admire them in secret. The culprit develops slyness and, as a rule, detection is difficult.

Apparently there is a pronounced failure in the patient's training or in his basic concept of ownership. Everything belongs to him that he can purloin without being caught. In all probability there are various grades of the malady, which the irresistible impulse to steal merges into true criminality.

The affliction occurs more frequently in young women than in men and boys. In fact, it is believed that whenever a male indulges in this acquisitive propensity, he represents the feminine type. In certain young women the episodes have been associated with the menstrual period. The explanation lies in nervous tension and emotional instability which may be present.

Occasionally the desire to possess the belongings of others will be linked with other physical symptoms. In one case, whenever a victim missed a meal, she would gratify her hunger by filching a knick-knack from a friend. Another girl stated that unless she could find some object which would quench her longing, nausea and vomiting would ensue.

The case of a 14 year old girl is reported by Lawrence. She exhibited several peculiar mannerisms and was having trouble with her school work, altho faithful in attendance.

Suddenly her intelligence mounted rapidly. From average marks she began to lead her class. But, coincident with this mental spurt, her companions began to miss purses, hats, articles of jewelry, etc. Her parents were well to do and she had no need for the merchandise and no occasion to use it. Her only explanation was that she could think better when she could satisfy the urge. When the tendency was repressed, her interest in her surroundings waned.

She was given a careful examination and mild attacks of dizziness were controled by means of a sedative. This appeared to be the only physical defect that could be unearthed.

Strange to relate, this girl was more normal and spontaneous when she gave free rein to her weakness and, despite all the moral lectures that were administered, she failed to register the slightest sign of repentance. During the interval when she was getting away with the largest amount of booty, she was the happiest. Her parents are now giving her their undivided attention and it would appear that the idiosyncrasy is under control. Six months have elapsed without a recurrence.

It goes without saying that if a motive can be discerned, cure is in sight. But if none can be found, the answer may lie in an emotional desire which can be compensated for in some other manner. In other words, we must substitute an abiding interest for the thrill of vicarious collecting.

TUBERCULOPHOBIA.

S. writes: For several years I have been most fearful of contracting tuberculosis to the extent that it has become an obsession. I am afraid to handle anything that may have been touched by the public. For this reason I am always washing my hands. Can you help me?

REPLY.

You can set your mind at rest because there is no danger in the open air. Furthermore, you can save many hand ablutions if you will make it a practice not to carry the fingers to the mouth. A rather long and close contact with one who is expectorating tubercle bacilli would be necessary in order to contract the disease.

MISSING FEVER.

L. A. writes: My mother had all the symptoms of the grippe—aching bones, cold in the head, and headache. But she did not have fever. No matter how ill she feels, she never runs a temperature. Isn't this unusual?

REPLY.

Yes—quite. The presence of fever indicates that the body is building resistance. In this respect, children react quickly; oldsters, tardily.

EAT IT.

Mrs. J. S. writes: When a person needs sulfur, what should he take?

REPLY.

You said it—sulfur. Mix it with molasses and it will go down without trouble.

REPLY.

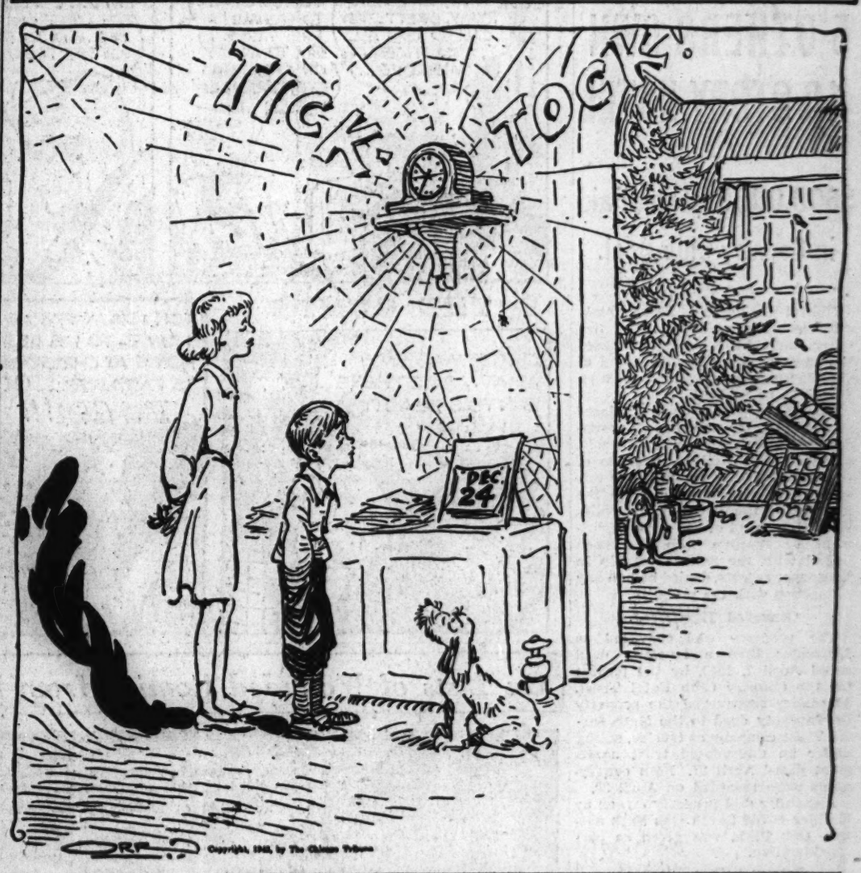
DECLARED BY EXPERTS TO BE THE LONGEST DAY IN THE YEAR



Front Views & Profiles

By MARCIA WINN

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Last Day.

The Christmas scene is rushing into consummation. Glimpse it while you may.

Stand in the dusk as the unquenchable carols of peace and good will and the Man and the Word drift across the frozen air into a world that constantly battles them.

Study the face of a child as he stands on the threshold of wonder and joy and kindness. These may never again be as close as a day.

Look at the gait of the lonely and alone as, torn from home and family by the exigencies of the war and the times, they walk past a world of lighted windows all beyond their grasp. Look at those in sudden reunion.

See the holly wreath placed side by side with the service flag with its star of blue and star of gold. See hope imperishable.

See the cold little man at the corner with sprigs of holly and bits of fir and conical trees of green. See the black headlines on the newsstand beside him.

See the lavishness and the luxury and the spending of the witless. Glimpse them all now, this extraordinary medley on the eve of Christmas of 1943. Maybe they, too, will pass as the firs turn brown and the holly berries fall and the cones of pine burn in the fireplace and the gay tinsel wrappings crumple in the trash and only the carols live on . . . and if you still have time, catch a glider to Erie, Pa., where a Christmas tree man advertises:

"Just received carload Fairview nursery trees. During storms we sell inside, also seats for elderly people. Last day we will serve ice cream and horseradish free."

'Twas the Night Before Christmas.

[From the 117th Review, written and published by Seabees of the 117th Battalion, Gulfport, Miss.]

'Twas the night before Christmas
when all thru the hut
The Seabees were dreaming of new scuttlebut;
Their gray socks were hung by the oil stove to dry
And also in hopes that St. Nick might come by:
When out on the road there arose such a clatter
I sprang from my cot to see what was the matter;
Thru the porthole I took an eye-filling peep
At a seagoing, ripsnorting, battered old jeep;
With a little old driver so lively and quick
He looked like a chief mate, but I knew 'twas St. Nick.
Fast as a bullet the contraption came,
He whistled and shouted and yelled a bad name:
"Now dash it! Now d——n it! You prancing tin vixen!
Don't go quite so fast . . . to stop here I'm fixin'."
Then straight up the roof the rattling jeep tore
With a racket that sounded like somebody's snore;
And then in a twinkling I heard somewhat higher
The scraping and treading of each rubber tire.
The moon turned her head and the stars blushed in shame
As down thru the vent old Santa's voice came:
"What kind of a tin can do Seabees call this?
O, for the days of brick chimneyed bliss!"
He slid down the side, a-stewing and fussing
And came thru the doorway puffing and cussing;
And then I saw not a toy on his back
But live pin-up girls jammed into his pack!
There were blondes and brunettes and a few redheads, too,
And the gleam in their eyes seemed to say, "I'm for you."
With voluptuous curves in quite scanty attire
They seemed to have stepped right out of Esquire;
With a smile Santa gave one to each sleeping mate
And then—but this I can hardly narrate—
I found to my sorrow, dismay, and great pain
They were wrapped in unbreakable cellophane!

HIS COWS ARE ON RELIEF.

Orland Park, Ill., Dec. 21.—"Now my cows are on relief," commented a dairyman as he cashed his first subsidy check.

His facetious remark covered up the deep feeling with which many farmers view the subsidy idea, even tho pressed by rising costs and rigid prices, they feel compelled to take the checks.

The stupid pretense that borrowed money will stop inflation has not deceived farmers. Neither has the wrapping of phony idealism succeeded in hiding the political racketeering which conceived the subsidies. Few farmers will ever be able to cash subsidy checks without the uneasy feeling that the money was designed to buy their votes.

The deep felt resentment of Americans against tricky schemes to perpetuate administration power has been indicated. Kentucky's 4th congressional district spoke its piece Nov. 29.

The 4th district did more than to declare the New Deal too dead to buy its way to continued power. It spoke a warning to Republicans that the people are looking for servants, not masters, and servants of proved integrity and patriotism. HOUSEWIFE.

ECONOMY PLANK SUGGESTIONS.

Chicago, Dec. 15.—Why not have identical planks in the platforms of both parties on public expenditures? Here are suggestions from former Democratic Presidents:

Jefferson: "I am for a government rigorously frugal and simple, applying all the possible savings of the public revenue to the discharge of the national debt; and not merely by a multiplication of officers and salaries merely to make partisans, and for increasing by every means the public debt, on the principle of it being a public blessing."

Cleveland: "The waste of public money is a crime against the citizen. It is a plain dictate of honesty and good government that public expenditures should be limited by public necessity, and that this should be measured by the rules of strict economy."

HARRY BIERMA.

"DEMAND."

Chicago, Dec. 20.—I bet Mr. Morgenthau got a good laugh from the letter Mr. Herbert S. Simpson of Evanston wrote him. While Mr. Simpson objects in no uncertain terms to the use of the word "demand," he evidently overlooks the fact that in his everyday handling of paper money he exercises the privilege of a "demand" against his government at any time, as is evidenced by these words visible on the $1 silver certificate issued over the signature of the secretary of the treasury: "This certifies that there is on deposit in the treasury of the United States of America one dollar in silver payable to the bearer on demand."

ANCHOR WATCH.

FOR GOODNESS SAKE!

Chicago, Dec. 18.—I have been reading about the proposed railroad strike. I have reservations for a train trip to Springfield, Ill., Dec. 25, returning Dec. 30. Let the railroad people strike if they want to, but I do not want my trip interfered with.

Incidentally, to any one who wants their wages or salaries raised, I want them to understand that I need a raise as much as anybody, and whatever I do about it will be done in a nice way. CHARLES ECHOLS.

SEES A LEATHER SHORTAGE.

Chicago, Dec. 14.—We in the shoe manufacturing business see the end of our production of civilian goods rapidly approaching if the New Deal doubles its giveaway plan in January, 1944. The lend-lease allotments of leather have been doubled for the months of January, February, and March, and the tanners have been given good reason to expect this to continue thru the first half of 1944. Our army has changed its combat boot so that the consumption of upper leather will be 70 per cent greater than it has been in the regular army shoe. This is on account of the height of this new boot.

When you add these two elements together it looks as tho the income producing part of our society is about to close up shop. Where they are going to get the money to pay for this giveaway, lend-lease program, nobody knows. It would seem to me that it is high time for the congress of our country to take definite action against giving away needed materials to foreign countries whose need may not be any greater than our own.

THE McINTOSH VERDICT.

Chicago, Dec. 21.—Just finished reading the headlines offered to the public tonight regarding the McIntosh court martial. Is there no justice or any semblance of justice to be seen in this world of ours? An officer strikes a man in a hospital. He is not even reprimanded—no, he is even given the blessing of the commander in chief and cited for promotion. A buck private goes a bit astray, nobody is hurt, restitution is made, what does he get. A court martial gives him 10 years at hard labor. PAUL A. LA ROCQUE.

THE SERGEANT SPEAKS UP.

Camp Ellis, Ill., Dec. 13.—Why has it taken you men so long to write an editorial like the one, "Sinatra Gets a Pass"?

It is common knowledge that draft boards took tool designers out of plane factories; skilled farmers off farms, and so forth, just to meet some paper quota. I know some of these men, as I have talked to them.

You people can still point out to the public that these men can be returned to civil life for the benefit of us all. I want you to do it. STAFF SGT. O.

The Store of the Christmas Spirit

Silent lies the Town this Holy Night

because our skies hold only stars on Christmas Eve, because our children can still anticipate a gift-laden tree, because our youth is brave at war,
because we can face the future unafraid,
silent lies the town this holy night;
silent in solemn acknowledgment of its blessings, silent in solemn awareness of its responsibilities.

Stress Warmth in New Attire for Midwinter

BY REA SEEGER.

There's a nice comforting emphasis on warmth in virtually everything designed for wear during midwinter weeks. Charm and color haven't been sacrificed to achieve this warmth, nor fashion either, for some of the gayest loot is the stuff that assures warmth. Wool blouses have long sleeves, a high neckline, and all the ruffles and trim detail of chiffons or satins. Wool waistcoats are as colorful and swank as anything, and wool gloves fit as smoothly as the kidskins.

There are long sleeved nightgowns in flannelette and crepe. These are cut from the same patterns as summer gowns, have soft feminine frills, details of tucks, and embroidery. They're anything but the stern, practical things they sound. Flannelettes are young and gay with cotton fringe trim to make the most of floral patterns and pastel colorings. Flannelette sleeping pajamas likewise are easy to look at and comfortable. Even the machine knitted affairs are feminized, prettied up to make you forget how dreary and dull these atrocities used to be. Bed socks to match have been thoughtfully supplied.

Warm lisle hosiery goes dress parade with decorative lace clocks at the sides and comes in grand flattering street neutrals, as thin in appearance as silks. These stockings are ideal with winter tweed suits or wool daytime dresses and heavy walking brogues. Other foot warming finds are the lounging socks with trick soles. These have been copied from the ski accessories, for lounging indoors after a day in the cold. They have festive yarn embroidered decoration up the instep and certainly have all the warmth and cozy comfort any foot requires.

GRANDMOTHER SAID: "I'LL TAKE DR. PRICE'S VANILLA!"

And I say it, too . . . because Dr. Price's pure vanilla is so completely full of extra goodness. A vanilla that is real and undiluted.

BY MARY MEADE.

It isn't too late to make plans for tomorrow's breakfast, but if you have forgotten the importance of the occasion let a special Christmas bread come to the rescue. Any one of these will lend a cheerful note to the morning repast. Fruit filled crescents, cardamon flavored julekage, and an old fashioned English loaf are a few of the yeast breads which have won popularity thru the years, and the quick coffee cake containing bits of bright, red cranberries is another favorite.

These festive breads are decorative enough to serve as dessert or as accompaniments to a friendly cup of coffee when guests drop in during the holidays.

Christmas Stollen.
[Three rolls.]

1 cup scalded milk
2 cakes yeast
½ cup sugar
1 cup shortening
3 eggs
4½ cups sifted flour
½ teaspoon salt
½ teaspoon mace
Filling:
1 cup dates, cut fine
½ cup chopped candied cherries
1 slice candied pineapple, chopped
½ cup chopped pecans

Cool scalded milk to lukewarm. Soften yeast in small amount of sugar and cream remaining sugar with shortening until light. Add beaten eggs, salt, and mace. Add 2 cups of flour with liquefied yeast to milk and beat until smooth. Add to creamed mixture, with remaining flour, and knead until smooth and elastic, using about ½ cup flour on board. Place dough in greased mixing bowl, cover, and let rise until double in bulk. Divide into three equal parts. Roll each part into triangle ½ inch thick. Brush with melted margarine and cover with filling. Roll up, starting at wide end. Pull rolls into crescent shape, place on greased cookie sheets, cover, and let rise until light, about 1½ hours. Bake at 350 degrees for about 45 minutes. [To prepare filling, combine dates, cherries, pineapple, and pecans.]

Julekage.
[Two large loaves.]

½ cup margarine or other shortening
3 tablespoons sugar
2 cups milk
1 or 2 cakes yeast
3 tablespoons lukewarm water
3 eggs, well beaten
6½ cups flour
1 cup raisins
1 cup currants
1 cup candied citron, chopped
½ teaspoon ground cardamon seeds

Add margarine or other shortening and sugar to scalded milk. Cool to lukewarm and add 2 cups of flour. Beat thoroly. Add yeast, softened in 3 tablespoons warm water, and eggs. Add fruits and remaining flour, to which cardamon has been added. Stir until stiff, then knead until dough is smooth and doesn't stick to board. Place in greased bowl and cover. Let rise in a warm place until light. Knead down lightly and place in greased loaf pans or form pans. Brush over with milk and sprinkle with granulated sugar. Let rise until doubled and bake in a 375 degree oven for an hour.

Old English Christmas Bread.
[Two large loaves.]

½ cup margarine or other shortening
3 teaspoons salt
½ cup sugar
1½ cups boiling water
2 cakes yeast
¼ cup luke warm water
1 cup currants
¼ teaspoon nutmeg
¾ cup raisins
¼ cup chopped citron
¼ cup candied orange peel, chopped
1 teaspoon caraway seed
1 teaspoon allspice
6 cups flour [approximately]

Combine shortening, salt, sugar, and boiling water. Cool to lukewarm and add yeast softened in ¼ cup lukewarm water. Add remaining ingredients and knead thoroly, until dough is smooth and elastic. Let rise overnight. Because of fruit it will take longer than usual to rise. Bowl should be well covered and kept away from drafts during rising. Knead down and shape into loaves. Place in greased pans and let rise, covered with a clean cloth, until light. Bake in a hot oven [400 degrees] for 10 minutes. Reduce heat to 325 degrees and bake an hour and a half longer.

Quick Cranberry Breakfast Ring.

1 cup raw cranberries
½ cup sugar
1¾ cups flour
2 teaspoons baking powder
½ teaspoon salt
3 tablespoons shortening
1 egg
⅔ cup milk
Grated rind of ½ lemon
½ cup flour [additional]
2 tablespoons brown sugar
1 teaspoon cinnamon
3 tablespoons margarine

Chop cranberries and add 2 tablespoons sugar; let stand a few minutes. Sift remaining sugar with flour, baking powder, and salt, and work in shortening. Beat egg with milk, stir into dry ingredients, and blend well. Fold in sugared cranberries and lemon rind. Transfer to greased 9 inch, deep layer cake pan. Cover with topping made by blending additional flour, brown sugar and cinnamon with margarine. Bake in hot oven [400 degrees] about 30 minutes.

TURN IN WASTE FATS FOR POINTS AND PENNIES.

Wise Mother Helps Holiday Run Smoothly

BY GLADYS HUNTINGTON BEVANS.

[Copyright: 1943: By News Syndicate Co., Inc.]

Do you want the children—I'm talking now especially of the youngest—to be sick the day after Christmas, or so tired and let down that they're cross and miserable?

Perhaps you think that's a silly question—yet it's exactly what happens in many families where either the grownups have no foresight or the mother is inexperienced.

Here are a few suggestions, gained by sad experience, to help you to run Christmas and the day after smoothly for your children.

One practical way to make their day go well is to start the night before and see that they get to bed early.

The next measure is to "subtract" them on Christmas day from the family gathering and let them take their usual nap, or, if they can't do that, rest in a quiet darkened room. This gives them a fresh start in enjoyment, and later adds a certain amount of poise which keeps them from being irritable and "touchy" with other children, as well as grownups. Children get keyed up by Christmas doings.

As to food—young children can have "goodies" that are really good for them, so that they don't feel shut out of that festive side of the Christmas celebration. If they're going to have candy, avoid letting them dip into boxes of rich chocolates. If dessert is a plum pudding with a rich sauce or hot mince pie, provide for them a lighter dessert, such as ice cream or sherbet, with simple cookies in Santa Claus shapes. Most young children brought up to eat sensibly at all times and at the table with their grownups don't beg and argue for the richer foods their elders may be served.

When their bed time approaches, don't ignore it completely. Keep a weather eye on them and the clock, and whisk them off before their tiredness makes a little fiasco of the end of the day.

All this not only adds to Christmas day pleasure but prevents the day-after slump of irritability and tiredness, and even a serious digestive upset.

Ham for Holiday Table

The choice of ham for Christmas or New Year's dinner is wise. The baked ham may be brought to the festive table garnished in a manner unsurpassed by any holiday turkey or goose. Bake ham fat side up on a rack in an open roasting pan at 300 degrees, and allow 25 minutes per pound (one-quarter less time for the completely tenderized hams). Thirty minutes before ham is done, remove from oven, cover surface with brown sugar, and garnish with flowers made from maraschino cherries with citron stems.

Marion Carry to Have Debut at Tea Today

BY JUDITH CASS.

ONE of the gayest of the holiday parties is the debut tea which Mr. and Mrs. Champ Carry are giving from 4 to 7 p. m. today at the Casino for their daughter, Miss Marion Carry. Young friends of Miss Carry, as well as contemporaries of her parents and family friends, have been invited to the reception.

The bud, who is called Nonny, her parents, and her grandmother, Mrs. W. Irving Osborne, will receive guests in the foyer of the club. Miss Carry, who attends Sarah Lawrence college, will wear a romantic gown of shell pink lace and ninon. She will be assisted by Miss Diana Prosser, Miss Helen Priebe, Miss Ann Porter, Miss Jean Scharin, Miss Patricia McLaughlin, Miss Kyle Adams, Miss Dodie Law, Miss Barbara Straw, and Miss Jere Manierre.

After the tea a few of the young persons will remain at the club for a small dinner-dance.

Red and white flowers will add a holiday note to the Crystal room of the Woman's Athletic club when Miss Dodie Law makes her debut at a luncheon there at 1 p. m. today. About 65 young women will be gathered at the club for the party which the junior Robert O. Laws are giving to introduce their younger daughter. The bud's grandmother, Mrs. David M. Oberman, has come from Jefferson City, Mo., to share in the debut and Christmas festivities. She will leave tomorrow night for her home, and at the same time Miss Law will depart for Naples, Fla., to spend the remainder of her vacation from Pine Manor with Mrs. Glen Sample and her daughter, Sally.

On Today's Calendar.

Carrying on a family tradition of three generations, Rush C. Butler Jr. will don the family's handsome fur trimmed Santa Claus suit and arrive in the Wilmette home of Mr. and Mrs. Robert H. Gardner late this afternoon to have a heart to heart chat with the Gardners' young ward, Michael Benn, and about 10 of his closest friends. The senior Mr. Butler and his father both have played Santa to Winnetka children, and their appearances always have been a high point of the Christmas season.

In addition to the party for young Michael, the Gardners will be having a family Christmas day party, made doubly gay this year by the presence of Mrs. Gardner's brother, Samuel Douglas Flood Jr., back on his first visit in more than four years. He has been abroad with the United States consular service.

The eggnogs and Tom and Jerrys that are ladled out of the wassail bowls from 5 to 7 p. m. today in the Tavern club lounge will be used to toast absent members in the army and navy. Several hundred guests are expected at the annual party, and during the afternoon Actress Peggy Wood will receive an honorary membership.

The Cliff Dwellers will serve Tom and Jerrys and eggnog from 11:30 a. m. to 2:30 p. m. today.

Mr. and Mrs. Edmund F. Mansure are celebrating their fifth wedding anniversary today.

Here and There.

There seems to be an unprecedented curiosity about who won the prizes offered at the Travelers Aid society benefit last Saturday night at the Drake, with regard especially to the stunning gold evening purse and the gold money clip that were the pieces de resistance. The gold purse was carried home by Mrs. Bennett Harvey, and George W. Dixon now possesses the clip.

Miss Alice Donohue, a staff member of the society; Mrs. D. Wendell Fentress, a member of the woman's board which arranged the benefit, and Mrs. Burr Robbins, have new Christmas hats as a result of the party, while a volunteer worker, Miss Margaret Hammer, and Mrs. George Fry have $100 war bonds to tuck in their Christmas stockings. To Mrs. Gardiner B. Van Ness went a case of Bourbon whisky, valuable property nowadays, and over which her daughter-in-law, Mrs. Van Ness Jr., stood guard, as the senior Mrs. Van Ness wasn't present. A case of Scotch whisky went to Robert Pollack. To the Travelers Aid will go more than $7,000, an increase of $2,000 over last year's benefit profits.

Mrs. William J. Kelly is entertaining at luncheon at the Casino Wednesday for two of the season's debutantes, Miss Alice Warner and Miss Joan Monroe. Next Monday,

White Collar GIRL

BY RUTH MAC KAY.

Christmas, 1943.

Once she wore a sprig of holly
On her collar white;
Now she wears a service pin
Shining small and bright.

Once she gazed at mistletoe
Hanging over head;
Now she peers into the night
And sees a star instead.

And prays, "Perhaps it shines tonight
Where he is fast asleep,
And if he's safe and sound, dear Lord,
Then I—I shall not weep!" M.

Suggestions, Please.

Quick, suggestions, please . . . what is the poor secretary to do who must acknowledge calendars, engagement pads, billfolds, and such? Can you think of a hundred different ways of saying — "Just what I wanted"? MAME.

The Postman Rings.

Perhaps you might not call her a white collar girl. For many years she has been a housekeeper in a near north side apartment.

When the postman rings these holiday mornings, every one in the building rushes down for the mail. But who receives all the letters? Not the platinum blonde on the third floor . . . not the pretty young woman whose husband is in the air forces. No . . . the housekeeper gets all the mail.

The explanation? She has 12 grown children, some in service, all of them scattered. Among themselves they have decided to give mother something of a whirl this Christmas. So, each one has sent her a Christmas card a day for the last week. The mailman always has them on top of the pile. Somehow, he senses the deep and endearing significance of those notes to mother, which somehow seem more important than the letters to the platinum blonde, or even the service wife who wears her wings so proudly.

White Collar Christmas.

Funny, no one has mentioned as yet, "I'm dreaming of a white collar Christmas. . . ." SALLY.

It's Different This Year.

They played Christmas carols over the shipyard radio sound system the other day—"Silent Night . . . Holy Night," "O, Come All Ye Faithful," "The First Noel," yes, and "Jingle Bells" and "I'm Dreaming of a White Christmas, "I'll Be Home for Christmas," and, well, you must have heard them, too!

But somehow it's different this year. I mean Christmas. When you consider the tragedies, happiness, uncertainty, hectic work, and what all—well—it's different this year!

I walked thru the yard, down to the dock. While waiting for a tool checker to return I found myself looking out the doorway watching people walk past — how different Christmas was going to be for them this year—and I made up my mind, then and there, that next Christmas was going to be different—because I'm going to help to make it different!

Women in War Work

—By Kate Massee—

Workers in the room registry service of the Y. W. C. A., in coöperation with the U. S. O., will have no holiday Christmas day, because their services will be much in demand by visiting wives, sweethearts, mothers, and other relatives of service men stationed in Chicago.

Miss Hazel Watson and her staff are not fretting about losing their leisure, however. They will be satisfied that they have done something special for Christmas in helping strangers in Chicago to find comfortable quarters over the holidays.

The registry at 59 East Monroe street will be open from noon to 8 p. m. Christmas day. Chicagoans with housing facilities to offer should contact the office, Randolph 2420. There are thousands of requests for accommodations each month.

Some of the 2,100 gift bags which the Girl Scouts of Chicago have packed for hospitalized service men will be distributed tomorrow morning in the wards of McIntyre dispensary at Great Lakes Naval Training station by the camp and hospital committee of the Chicago chapter of the American Red Cross, the chairman of which is Mrs. Rudolph W. Glasner.

Last week the Red Cross motor corps transported the gift bags to the station, to await the Christmas festivities. Every Chicago troop of the Scouts packed an average of five bags each for the project. Mrs. David Blank, war service chairman of the Scouts' board of directors, and Mrs. Snelling Robinson, program chairman, supervised the packing.

A special kind of holiday remembrance for service men has been the pre-Christmas project of Post 7 of the WOWs [woman ordnance workers] at the Ammunition Container corporation, Harvey, Ill.

Miss Margaret Reed, president of the post, inaugurated the slogan and its fulfillment, "a pint of blood for a Yank for Christmas." A mobile donor unit was moved into the Whittier school in Harvey, and plant workers, in addition to members of the WOW post, contributed many pints of blood for plasma.

The post women also purchased prayer books for all religious denominations and sent them to service men in time for Christmas.

Service men and women who drop in over the holidays at the Waukegan U. S. O. club, 150 South Sheridan road, will receive hospitality in Old English Christmas surroundings. The decorations are the work of the Women's Service organization and the Girls' Service organization [G. S. O.]. Mrs. Lee M. Perry was in charge of decorating the club for the Christmas season.

Women in uniform will be prominent in numbers in the audience of 21,000 service men and women, including ranking personnel, at the special preview performance at 8:30 o'clock tonight of the Hollywood Ice Follies, starring Sonja Henie. After the show, women in navy blue, khaki, and forestry green will go, with their guests, to the loop service men's centers, 176 West Washington street and 430 South Michigan avenue, for refreshments.

[This department reports on women's war activities and answers questions regarding such activities.]

Natural History Museum Will Close for Holidays

The Chicago Natural History museum will be closed Christmas and New Year's days, the only days in the entire year when visitors are not admitted. The closing is to permit employes to spend the two holidays with their families. "Our Neighbors to the South" is the subject of today's guide lecture tour at the museum, to be conducted at 2 p. m. by Roberta Cramer.

Gay Christmas Is Assured for Men in Service

With pre-Christmas parties over, service men's organizations in the city yesterday concentrated on completing the gift wrapping, decorating, and other arrangements for the celebrations tonight and tomorrow which will high light Chicago's third war time holiday season.

There was a breathing spell in the Christmas rush as shopping crowds thinned out, and Postmaster Ernest J. Kruetgen reported an ebb in the volume of first class mail, which reached a peak of 16,000,000 pieces Tuesday. The parcel post peak of 137,596 sacks was attained Dec. 18. The 2,000 service men who have been helping at the postoffice were dismissed yesterday afternoon.

Many service men will spend Christmas eve at the Chicago stadium tonight as guests at a preview of Sonja Henie's Hollywood Ice Follies. Afterward loop cafe and club entertainers will entertain at the Chicago service men's centers at 176 West Washington street and 430 South Michigan avenue thru the early morning hours. All the centers, including the one at 50 East 49th street, will be open all night.

Gifts for service men were being wrapped yesterday, and more are needed, it was announced. Contributions of either gifts or money may be left at 430 South Michigan avenue.

Olivia De Havilland, movie star, attended the children's Christmas party at the army's Gardiner General hospital yesterday and later visited the wards.

There were small parties last night at the U. S. O. centers at 131 and 1120 South Wabash avenue in preface to the bigger events tonight. The center at 131 South Wabash avenue will be open all night. Christmas eve and Christmas day plans also include the center at 230 North Wabash avenue and U. S. O. clubs in Highland Park, Highwood, North Chicago, and Waukegan. At the U. S. O. troops-in-transit lounges in the six major terminals in Chicago there are Christmas trees, and there will be gifts for all those in uniform who visit them tomorrow.

Christmas dinners at the service clubs will be turkey and trimmings. Turkey also is on the menu for Fort Sheridan, Great Lakes, and Navy pier. At Fort Sheridan Col. John T. Rhett, commanding officer, announced yesterday that men detained there in the rehabilitation center were sending their wives and children gifts. North Shore residents provided the gifts, which are packed with a card from the man in camp as donor.

Many of the sailors at Navy pier will eat dinner with Chicagoans tomorrow, but those not being entertained in private homes will be served in the mess halls. At Great Lakes there will be 61,000 pounds of turkey served from noon until 4:30 p. m. tomorrow.

United States day yesterday closed the second annual series of Christmas programs honoring the allied nations at the Museum of Science and Industry.

Men of War Will Participate in Tribute to Man of Peace

BY THE REV. JOHN EVANS.

Chicago's chance for a white Christmas to be ushered in at midnight tonight seemed slim last night in the mind of United States Weather Forecaster H. L. Jacobson. But along with only a glimmer of hope for snow, the weather forecaster foresaw the break of the cold wave and rising temperatures thruout today for the benefit of the thousands of devout persons who will worship tonight before the birthday altar of Christ the King.

The military flavor of Christmas this year will be greatly increased over last year, not only because enlistments in the various services have taken approximately 10 per cent of the congregational memberships of all churches, with many candlelight ceremonies dedicated to honor rolls, but also by religious observances in all military establishments.

Thruout the days of the approach of Christmastide, chaplains of all services have carried extra burdens. Tonight and tomorrow chapels will be thronged at festival services. All year long the chaplain serves the spiritual, and often temporal, needs of men and women of all ranks, and of civilian personnel.

But at this season the chaplain must bridge the miles between those who serve their country and the folks back home, and bring all the meaning of Christmas to members of his unit. This not only means the conservation of the feast of the Nativity of Jesus Christ with its deep religious meaning, but also the third war time celebration of the season must have its Santas, Christmas trees, and puddings, turkey, and fixings.

Foreseen tonight at Fort Sheridan are crowded chapels for midnight mass for Catholic soldiers and Christmas eve services for Protestant soldiers. Services also will be held tomorrow morning.

"We expect huge crowds," said Capt. Otto K. Johas, post chaplain. "Last year all three chapels were full for all the services. Now that new units have joined our camp we probably will have to hold extra services. We will have to use extra chaplains."

Week-end celebrations will begin this afternoon at all naval units from Great Lakes, world's largest training station, to Chicago's south side. This afternoon, several thousand sailors will gather in Navy pier auditorium for carol singing, accompanied by the station band.

Altho a few Protestant churches of the city observed the religious aspects of Christmas last Sunday, the devotional custom sets midnight tonight as the beginning of the festival for nearly all occidental Christians. Archbishop Samuel A. Stritch, in the traditionally famous gold vestments, will be the celebrant at the midnight solemn pontifical high mass at Holy Name cathedral tonight. Carols will begin at 11:30 p. m. The Cathedral choristers, under the direction of the Rev. Charles Meter, will sing the festival musical setting.

Bishop Bernard J. Sheil will be the celebrant at the midnight solemn pontifical mass at St. Andrew's church, Addison and Paulina streets, and Bishop William D. O'Brien will be celebrant at old St. John's church, 18th and South Clark streets. Nearly all Catholic churches schedule midnight masses, with hourly services beginning usually at 5 a. m. tomorrow and continuing until noon.

Virtually all Episcopal churches of the diocese will celebrate Christmas eucharists at midnight, with Bishop Wallace E. Conkling the celebrant at St. Luke's church, Evanston, in services beginning at 11:30 p. m. An exception to the midnight schedule will be St. James' church, Wabash and Huron streets, where a carol and candlelight service will be held at 5 p. m. today, and the Christmas celebration of holy communion at 11 a. m. tomorrow.

A recital on the 43 bell Crane Memorial carillon will usher in Christmas observances at St. Chrysostom's Episcopal church, 1424 Dearborn parkway, beginning at 10:40 p. m. The bells will be played by Dr. Harold B. Simonds, carillonneur, organist, and choirmaster of the church. Dr. Dudley S. Stark will celebrate the midnight eucharist.

Nurses at St. Luke's hospital will sing carols in the corridors of the hospital tonight preceding the midnight eucharist in the chapel.

A distinctive mark of Lutheran Christmas services is the early morning service on Christmas day. Julatta is the name of the service in churches of Scandinavian origin. For example, St. Paul's Evangelical Lutheran church, 7619 Dorchester avenue, will hold children's services late this afternoon and tonight, and an early morning service at 6 a. m. tomorrow. Luther Schwartzkopf, seminarian from Concordia college, St. Louis, will be the morning speaker. At 10:45, Pastor Edwin H. Pflug, will deliver the Christmas sermon on "Joy to the World—Fact or Fancy."

The Christmas preacher at Sunday Evening club, Orchestra hall, Sunday night will be the Rev. Richard J. Williams of Scranton, Pa. Prof. Arthur H. Compton of the University of Chicago will read the Scripture lesson. . . . The Salvation Army will complete a week of special Christmas observances Sunday night with a party for young persons at the army's settlement, 3053 South Normal parkway, and a Sunday school party at the settlement Monday night.

INSTALMENT XXXV.

LOST IN GAP.

Reynolds rose and looked at the other. "I don't get it. Where could they have gone?"

"Search me." Delavan added: "They could of lit out for home."

"Did they take their horses?"

"No. Probably they figured they would have been seen if they tried it."

"They haven't started to walk home. That's a cinch." Reynolds moved another step forward on the problem. "And they are not running out on us. They're fighting fools, both of them. More likely they are trying to pull something on their own. Cross didn't like it when he wasn't chosen to run this round-up."

"That's so." Delavan considered. "I reckon he is pulling a fast one to show how much better he could of done."

"I expect they will be back in a little while. They can't have gone far." But Reynolds was disturbed.

He joined the rest of the party. They were discussing the absence of their companions.

"We ought never to have started on a Friday, and 13 of us," a sandy freckled cowboy moaned.

"We ought never to have started with Cross," Oldfield differed bluntly.

"They must of slipped away down that draw," another guessed. "But what for?"

Reynolds answered bitterly. "To prove how smart they are and to show me up. You chose the wrong major-domo, boys."

They heard the faint far sound of a shot, and before the silence had fairly closed in on it, another. Three or four more followed.

"That shooting is between here and Cal's hide-out," Morgan said.

Oldfield hazarded a guess. Their idea was to get Cal, then come back and brag to us about it. Looks to me like they have slipped up."

Another shot came to them, like the pop of a distant firecracker.

"They are probably in a jam," Reynolds commented sharply. We'll have to go rescue them."

"And after that, what?" Delavan inquired angrily. Word will spread we are here. We'll have to fight our way out."

"Yes," Reynolds assented. "They will come swarming at us like a bunch of hornets. But the damage is already done. The point is, do we try to save Cross and Hack? I say yes."

"Then let's slap our saddles on and get going," Oldfield snapped.

As they galloped up to the lip of the mountain park, Manson found himself knee to knee with Reynolds. "We ought to let 'em fry in their own juice," he complained sourly. We'll probably lose several men trying to get them out of the tight spot they are in."

Reynolds nodded grimly. "Yes. But we can't leave them to die without lifting a hand."

"I know. But they got no right to put us up against such a proposition."

The sound of more shooting came to them. Reynolds put his horse to a canter. From the summit he looked down a long steep slope dotted with scrub pines. A man with a rifle lay crouched there. Reynolds recognized Cross. He saw no sign of Hack.

Reckless Reynolds dashed down the hill, Chris Morgan at his heels. He pulled up beside Cross.

"Where's Hack?" he cried.

"They got him, plumb thru the heart," Cross answered.

"Get on behind me."

From a draw below them a shot whistled along the shoulder of the hill. Morgan's hand caught at the horn of his saddle. His heavy body swayed and pitched to the ground. Cross seized the rein of the horse and Reynolds dismounted.

"Dead," Reynolds said, and vaulted to the saddle.

On Morgan's horse Cross followed him up the hill. Bullets whipped past them as they rode.

As Reynolds looked back from the cut leading into the park he saw men below swinging into the saddle. No doubt messengers were already on the way to summon reinforcements.

Oldfield, Delavan, and Christy gathered around him. Without slackening their pace they talked over the situation. Their hope had been to surprise Cad Clemson, rub him out, and in the darkness push on to get the other men on their black list. There was no chance of that now. They would be lucky to escape with their lives. It was decided to abandon the pack animals and the supplies.

Austin shifted to ease himself in the saddle. He spoke with quiet confidence. "We're all right, boys. There isn't going to be any attack, not right away. Clemson can't get his men gathered before morning, and by that time we ought to be getting out of the gap. Those fellows below are just keeping an eye on us to see where we go. The one important thing is for us to stick together."

"Nothing to worry about," Oldfield added in support of Reynolds. "Too many of us. They would lose a dozen men trying to clean us up. Cad isn't fool enough for that."

Christy and Delavan led the advance. The rear was brought up by Oldfield and Reynolds. With them rode Cross. He slumped dejectedly in the saddle, all the arrogant obstinacy for the moment stricken out of him.

Dusk came over the land and then darkness. Later the sky was lit by stars and a moon at times obscured by scudding clouds. With Morgan gone they were forced to stop more than once to decide on the way to go.

At last Delavan pulled up. "I don't know whether we are right or not," he said.

"I'm wondering about that," Christy replied. "The direction seems okay. But that doesn't mean a thing if we get balled up in some of these canons that twist around every which way."

Others took a hand in the discussion. Only one of them had ever been in the gap before, and it turned out that he had no sense of direction. It was decided to follow the gulch at the mouth of which they had halted. After they had reached the upper end of it, to come out on a long prong which overlooked an undulating floor that concealed a dozen defiles and gorges. Reynolds felt a cold sinking at his stomach. His eyes met those of Oldfield. Each read in the gaze of the other the admission that they were lost.

After another hour of travel Delavan again called for a huddle.

"No use loadin' ourselves, boys," he told the others. "I throw in my hand. It's a busted flush. I don't know where we are."

Orchestra Does Yule Concert in Defauw Style

Concert by the Chicago Symphony orchestra, Désiré Defauw conducting. Presented at Orchestra hall Thursday evening, Dec. 23, 1943, and scheduled for repetition Friday afternoon. The program:

Pastorale from "Christmas Oratorio" .....Bach
Suite No. 2, B minor, for Strings and Flute.....Bach
[Flue obbligato by Ernest Liegl.]
Prelude to "Hansel and Gretel" .. .. Humperdinck
Symphony No. 2, D major.....Sibelius

BY CLAUDIA CASSIDY.

The Chicago Symphony orchestra put its Christmas tree and its Christmas concert on display at Orchestra hall last night, the one a festive affair all silver and gold strewn with angelic dolls of the allied nations singing carols, the other an assemblage of Bach, Humperdinck and Beethoven. Désiré Defauw was back at the helm, and again he left his highly personal imprint on the orchestra and the music.

Mr. Defauw admires brilliant and grandiose effects, and once he gets hold of a ravishing tone he is reluctant to part with it. He is less concerned with immaculate structure than with shiny surfaces, and often defeats his own purpose by driving the orchestra until it sounds muddy and lifeless.

But usually when this happens, as in the extraordinarily confused finale of Sibelius' Second Symphony, he recovers with the coda like an acrobat who has recaptured his balance after some dizzy gyrations across the tight rope—and again like that acrobat he often gets twice as much applause because the journey seemed so difficult.

The D major symphony is a superbly dramatic work, often as arrestingly lovely as the flight of wild birds glimpsed high in a northern sky. It has richness of scoring, but a certain austerity of character, a bold clarity of outline both challenging and aloof. Yet Mr. Defauw made the andante sound as if Tschaikowsky might have written it. Instead of somber musing signed with the exquisitely exact plucked downstrokes, it was a lament that stretched its line far beyond those very strokes that are its signature. There was beauty in it, because our orchestra was playing it, but it was not the beauty of Sibelius, which is its birthright.

Some of this tendency to distort the music crept into the Bach, too, particularly in interminable endings that refused to acknowledge the clean cut period. It was more noticeable in the lovely Suite in B minor than in the frail charms of the "Christmas Oratorio," but the Suite was irresistible, as always with the Chicago Symphony, because Ernest Liegl's flute is a treasure of tone, musicianship, and virtuosity. The prelude to "Hansel and Gretel" quite missed the fairy tale loveliness of the score in what was perilously close to hack performance.

Looking at Hollywood

—By Hedda Hopper—

HOLLYWOOD, Cal., Dec. 23.—Paramount bought Miles Connolly's original "Make Way for O'Sullivan" for Alan Ladd. Johnny Farrow will direct and Joe Sistrom produces. It's about a boy watched over by two angels in heaven. He has more bad marks than good, until he joins the air forces and falls in love. Then his good marks go soaring. He crashes, but angels see to it that he comes down by parachute. Sounds a bit like "Mr. Jordan." That was good, too. . . . John Garfield's gotten over the itch to go back to the theatuh. His agent's working out a straight seven year deal at Warner's without options. . . . H. Allen Smith didn't re-sign with Paramount. He's got to finish another book for summer release. Its title—"Like Elephants, I Remember." That has dash and spice.

Now Is the Time for It.

Jennifer Jones as Bernadette seemed to glow with an inner light, and was so real she made other actors appear as tho they were overacting. "Song of Bernadette" will get attention everywhere, even tho it is over long. A word of praise for Bill Goetz, whose name on the screen was so small you could scarcely see it. Praise, too, for George Seaton, Henry King, and Bill Perlberg. It was a mighty undertaking. . . . Laraine Day's husband is bringing six soldiers down from Lancaster for Christmas dinner with her. You can bet that dinner will be without gold braid. Says Laraine, "I won't even use my gold plates!"

Jennifer Jones. Bill Goetz. Laraine Day.

Good, Then, Too.

Lum and Abner, beside writing their own script, have turned out one for their next picture. It's "Country Boy." Seems to me they'll have to clear the rights to that title from Edgar Selwyn. He wrote "The Country Boy" years ago, and the reason I know is, I played the country girl. Go on, laugh! . . . Cary Grant had himself a time playing Santa Claus to the Hollywood Women's Press club when he handed out those golden apples. . . . Dick Haymes will do a three weeks' stretch at the Mocambo when he returns from the east. . . . A Pasadena fan wants Dinah Shore and Frank Sinatra teamed in a picture. . . . Irene Dunne's playing second fiddle to her 8 year old Mary Frances, who's got the lead in her school play.

Not Lend-Lease Either.

When we badgered Walt Disney about giving us "Snow White" every Christmas, we forgot he would have to badger the theater owners for space. He can't get any until middle of February. But in London, beginning Dec. 24 each year, they have a Disney festival, with "Snow White" and his latest shorts—which seems pretty unfair to our citizens, who are just as crazy about them. . . . Paramount's going to have a mighty tough job replacing Preston Sturges. He wrote and directed some of that studio's most amusing pictures. And it's begging him to remain. . . . Harry James was voted by Radio Daily as top band leader. He won the Motion Picture Herald poll for same thing. Nice blowing, Harry.

Family Life.

Mrs. Don Ameche cooks, scrubs, and cleans for the family and four visiting relatives. She cleaned a batch of 25 wild ducks the other day and still takes time out to be with Don when he's doing "What's New?" Somebody asked me who the ageless girl of our town was. I'll nominate Maureen O'Sullivan. She's changed less than any girl here. You can't believe she's an old married woman with two children. She has the same modesty as when she first arrived from Ireland, and O, how refreshing! . . . David Rose brought word from London that besides Irving Berlin's show, which stops traffic, they like old tunes and stories, such as "Hello, Frisco" and "Coney Island." They can think back to their good old times and join in with the singing. "So Proudly We Hail," a fine picture, didn't go. They've seen too much suffering over there. . . . An ensign writes from Honolulu that he's just finished reading "Here's Suds in Your Eyes." Thinks it would be great for either Helen Broderick, Beulah Bondi, Billie Burke, or Emma Dunn. In fact, he cast the whole picture. . . . Marjorie Weaver's mother was badly scalded and cut when a coffee pot broke in her hand.

'As Thousands Cheer' Is a Lot of Movie Fare

"AS THOUSANDS CHEER."
A Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer picture, directed by George Sidney, featuring Kathryn Grayson, Gene Kelly, Mary Astor, John Boles, and Jose Iturbi, and presented at the State-Lake.

By Mae Tinée.

Good Morning!
A buck private did what he hadn't oughter
And attracted the eye of a col-o-nel's daughter.
SHE'D lived her a life full of culture and ease;
HE'D been known as "the king of the flying trapeze."
She'd sung with a symphony [Iturbi—her pal!]
But, to aid in maintaining the army morale
For the camp where her father
Bossed things . . . [Her dad was Divorced from her ma-ther]. . . .

Now—that we have Pa, cheelld, and boy friend in camp, I'll jot down a few items relative to, but not too revealing, of the plot of this technicolored "super."

The boy friend gets out of hand and has to be dosed with discipline.

All roads, romantic and otherwise, lead up to a big army show introducing such stars as Mickey Rooney, Judy Garland, Red Skelton, Lucille Ball, and Ann Sothern. . . . Jose Iturbi, who, of course, is there, has been rung in often before both as pianist and conductor. . . .

You'll enjoy Kathryn Grayson's lovely voice and get a real kick out of seeing John Boles again. . . . Too bad they didn't write in an opportunity for the colonel to sing—they've crowded in everything else.

To me the production was bigger than better—being a bit mawkish at the start and at times becoming rather unwieldy. . . . But the piece certainly has its moments, especially when Red Skelton performs, Jose Iturbi plays, Gene Kelly dances, and Mary Astor just appears! Golly, she IS beautiful!

See you tomorrow (and so will Santa, I hope)!

Lying-In Hospital Nurses Prepare Gifts for Babies

For the sixth year the nurses at the Chicago Lying-In hospital have made gifts for the babies in the hospital, to be presented after breakfast on Christmas morning. The custom was started by Miss Georgia Hukill, director of nursing.

Stage Note

"Sons o' Fun," which brings Olsen and Johnson to the Civic Opera house Jan. 3, announces the only midweek matinee of the engagement to be played Wednesday, Jan. 5. After the first week, Sunday nights are on the playing schedule.

"Foundation" is the correct and literal term for these good looking undergarments. They are basic, and upon them rests the success of any wardrobe. It is extremely important for the mature light, average, and heavy figures to be properly fitted along slenderizing, svelte lines.

The corselette model [left] for the average figure from 24 to 39, is fashioned in rayon satin and lace with rayon satin lastex gusset and back. Attention to the detail of the bra top is important. The lace inset, forming a separation, is essential since it raises the bust line, creating an attractive contour and a long waist effect. It is boneless in back and lightly bone in the front, the heavy center panel being outlined in fagoting.

A separate girdle for the light figure [center] ranging from 26 to 32 is ideal for day time and all-purpose wear. It has a smooth stay-up top which does not wrinkle at the waistband and lightweight boning over the abdomen. This is one of the few garments boasting a two way stretch at the sides. The heavy rayon satin front panel is trimmed with feather stitching. The front garters are the "invisible grip" type and the back are regulation garters with genuine rubber tip fastener.

The all-in-one rayon satin garment for the heavy figure from 28 to 44 [right] has a lace bra top of ample proportions to prevent an overstuffed look. A built up shoulder aids in reducing bulges. A low cut V back makes the garment ideal for evening wear. Boned front and back, it has a semi-stepin control to slenderize the hip line. Bands of rayon lastex side insets allow freedom of motion!

According to Culbertson

[Copyright: 1943: By Ely Culbertson.]

It is vital for a declarer to appraise the opening lead against the background of the leader's general bridge skill. Consider the following case.

North, dealer.

North-South vulnerable.

♠ 10 6
♥ A J 8
♦ K J 10 8 5
♣ A Q 7

WEST
♠ J 5 2
♦ A 9 7 4 3

EAST
♠ A 9 4
♣ J 10 9 6 5 4

SOUTH
♠ K Q 8 7 3
♥ K Q 10 9 6 5 4
♦ Q

The bidding:

North	East	South	West
1 diamond	Pass	1 heart	Pass
2 hearts	Pass	2 spades	Pass
3 no trump	Pass	6 hearts	Pass
Pass

The six heart contract looks pretty bad in the light of the two aces North-South were missing, but North could not know that his A-Q of clubs would be almost worthless, and South naturally attributed extra value to his diamond queen and club void because North had started the bidding with one diamond.

North-South were not the only victims of circumstances in this deal. In selecting his opening lead, West could not dream that the opponents had gone to a slam when lacking two vital aces, hence the best defense appeared to be the immediate lead of the diamond ace and a diamond continuation in the hope that East could ruff.

When South played the diamond queen at the first trick, West saw no reason to change his mind inasmuch as he knew that South would have played the queen from Q-6, if he had that combination, for the very purpose of discouraging another diamond lead. For better or worse West continued with a low diamond.

Declarer had been holding his breath against a shift to spades, but he now did not make the mistake of hastily putting up a high diamond from dummy. Instead, he gave deep thought to West's unusual lead of a suit that constituted North's opening bid. The only logic back of such a lead was that West hoped to give his partner a ruff. He could not reasonably entertain that hope unless he [West] were long in diamonds. If that was the case, the missing nine spot figured to be in West's hand. Declarer needed all the remaining diamonds for spade discards, hence, convinced that he had read the situation accurately, he put in dummy's eight of diamonds, and when it held he no longer had to worry about the missing ace of spades.

Thru the Looking Glass

It's not too soon to begin to think about those resolutions you'll be tempted to make come the New Year. Maybe if you begin now on a merciless inspection of the flaws in your face, figure, and hair you'll be able to work up the stamina to stick to the resolutions once you've made 'em.

The women who are GOING to reduce, we have always with us. They collect all kinds of information on how divinely easy it is to lose 10 pounds a month. They tell you about it, too, at the lunch table, while they're nibbling on the rolls before the real food is served, and speak glowingly of the wonderful results they expect of their pet reducing program—once they get going on it.

Then there are those of us who are always going to adopt a self-improvement schedule. Cut down on cigarets, maybe, or go on the water wagon, or at least put a limit of one on the cocktails. We're going to use throat cream every single night, once we reach that starting date that's always so near, yet so far. And we're going to brush our hair a hundred strokes a day. Yes, ma'am, a hundred strokes a day, not one less!

And we're going to exercise daily starting at some time in the future. It normalizes our figure and does wonderful things for our supply of energy and sure as shooting we're going to do it one of these mornings—and keep it up.

We all know about these resolutions, little ones and big ones, because every woman in the world makes them. But we don't quite get around to them and we wish there was something, maybe like a vitamin pill, that we could take to whip up the will power.

Unfortunately there isn't. We should make ourselves a Christmas present of dogged determination. Start now, and when New Year's day comes you'll actually be doing what the other girls are, as usual, just dreaming of!

at the teen age dance of the Woman's Athletic club, Mrs. Kelly will entertain for her son, Scotty, who is a freshman at the Boys' Latin school. Members of the teen age crowd still are talking about the success of The Committee's dance Tuesday night, which was a program dance, and several of the boys serving as ushers, each responsible for seeing that a certain number of girls had their programs filled. This method assured all the girls of having a good time, especially those who were not so well acquainted with the boys.

Personal Notes.

Arriving in Chicago for their first visit in many years and to spend the Christmas holidays with their nephew, Jarvis Hunt Jr., and Mrs. Hunt, are Mr. and Mrs. Leavitt Jarvis Hunt of New York and Connecticut. Christmas could not be more exciting for the John Payne Kelloggs' four children and their mother, for Lt. Comdr. Kellogg arrived at home from Italy three weeks ago and will be here until Monday. The Kelloggs will spend tomorrow with Mrs. Kellogg's brother, William H. Mitchell, and his family. After Comdr. Kellogg receives his new orders his wife hopes to join him at his new post.

Lt. [j.g.] Ralph Church Jr. and his bride of last spring, the former Janet Richardson, will be at home from Portsmouth, N. H., for the Christmas holidays, but Lt. Church's brother, William S. A Special Gift Is Needed for Her Christmas

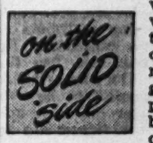
BY MAUREEN DALY.

[Copyright: 1943: By The Chicago Tribune.]

The red and green deadline is almost here and all the Joes who want to make with gifts for their current queens for Christmas had better get the present problem settled, but quickly. Put on the Kris Kringle trimmings and concentrate. Selecting a gift for a certain sweet stuff can present king sized difficulties because a chap must please not only the girl but also her mother and father. And whatever is selected to convey the Christmas greetings, the gift must be neither too expensive, too personal, nor too "obligating."



First on the list of smart pickings come those three old standbys—perfume, flowers, and candy—which will warm the heart of your little chick in the order named. Any girl feels sweet and lovely and reacts with the smiles and thank yous for a bottle of perfume—but there's no need to make your choice an ultra-expensive scent that's sold by the drop. Chances are that your particular pigeon will be more pleased with a bottle of cologne, and any salesgirl will help you with your choice if you give her a detailed description of your doll according to type and tastes.

Flowers and candy fall into almost the same safe category. If you want to give a girl a present with flattery and no strings attached, send flowers. And if you want her to remember you pleasantly but not too permanently, candy is a fine idea.

Here's a new thought for Christmas giving—something that can't be wrapped in tissue paper and red ribbon but might be twice as welcome as anything that comes with a printed price tag. Why not give your girl a special "evening" for Christmas? Make it dinner somewhere special and get tickets for a play afterward or go strictly big time and make it a "bright lights and music" affair, dancing to your favorite band. Make it something more elaborate than you usually plan and explain to your gal that this date comes special with the holly and trimmings. It will be a present both of you can enjoy.

WAGE-HOUR QUIZ BRANDED BREACH OF FREE SPEECH

Paper Fights U. S. Move to Subpena Records.

Philadelphia, Pa., Dec. 23 (AP).—The freedom of the press has been violated by attempts of the federal wage and hour division to inspect pay roll and shipping records of the Paterson [N. J.] Evening News, it has been charged in the 3d Circuit Court of Appeals by Elisha W. Hanson, general counsel for the American Newspaper Publishers' association.

The wage-hour division of the department of labor has appealed to the Circuit court for enforcement of a subpena against the News Printing Company, Inc., publisher of the News, intended to produce the paper's records for examination.

Subpena Enforcement Refused.

The contention that the freedom of the press has been violated was made in court yesterday when Hanson appeared as counsel for the News Printing Company, Inc., in resisting the appeal.

Enforcement of the subpena previously was refused by Judge Thomas F. Meaney in federal District court at Newark. L. Metcalfe Walling, administrator of the wage-hour division, filed the appeal before the Appeals court composed of Judges John Biggs Jr., Herbert F. Goodrich, and Gerald McLaughlin.

Amendment Called Supreme.

"The first amendment protecting the press from any restraints is supreme," Hanson contended. He said congress could not, "in the guise of exercising its powers under the commerce clause," as he contended it did under the wage and hour law, impose abridgements on the freedom of the press.

Bessie Margolin, assistant solicitor for the wage-hour division, who is pressing action for the appeal, asserted the administrator had the right under authority of congress to send inspectors into newspaper plants to examine pay rolls without first issuing a complaint that violations of the law have occurred. The court reserved decision.

BLIMP RESCUES 1 IN SEA CRASH; 2D MAN MISSING

Washington, D. C., Dec. 23 (AP).—A navy blimp and a coast guard cutter joined in rescuing a seaman floating on the wreckage of an observation plane in the Atlantic, the navy reported today. The man is Charles J. Schultz, Baltimore, Md., crewman on the plane piloted by Ensign Arthur Masley of Batavia, Ill., who is listed as dead.

The blimp, piloted by Ensign Warren H. Ireland, 23 years old, Canon City, Colo., was on routine patrol heading for convoy duty when ordered to search for a "man on a float." He was located about 65 miles away. The blimp was unable to locate the plane's pilot.

Bomber Crashes; 5 Killed.

Roswell, N. M., Dec. 23 (AP).—Five airmen were killed in the crash of a four engine bomber from the Roswell air base today, 45 miles southwest of Carlsbad. Col. John Horton, base commanding officer, said the dead included Capt. Edward L. Gholson, 25 years old, pilot, Roswell; his parents live in Paducah, Ky.; Capt. Charles E. Silkwood, 25, Albuquerque; his mother, Mrs. C. Silkwood, lives at Sesser, Ill.

Plane, Pilot Lost in Crash.

Boston, Mass., Dec. 23 (AP).—The 1st naval district reported today that a navy plane from the Quonset, R. I., naval air station, crashed in the ocean yesterday a mile off Chilmark point, near Martha's Vineyard. The pilot and sole occupant was Lt. [j. g.] Lloyd Henry Launder Jr., 22 years old, of Marshalltown, Ia. Neither the plane nor the body was recovered.

Crash Kills 4, Hurts 6.

El Paso, Tex., Dec. 23 (AP).—A B-24 bomber crashed on the takeoff and burned today at Biggs field, killing four army airmen and injuring six others. Among the dead were Sgt. George Kalinyak, Pittsburgh, Pa., and Sgt. C. L. Nelson, Elmore, Minn. The injured included 2d Lt. R. A. Numbers, Springfield, O., and Sgt. D. K. Witmer, Elkhart, Ind.

GIRL OF 17 WINS FIGHT TO REMAIN SOLDIER'S BRIDE

The "best possible Christmas present" came a couple of days early for pretty Muriel Vial Godar, 17 years old, when Judge Robert J. Dunne in Circuit court yesterday refused to dissolve her marriage last April to Pvt. James Bruce Godar, who is in New Guinea. Her parents had asked that the marriage be annulled on the ground that she and Godar were minors at the time and lacked parental consent. She, thru counsel, opposed her parents' plea.

"O, I am so happy," she said, when Judge Dunne dismissed the action. "Today is Christmas for me."

Mrs. Godar, who has been going to high school and cooking for a family near Hinsdale, said she was going home for Christmas. Clarence Rhoads, attorney for her father, Paul E. Vial, a La Grange filling station owner, said he would seek a new trial.

COURT AROUSED OVER $40 FEE IN $100 BOND CASE

Chief Justice Edward S. Scheffler of the Municipal court yesterday ordered an investigation of the conduct of a professional bondsman who charged two women $40 each to obtain their release from police custody on bonds of $100.

The women, Betty Lou Waits, 21 years old, and Mrs. Judith Sgarlata, 33, were arrested Tuesday on charges of shoplifting in a State street department store. They told of the excessive fees when arraigned before Judge Frank E. Donoghue in Women's court.

Ordered to Refund $30 Each.

Judge Donoghue ordered the bondsman, Henry Fisher, Negro, 1017 West 14th street, summoned. Fisher told Judge Donoghue that he charged the women $15 each for the bonds and collected as collateral $25 additional, which he intended to return.

Judge Donoghue ordered Fisher to return $30 immediately to each defendant, asserting that his maximum fee under the law could not exceed $10. "From now on you will not be allowed to furnish bonds in this court," he added.

Attacks Bondsman's License.

Judge Donoghue sent a report to Chief Justice Scheffler, with a view to having Fisher's license revoked.

The cases of the two women were continued until March 9 for investigation, when they said it was the first time they had been arrested. Judge Donoghue ordered them to find work, adding that disposition of their cases will depend on their conduct in the next two months.

The Inquiring Camera Girl — BY FREIDA ZYLSTRA.

[The Tribune will pay $5 for each interesting question submitted by a reader and used by The Tribune. Today's question was submitted by Pat Clifford, 5719 North Campbell avenue.]

THE QUESTION.

What do you think we could do to improve the older generation? [Asked of high school students.]

WHERE ASKED.

Sixty-seventh street and Stony Island avenue.

THE ANSWERS.

Jerry Schwartz, student, 7029 Merrill avenue—I've heard many older people say they think this generation is going to the dogs. They're not judging us with much foresight or vision, or maybe they've forgotten their own youth. It would be an accomplishment if we could get them to have more faith in us.

Morton Nudleman, 7000 Clyde avenue—The trouble with the older generation is that they just grow old too fast. If we younger people could keep them from doing that it would be to their advantage. If we could keep in close touch with each other we would be in better harmony.

Irvonne Tennenbaum, 5107 Blackstone avenue—Either we're getting too far ahead of the older generation or they're lagging too far behind. I think it would be a great thing if older people kept learning new things that are supposed to belong only to the young group. I think they should keep up with us and be modern.

Robert Cohn, 2138 East 68th street—There are some things that we have to learn the hard way and we're willing to learn it that way. If the older generation would realize that they're not entirely infallible they might be more lenient and generous with us. That would be an advantage for both.

Shirley Barzan, 7212 South Washtenaw avenue—If adults could remember that they've learned much of what they know from their own experience, I'm sure they would be more tolerant with us. If we could convince them that it's not too terrible if we do make a few mistakes of our own they'd be easier to get along with.

Ned Rafilson, 6836 Paxton avenue—I often hear kids at school remark that some older person belongs to another school of thought. It's too bad that we, the younger generation, have drifted so far from the older ones that anybody makes a distinction. I think we should all belong to the same school of thought.

7 FOUND GUILTY IN RACKET CASE FREED ON BOND

New York, Dec. 23 [Special].—Seven men—all but one described as members of Al Capone's Chicago gang—were at liberty under bond today, their freedom to continue during the Christmas season, after their conviction last night of conspiracy to extort more than a million dollars from the motion picture industry.

Federal Judge John Bright, who continued the men in bail over opposition of the prosecution, set Dec. 30 as the date for sentencing. The defendants each face a possible maximum sentence of 10 years' imprisonment and a $10,000 fine.

The government charged the seven men were higherups supporting Willie Bioff and George E. Browne, convicted labor leaders, in extorting money from producers to avoid labor trouble and threats of bodily harm. The defendants are Louis Campagna, Philip D'Andrea, Francis Maritote, Charles Gioe, and Paul De Lucia, and John Roselli, all of Chicago, and Louis Kaufman, Newark, N. J., official of the A. F. L. International Alliance of Theatrical Stage Employes' union.

GIRDLES AGAIN! IT'S WPB'S GIFT TO THE LADIES

Washington, D. C., Dec. 23 (AP).—The war production board's Christmas gift to the ladies: Restoration of the two-way stretch to, and unlimited manufacture of, girdles, corsets, and other such garments.

Rubber Director Bradley Dewey recently lifted the ban on use of synthetic rubber in these goods and today the WPB revoked its previous order limiting their production to 75 per cent of the 1941 output.

But there's one hitch. WPB says processing of synthetic rubbers into elastic thread presents new problems in manufacturing and production may be delayed, perhaps several months, until these problems are licked.

POULTRY DEALER HELD UP.

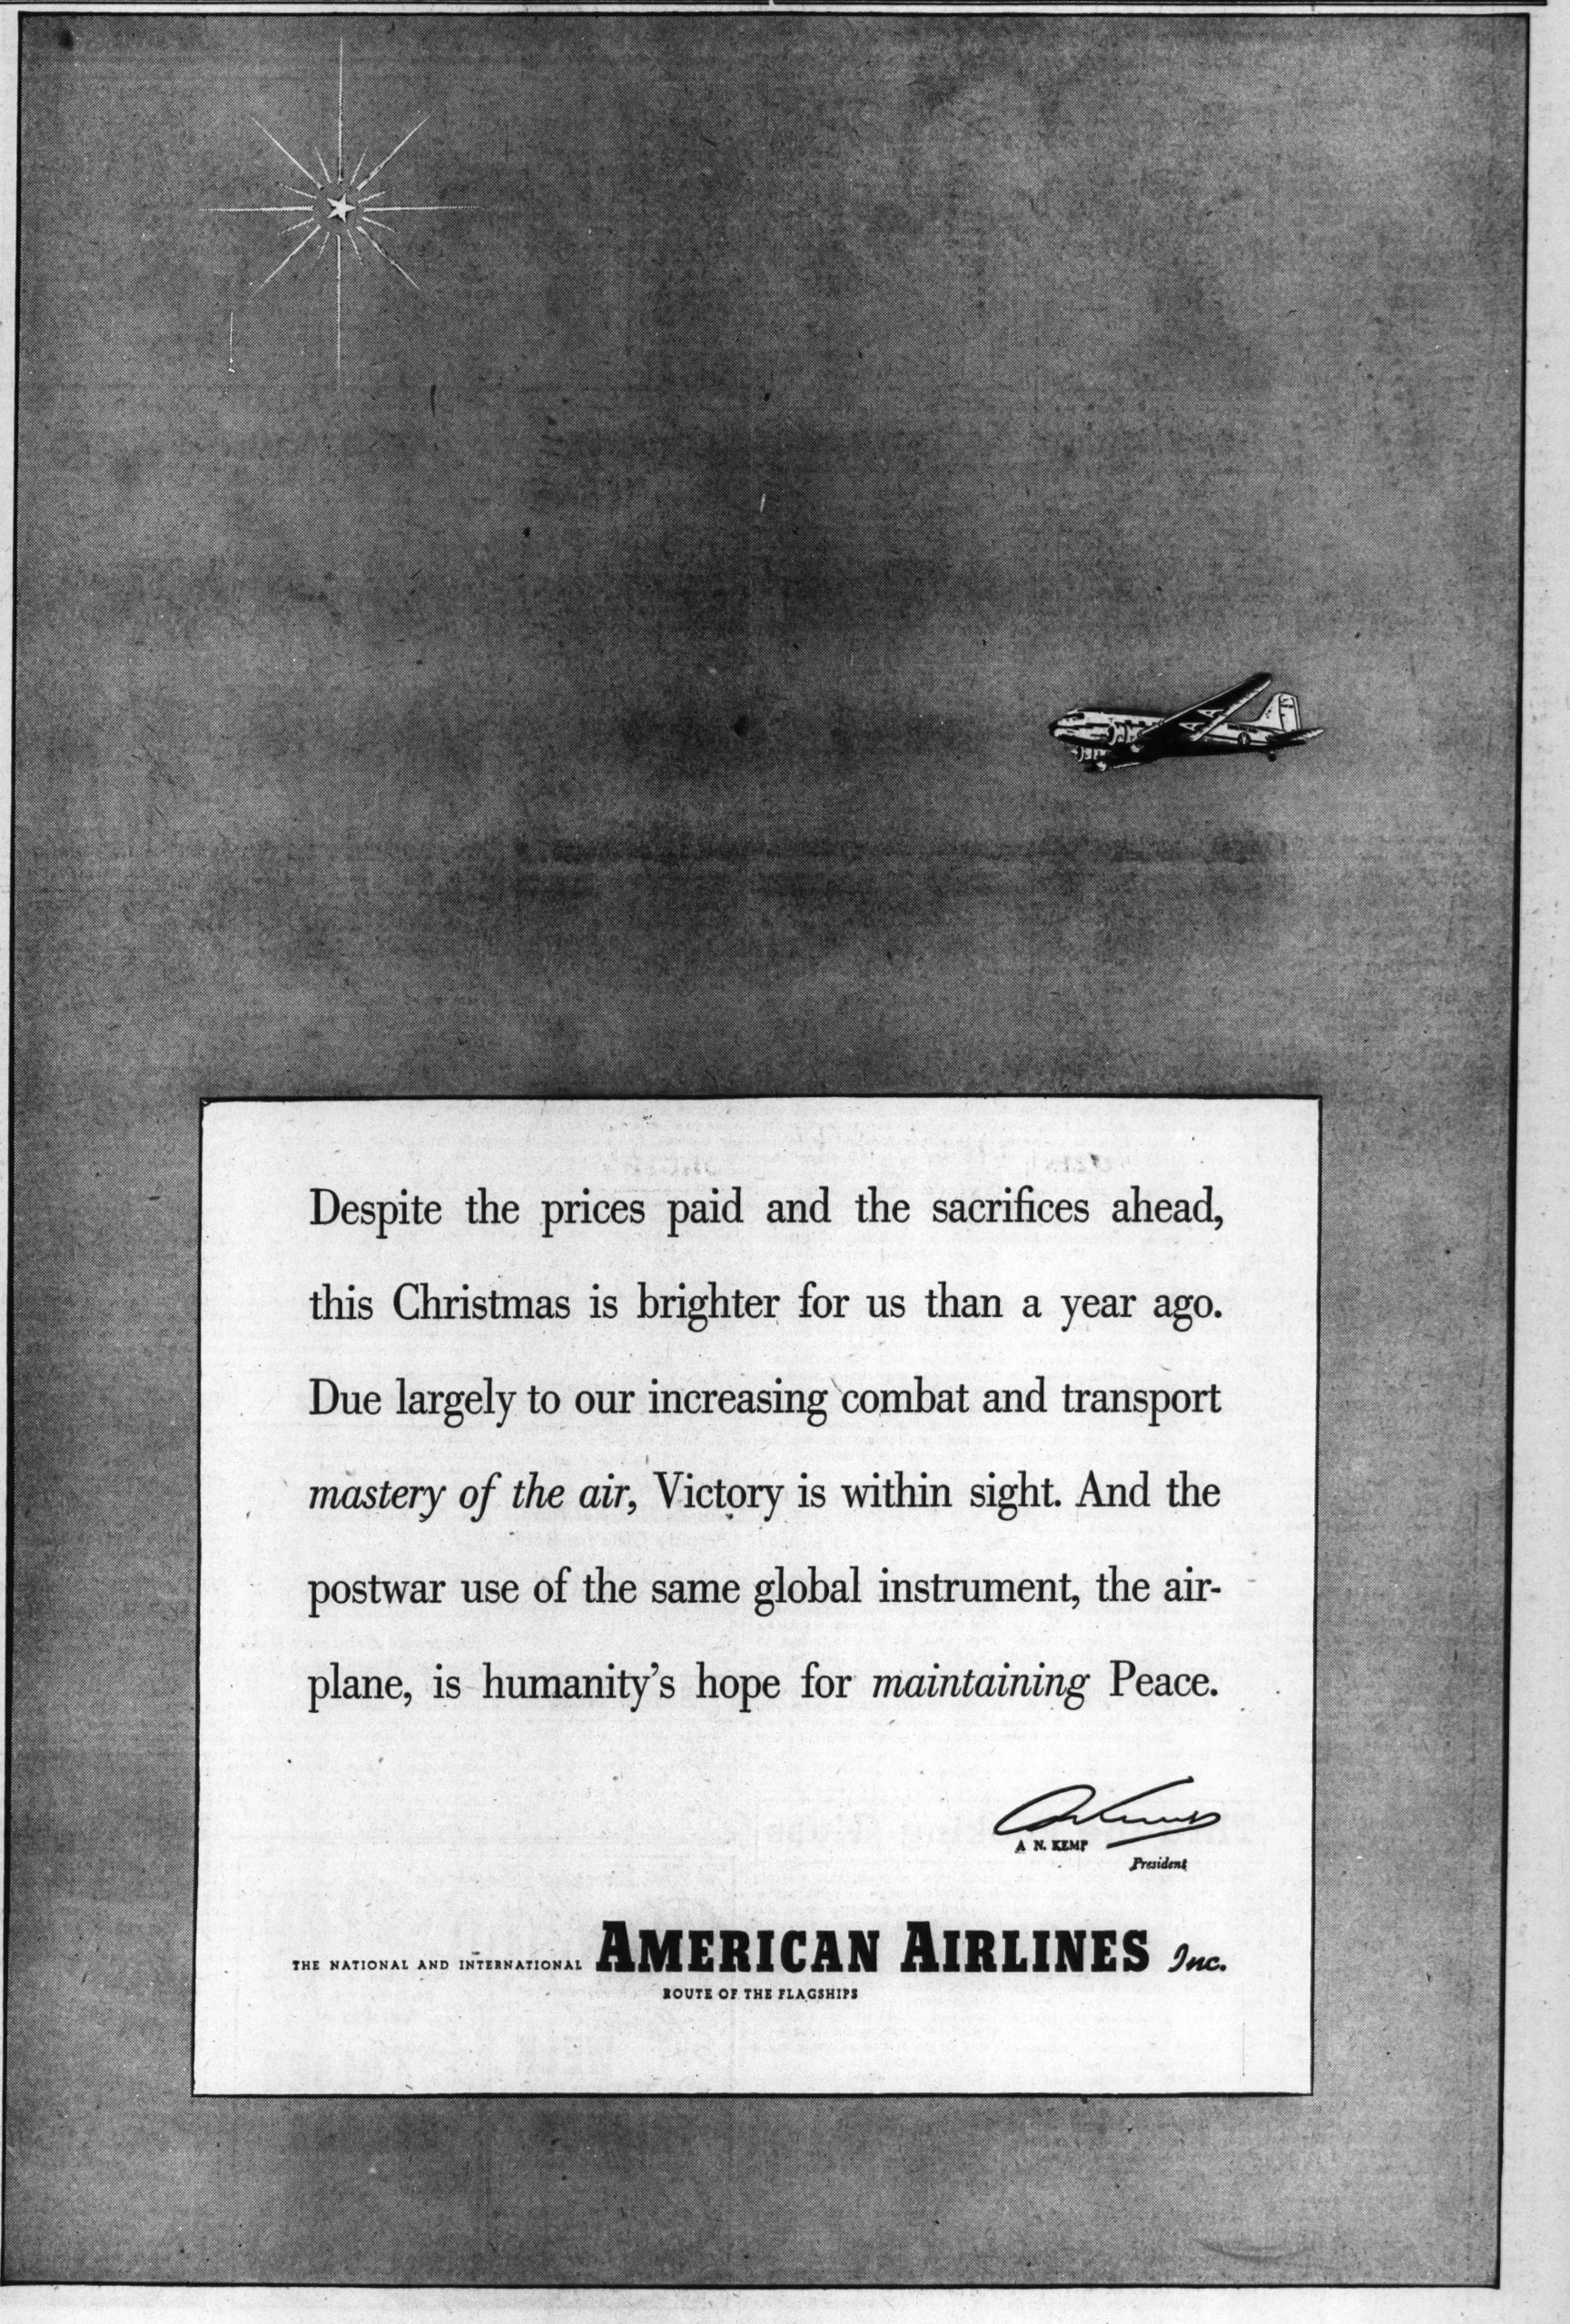
Isador Gleit, 46 years old, reported to police yesterday that two men, one armed with a gun, robbed him of more than $50 after herding him and an employe, Thomas Abrahamson, 39, 3818 Sheffield avenue, into a rear room of his poultry and egg store at 839 Irving Park road.

TIME OF POPE'S CHRISTMAS EVE MASS SHIFTED

LONDON, Dec. 23 (AP).—The Vatican radio broadcast an announcement today that Pope Pius XII. will celebrate the Christmas eve mass privately at 5 p. m. tomorrow [11 a. m. Chicago time] instead of at 7 p. m. as originally planned. The change was made because of Rome's 6 p. m. curfew.

The mass will be "strictly private," the announcement said, but it will be broadcast and relayed thru the Italian radio along with an earlier papal radio message. This message to the world is scheduled for 12:15 p. m. [6:15 a. m. Chicago time].

[NBC and CBS plan to carry the papal message at 6:15 a. m. Chicago time tomorrow, followed by an English summary. Whether the Christmas eve mass would be rebroadcast in the United States was not known immediately.]



Despite the prices paid and the sacrifices ahead, this Christmas is brighter for us than a year ago. Due largely to our increasing combat and transport mastery of the air, Victory is within sight. And the postwar use of the same global instrument, the airplane, is humanity's hope for maintaining Peace.

DICK FARMAN IS ONLY PLAYER ON INJURED LIST

Coach Says They're Ready for Bears.

BY WILFRID SMITH.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Lafayette, Ind., Dec. 23.—Twenty-eight players on the Washington Redskins football squad arrived this morning to complete training for their title game with the Bears in Chicago Sunday. Before Dutch Bergman, head coach of the defending champions, crossed the Fowler hotel lobby to register he dispelled the belief prevalent in Chicago that the Redskins were badly crippled for Sunday's battle.

Bergman readily admitted that all the Redskins will be ready to play with the exception of Dick Farman, All-League guard who has been on the injured list since the sixth game of the campaign. There is, however, a possibility that the former Washington State lineman, now in his fifth season of professional football, will see some action. At least, this was not denied by club officials.

They'll Be in There.

Lou Rymkus and Wee Willie Wilkin, tackles; Wilbur Moore, half back, whose defensive play last week against the Giants was a factor in reversing the results of the previous two games with New York and Capt. Bob Masterson, left end, were the players Coach Bergman specifically said would be ready for the Bears.

Masterson, Wilkin, and Farman—the left side of Washington's line—did not play against the Bears in Washington last month when the Chicagoans were beaten 21 to 7.

Sammy Baugh, the league's leading passer, put in three minutes on the field that afternoon while George Cafego, the old Tennessee half back who was acquired this season from Brooklyn, labored 57 minutes.

Washington's Line Strong.

This adds up to one important fact. Washington will have more line strength for the title game than it needed to whip the Bears Nov. 21 by two touchdowns. Masterson played five minutes last Sunday. Bergman says Masterson is ready for 60 minutes as he was last year in the title game.

Rymkus was kept out of the second half last Sunday after he suffered a knee injury. He is O. K. and no one will be surprised if at some stage of Sunday's game Wilkin and Rymkus are Washington tackles. Lou can operate on the right side of the line as well as on the left and this will provide relief for Joe Pasqua.

Moore Best Pass Defense.

Wilbur Moore, probably the Redskins' best defender against forward passes, played 20 minutes last Sunday in New York. This was about the time Washington was on defense, for the Redskins controled the ball nearly 75 per cent of the time and young Frank Seno, who has had only one year of collegiate experience, is used only at right half on attack. This does not preclude Moore from carrying the ball. The Bears must recall how Moore ran the flank for the touchdown that started the Redskins to their 21 to 7 victory five weeks ago.

The Redskins arrived this morning ahead of schedule. The squad had been divided into two groups. One came by way of Pittsburgh and the other via Cincinnati. They rejoined in Indianapolis and were able to make connections with a train running behind schedule which arrived in Lafayette shortly before 11 o'clock.

Half Shares to Two.

The Redskins today voted to divide their portion of Sunday's receipts into 32½ shares. Each full share, the players believe, will be approximately $1,000. All figuring was done on the assumption they will whip the Bears. The division vote follows:

Twenty-six players, receiving full shares, are Al Fiorentino, Rymkus, Alex Prasecky, Steve Slivinski, Ken Haryden, Joe Aguirre, Bob Seymour, Farman, Seno, Joe Zeno, Masterson, Baugh, Moore, Wilkin, Joe Pasqua, Frank Akins, Frank Ribar, Leo Stasica, Ray Hare, Andy Farkas, Ted Lapka, Joe Gibson, George Smith, Tony Leon, Clyde Shugart, and Jack Smith.

Half shares were voted Red Conkright and Cafego, players obtained during the season. Full shares went to Bergman and Turk Edwards, assistant coach, and to Sid Carroll, manager. Red Johnson, former trainer, received one-fourth share; Wilbur Bohm, trainer, was voted three-fourths of a share, and another share was awarded clubhouse attendants. Former players Coye Dunn and Jack Jenkins, got a quarter share each.

In addition, Max Krause, who played with Washington in 1940, and is now in service, was voted $100. Krause gave Half Back Moore a blood transfusion last week when a clot was removed from Moore's leg.

NOTRE DAME QUINTET BEATS PURDUE, 47-40

Carl Lloyd, in First Start, Scores 10 Points.

Notre Dame, Ind., Dec. 23 [Special].—Notre Dame's fast breaking attack tonight defeated Purdue, 47 to 40, in the university fieldhouse. The Irish led at the half, 32 to 23.

The Boilermakers jumped off to a lead in the first 30 seconds but couldn't hold it. Notre Dame's newly found Carl Lloyd put in 11 of the Irish tallies as he made his first appearance as a starter in Coach Ed Krause's reorganized lineup. Leo Klier took scoring honors with 13.

After the first basket by Purdue, the Irish bounced back with four straight to take an 8 to 2 lead in the first four minutes.

Notre Dame continued to pile up points in the opening minutes of the second period. Then the foul department ran into large figures as the teams tried to outrace each other for control of the ball. With five minutes remaining, Notre Dame raised its margin to the total of 44 to 31. Lineups:

VOTED NO. 1 SURPRISE

New York, Dec. 23 (AP).—The last-minute defeat of the Notre Dame football team by Great Lakes has been voted the outstanding sports surprise of the year.

Of the 80 writers participating in the annual Associated Press poll only six failed to include that game on their ballots, and 60 of the 80 placed it No. 1 on the list. The New York Yankees' victory in the World series placed second.

A 46 yard touchdown pass from Steve Lach to Paul Anderson 25 seconds before the game ended gave Great Lakes a 19 to 14 triumph over the previously undefeated Irish in a game in which Notre Dame was a topheavy favorite.

WIDOW'S BRIBE STORY DELAYS JOCKEY RULING

Baltimore, Md., Dec. 23 (AP).—The Maryland Racing commission delayed today a decision in the case of Jockey Matthew Quinn after hearing 18 year old Anna May Pannell testify that Quinn offered her husband $150 to hold back his mount in a race at Marlboro.

Final testimony in the Quinn case came from the young Wheeling [W. Va.] widow of Jockey Joseph Pannell, who before his death in a riding accident at Charles Town, W. Va., on Dec. 9, had charged Quinn with attempted bribery.

A commission official said late today that the body had delayed a final decision in the case indefinitely.

Quinn, veteran rider and a native of South Dakota, was charged with offering Pannell $150 to pull the horse White Sea in the first race on the final day of the Marlboro meeting. White Sea won the race, and Quinn subsequently was suspended by the Marlboro stewards, pending further action by the commission.

PASS RECEIVERS MARKED MEN IN PRO TITLE GAME

Clark and Moore Chief Cogs in Offense.

BY EDWARD PRELL.

Chief accomplices of Sid Luckman and Sammy Baugh have been hunted down and discovered. These culprits will be marked men Sunday when the Bears and Redskins meet on Wrigley field's frozen turf for the professional football title.

The big helper in Luckman's depredations which brought the Bears the western championship for the fourth straight season, is handsome Harry Clark from West Virginia. Baugh's main sidekick is Wilbur Moore, who once toted footballs for the University of Minnesota.

Never in recent years has the Bears' offense centered so completely on one man, the man, of course, being Clark. Harry is a 1,000 yafd a year man, with yards to spare. He advanced the ball 556 yards in 51 tries and caught 23 passes for 535 yards.

10 Touchdowns for Clark.

While doing this, Harry accumulated 10 touchdowns, one more score than garnered by Moore and Andy Farkas, each of whom went over nine times for the eastern champions. Harry's total yardage is 1,091, which is more than a fourth the total ground gained by the Bears. Harry thus rates as the most dangerous man on the field Sunday.

Moore contributed 768 yards of Washington's total in 10 games, not including figures for last Sunday's playoff game in New York. Wilbur, a right half back, was Baugh's favorite aerial target, snapping up 30 pitches for 537 yards and seven touchdowns. He lugged the ball 40 times for 231 yards and two scores. Farkas was the Redskins' major gainer on the ground with 327 yards in 110 smashes. His average of 2.9 a shot is not impressive, but Andy always gives a special performance against the Bears. Moore's average on ground plays is 5.5 to Clark's 4.6.

Baugh, Luckman Lose Ground.

Most interesting of the statistics show Luckman losing 40 yards in carrying the ball 22 times and Baugh being assessed 44 yards in carrying 19 times. Sid has a —1.8 average and Baugh is —2.3. Both, of course, are better runners than that, and this minus business stems from their activities as passers. On virtually all of these occasions, neither Sid nor Sam really wanted to carry the ball but were forced to eat it, as the saying goes. They were back to pass and were slammed to the earth by enthusiastic enemy tacklers before they could get the ball away.

Just because Clark and Moore have been the most explosive gents with a football during the past season for their respective teams does not necessarily mean they'll be tops in the post-Christmas battle. The Bears' two Italian boys, slim Dante Magnani and burly Gary Famiglietti, are especially primed for top performances. And, of course, it will be all right with the 30,000 or more Bear fans if Bronko Nagurski takes top billing.

Nagurski on Rampage.

Prior to his stint at full back against the Cardinals last November, Bronko had last carried a football in the 1937 title game, which the Redskins won, 28 to 21. Late in this game, Bronko, aided by Jack Manders and Ray Nolting, went on a rampage which carried the ball to Washington's 6 yard line. It was first down and goal to go for the tying touchdown. It would be the tying score, because Jack Manders never missed a point after touchdown. So what did the Bear quarter back do? He called four straight pass plays, and there was no more scoring that day.

Frigid blasts chased the Bears indoors yesterday, at the Arcadia Roller rink, where they went thru defensive tactics against Redskin plays. Last night the squad huddled in the Wrigley field clubhouse and discussed a few new plays. The team will try its running plays tomorrow in Wrigley field, regardless of the weather. Dr. Danny Fortmann, the Bears' veteran guard, participated in all of yesterday's sessions.

Series' Pilot Jokers Look In on Nazis

A U. S. FLYING FORTRESS BASE IN ENGLAND, Dec. 23 (AP).—Four Flying Fortress airmen who zoomed low over nearly 69,000 spectators in Yankee stadium during the first 1943 world series game were identified today.

They've been bombing the Nazis in the same planes.

The men—who appeared over the packed ball park in a small formation of big bombers—one of which returned, skimmed close over the grandstand and missed the flag pole by about seven yards, were:

Lieutenants Robert Sheets, 25, of 915 North M street, Tacoma, Wash.; Jack Watson, 22, of 4538 Carrolton avenue, Indianapolis, Ind.; Elmer W. Yong, 21, of Roachdale, Ind., and Joseph C. Wheeler of 243 Glasston avenue, Fresno, Cal.

Wheeler on Six Raids, Watson on Three, Yong on One.

Wheeler has been on six raids, Watson on three, Yong on one.

They said the incident which won them nation-wide, but anonymous publicity, including a blast from Fiorello H. La Guardia, mayor of New York City, officially was closed.

"But," they added, "you can be sure we were properly hauled over the coals."

"We knew we were heading for the combat zone," explained Lt. Wheeler, "and dropping in on the world series seemed a good idea at the time."

"The announcers must have thought it was part of the show because after we went over the first time we could hear them on the plane radio talking about a big air force review.

Now the Rose Bowl Game Becomes an Attraction.

"We figured they were enjoying it so we turned around and came over a second time. We thought nothing of it until later when we found out it had caused a sensation."

Watson winked, and said:

"We'd sort of like to go back together some day and drop in on the Rose Bowl game."

The crews are intact except for Watson's navigator, who was killed in a raid on Bremen, and Sheets' co-pilot, who went down on a raid with another crew.

RED WINGS LOAN GOALIE; DEFEAT RANGERS, 5 TO 3

Detroit, Mich., Dec. 23 (AP).—The Detroit Red Wings, loaning their spare goalie to the opposition in the third period, defeated the New York Rangers, 5 to 3, in a National Hockey league game tonight before a crowd of 5,646. When Ken McCauley was injured, young Harry Lumley of Detroit replaced him in the Ranger nets.

Joe Carveth and Mud Bruneteau each scored two goals for the Red Wings, but Grosso's second period marker actually provided the winning margin. The Rangers made a goal in each period, with Dutch Hiller, John Mahaffy, and Bill Gooden getting them.

Wings Score Early.

Detroit rapped the puck past McCauley twice in the first period and three times in the second period. The last one came after McCauley had been struck in the face by a puck off the stick of Carl Liscombe. After a rest period, McCauley returned to the nets, but Lumley, Detroit's road goalie the last two games, replaced him at the start of the last period.

Manager Jack Adams of the Red Wings announced tonight that Jimmy Franks, deposed goal-tender, had been invited to return to the Detroit nets for National Hockey league games away from home. He would replace 16 year old Lumley, up from Indianapolis of the American league.

Franks said he would make no decision immediately. The veteran Normie Smith, tied down by a war job, is Detroit's home goalie.

AirProGame Overseas by Short Wave

An extensive short wave hookup has been arranged to air Sunday's professional football championship game between the Chicago Bears and the Washington Redskins in Wrigley field. It is a special arrangement set up for the National league by the Stanley Boynton advertising agency of Detroit. The play by play will be piped to three spots in Africa, to Puerto Rico, Central America, Hawaii, and Australia. It also will be broadcast by two American short wave stations. The Chicago outlet is station WJJD.

In addition, the office of war information will pick up the game for rebroadcast to be beamed directly to the war fronts. Eighty-five stations thruout the United States, including many of the larger ones, will broadcast the game.

George Strickler, public relations director of the National Football league, said last night that the most valuable player would be announced in mid-January. A committee of 14 football writers, two from each city in which there is a team, have cast their votes. It is believed the honor will go either to the Bears' Sid Luckman or to Don Hutson. The Green Bay end, who has announced his retirement, has won the trophy the last two years.

The annual winter meeting, which originally was scheduled for Dec. 20-21 when it was believed the title game would be played on Dec. 19, has been postponed and no new date has been set.

Approximately 100 newspapermen will cover Sunday's championship game. Four writers from New York are in the city and the Washington contingent, of course, is with the Redskins at Lafayette, Ind. Press headquarters were established yesterday at the Blackstone hotel, with genial Dick O'Connell of Washington as the host.

Officials for the title game will be announced today by Elmer Layden, commissioner of the National league. The Bears are hoping that Ronald Gibbs will be the choice as referee. They consider him tops in the league.

The Bears' business office reported a brisk sale for tickets yesterday, but announced they still can be obtained at the Hub and at Wrigley field. The 5,000 bleacher tickets will go on sale Sunday. Game time is 2 p. m.

In the WAKE of the NEWS

BY ARCH WARD.

FRANK LEAHY and Fritz Crisler were quoted in press dispatches the other day as talking over renewal of the Notre Dame-Michigan football series at the earliest possible opportunity. . . . If these two universities failed to carry on a rivalry which for the last two years has thrilled the nation it would be a travesty on sport. . . . They practice substantially the same code of ethics. . . . They have uniformly strong teams. . . . The schools are only 150 miles apart. . . Their last two games drew capacity crowds and produced the most thrilling football of the season. . . . What more does it take to prove the popularity of the relationship? . . . If the series is not soon continued it will be due to the attitude of a limited group of men at Notre Dame or Michigan or both. . . . Michigan has one of the largest stadiums in the land. . . . It still wasn't adequate to accommodate the throng that braved war time travel complications to see Notre Dame at Ann Arbor. . . . Notre Dame has a plant that seats 56,000. . . . Michigan is one of the few teams that has filled it. . . . Those vast arenas were erected because the builders thought they were needed to handle the crowds. . . . Both universities have found an opponent which in all probability would attract gatherings that would tax the capacity of the plants year after year. . . . What right have a few men to tell the tens of thousands who have demonstrated their interest in the Michigan-Notre Dame rivalry that they'll have to look elsewhere for their gridiron thrills? . . . Too, is either athletic department so affluent that it can throw away the receipts this series attracts?

Roy Johnson, who will return to the Cubs as coach after a four year absence, used to live on Catalina Island all winter so he would be sure not to miss the first Cub practice. . . . He has not announced he will take up residence in French Lick, Ind., however. . . . Bowl games have been a jinx for Bernie Moore, whose Louisiana State team will meet Texas A. & M. in the Orange bowl New Year's day. . . . Moore's squads were beaten twice by Santa Clara and once by Texas Christian in the Sugar bowl. . . . Joe C. Farrell, Blackhawk press agent and hero introducer, is believed to have set some sort of a record for oratorical restraint. . . . He introduced Seaman Sammy Lo Presti of the United States navy to a hockey crowd in Chicago Stadium the other night and did not mention that Sammy's war experiences have included 43 days afloat in a lifeboat in the South Atlantic. . . . Sammy's warship was torpedoed near Africa and he was rescued near South America. . . . But all Farrell could think of, the Blackhawks being what they are now, was what a whale of a goalie Sammy is.

That she wasn't planning on having
A Christmas tree this year;
"The boys aren't here, so what is the use
Of playing at make-believe?"
And I thought to myself, "Poor woman,
Just whom is she trying to deceive?"

Now I think she's entirely wrong in her view,
For I feel that the boys out there
Will be visioning everything just as it was
On other Christmas eves fair;
Think of the heartbreaks those lads would know
If they pictured that well loved room,
No longer bright with holiday light,
But shrouded in shadow and gloom.

If this woman who said that could only know
That the one thing that keeps our boys firm,
Is the hope of finding things just the same
On that glad day when they return;
So let's make that tree shine extra bright,
Let's make it more passing fair,
For that's the way they'll be seeing it
In their Christmas eve thought and prayer.
Jazbo of Old Dubuque.

Passing the Buck.

Adam was the first man to blame his wife for what he had done: "The woman, whom thou gavest me to be my companion, gave me of the tree and I ate." Eve was not slow to follow suit: "The serpent deceived me, and I did eat."

Scale.

Softening the Blow.

A good way to dispel the arrogance of the average sales person these days is to present her with a box of candy and two tickets to a good show. Then when you ask her for something all wool, size 36, and she tells you, "Can't get them any more, there's a war going on, you know," she will do it without sneering.

YORK OF TIGERS TOPS LEAGUE IN RUNS BATTED IN Detroit First Baseman Sends 118 Across.

BY IRVING VAUGHAN.

As a producer of runs, an item of importance in the so-called national pastime, Rudy York of the Tigers didn't experience much competition last season. The American league's official slugging percentages, published yesterday, credited the Detroit first baseman with sending 118 runs across the plate with only one other man in the 100 or better class. That was Nick Etten, the refugee from the Phillies, who aided the Yanks pennant job with 107.

Ample proof of why the Yanks had little trouble in the flag argument was provided by averages such as hitting, fielding, and pitching previously announced but a little more is offered by the RBI accounting. Immediately behind Etten was Bill Johnson, the talented third sacker, with 94 and in sixth place was Charley Keller with 86. The other Yanks made contributions that enabled the team to finish with nothing short of 635 runs batted across.

Sox Get 509 RBI.

The White Sox, as usual, suffered RBI timidity altho they did manage to reach a 509 total which was an improvement over their 487 of the previous season, but it wasn't enough to lift them above seventh place. Their only delegate among the elite was Luke Appling who accounted for 80 runs.

Keller was the No. 1 man in the gift department, all of which is easily explained by the fact that he is a home run addict. He walked 106 times. The homer threat also assisted York in the accumulation of 84 passes.

Laabs Whiffs 105 Times.

The Tigers, altho fairly prolific as run getters, stepped into one of those debit-side records. They grounded into 159 infield double plays for a major league all-time high. They got a lot of help in this particularly from Jim Bloodworth, who was guilty of the offense on 29 occasions, thus breaking the old league record by six.

Chet Laabs of the Browns, altho eighth in run production, was the league's sucker for strikes. He whiffed 105 times, and Joe Hoover of the Tigers with 101 was the only other to make the three figure status.

STUDY OUTLOOK FOR STRIKE BY CIO STEEL MEN

Situation Is Grave, Says Murray.

Pittsburgh, Pa., Dec. 23 (AP).—Contracts of 350,000 steel workers in 214 companies expire at midnight tomorrow and President Philip Murray of the United Steelworkers of America warned in a statement, "a grave situation has been created" by the war labor board's rejection of the union's petition which would have continued existing contracts with retroactive dates and pay.

The possibility of a national steel strike was studied in steel circles, but associates of Murray, who is also president of the CIO, would not use the word "strike." The CIO has pledged and reaffirmed a no-strike policy for the duration. The union men, in discussing the situation, said, however, there was "very serious doubt the men can be held in hand, no-strike pledges to the contrary."

To Affect 150,000 More.

Murray said that in addition to the 214 contracts which expire at midnight tomorrow, contracts covering an additional 150,000 men, including that with the United States Steel corporation, would expire by mid-January, leaving these men in the same position.

Companies immediately affected include Republic Steel corporation, where the union claims 50,000 workers; Youngstown Sheet and Tube, and Wheeling Steel corporation, each with about 20,000 union workers; Blaw-Knox company, Great Lakes Steel, and Colorado Fuel and Iron company.

The steel workers have contracts with about 500 companies and are seeking a 17 cents an hour pay increase, which would crack the WLB's Little Steel formula.

Charges Principle Violated.

Murray charged the WLB's failure to extend outstanding collective bargaining agreements "constituted a complete violation of the principles enunciated by the board in recent cases affecting hundreds of thousands of workers."

He also criticized public members of the WLB for suggesting a compromise which would have kept existing contracts in operation, but stated, "If any wage adjustments are made they must, of course, be in accordance with" the stabilization act and regulations issued under it.

The board's recommendations, Murray said, "were prejudicial in nature, and attempted to prejudge the demands of the steel workers."

BELL AIRCRAFT CUTS STAFF AT NIAGARA PLANTS

Buffalo, N. Y., Dec. 23 (AP).—The Niagara Frontier division plants of Bell Aircraft corporation have reduced their total working force 10 per cent since Sept. 1, the company disclosed today.

The reduction was accomplished by replacing few of the workers who quit, go into the armed services or obtain releases to go into other war plants, the company said. Several hundred workers have been laid off, it added.

WLB Defied by 1,000 Ship Yard Strikers

Cleveland, O., Dec. 23 (AP).—Approximately 1,000 AFL craft unionists at the American Ship Building company's big west side yards today ignored a regional war labor board ultimatum and failed to return to work on the 7:30 a. m. shift. A company spokesman said 368 men reported.

The walkout, in its eighth day, was precipitated by the company's discharge of the chief steward of 11 craft unions and has paralyzed production of small warships for the maritime commission.

The WLB announced previously it would recommend that the national board "use the full war time powers of the national government," including, if necessary, a "referral of the case to the President" if the men failed to heed the back-to-work deadline.

"Slow Down" Charge Made.

Muskegon, Mich., Dec. 23 (AP).—The Borg-Warner corporation's Norge machine products division remained closed for a second day today, and Anton Jankowsky, worker whose reinstatement indirectly led to a walkout of 900 employes, charged union members had demanded that he "slow down" his production.

Jankowsky, tubing department employe, said he had been ousted as union steward six months ago after he "refused to comply with demands of fellow workers that I slow down production."

Jankowsky was discharged by the company more than a month ago for throwing a wrench into a machine. Subsequently he was rehired.

More Steel Workers Out.

Birmingham, Ala., Dec. 23 (AP).—A two day walkout of approximately 250 blast furnace employes of the Tennessee Coal, Iron and Railroad company's big Fairfield plant resulted today in a curtailment of steel manufacturing operations affecting several thousand more workers. The stoppage was attributed to a dispute over incentive pay, details of which were not disclosed.

The plant, largest steel finish unit of the south, continued in partial production.

Weather Report Service Provided for Truckers

A new weather report service for motor truck companies operating out of Chicago was instituted yesterday by the Chicago Association of Commerce. By special arrangement with the United States weather bureau the association is provided with forecasts of all unusual drops in temperature or heavy snow, which are relayed by telephone to the 17 motor carrier companies holding membership in the association.

SAFETY RECORD IN AIR TRANSPORT IS BEST IN HISTORY OF INDUSTRY

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Dec. 23.—The 1943 safety record of domestic commercial air lines will be the best in the history of the industry, Col. Edgar S. Gorrell, president of the Air Transport Association of America, predicted today in a statement based on preliminary operating data.

"The plane miles flown per fatal accident this year exceeds 46½ million, compared with 22,020,572 in 1942," he said.

Only two fatal accidents occurred in 1939, compared with 20 thus far in 1943, but the increased mileage flown per plane accounts for the improved record, the statement said. The average commercial plane flies 1,800 miles daily now compared with 1,100 miles before the war, Gorrell said.

Most Grains Slide as Feed Duty Is Lifted

A pessimistic reaction to the announcement that the President had signed a bill to permit duty free imports of feed grains for 90 days and a department of agriculture report predicting a 16 per cent reduction in the total of sows to farrow next spring resulted in a decline in most grain prices yesterday after an early advance.

Hedging sales developed late in wheat and prices declined about 1 cent a bushel below the early top with the close near the bottom at losses of ½ to ¾ cent. Rye closed ⅛ cent lower. Oats gained ⅛ cent and barley was ⅛ cent lower to ⅛ cent higher.

Large Reserve in Canada.

Altho brokers believed removal of the import duty on grain to be used for feed in this country may not have the effect of increasing supplies to any large extent, it was recalled that Canada has a large reserve of wheat, oats, and barley. If the government can obtain enough freight cars imports could become sufficiently heavy to have a decided effect on the price of domestic grain.

A canvass of elevator interests disclosed little cash corn is available for use in eastern states and the movement from farms has dropped to the extent that industries are being forced to draw on their reserve supply of grain to maintain capacity operations.

Oats Supplies Adequate.

Because of fairly large purchases of cash oats recently, the east and southeast are in a favorable position as far as oats are concerned.

Official and commission house reports indicated a larger movement of wheat and corn in January, as the sale of the grain need not be included in 1943 income taxes.

FORMER UTILITY OFFICIAL SUES FIRM HE SERVED

St. Louis, Mo., Dec. 23 (AP). — Oscar F. Funk, former vice president of the Union Electric company of Missouri, filed suit in Circuit court today seeking $1,200,000 damages from the utility and the North American company, of which it is a subsidiary.

In another suit Funk asked $700,000 damages from North American and two Union Electric officials, William McClellan, board chairman, and John Woodbridge, vice president.

Both petitions asserted that Funk's reputation had been damaged in accounting suits in which Union Electric alleged that he had been a party in what the company contended was unauthorized disbursement of funds for political purposes.

Department Store Sales Off 7 Per Cent in Chicago

Chicago department store sales dropped 7 per cent, and sales in the federal reserve district were off 6 per cent in the week ended Dec. 18, the Federal Reserve Bank of Chicago reported yesterday.

Candy Stores Are Turning Away Buyers

Retail candy stores, many of them open for only three or four hours a day, were besieged yesterday by customers whose demands were met only in part. In general, officials said, supplies available were equal to 50 to 60 per cent of what apparently could be sold at the height of the Christmas selling season.

An executive of one company operating a number of retail outlets supplied by its own candy kitchens said the principal bottleneck was not difficulty in obtaining materials, but lack of skilled labor.

"Jobs Go Begging."

"Ordinarily we would be employing 75 chocolate dippers," he said. "At present we are able to get only 35. Extra help for stores has been difficult or impossible to find. Usually we have about 150 extra packers, many of them high school girls. This year the jobs went begging. Besides the curtailed hours in our stores and restrictions on the amount of candy sold to each customer, we have turned away many mail orders, amounting to around $30,000 in the last 10 days."

Candy chain store hours have been irregular. "We stay open while we have sweets to sell and close up when they are gone," is the policy adopted in some cases where stocks have been sold out daily.

Chocolate Supply Restricted.

The use of chocolate by candy manufacturers has been restricted by government order to 80 per cent of the amount consumed in 1941. During the last two months the sugar ration has been increased from 80 to 90 per cent of the 1941 base, but candy makers said this would again be cut to 80 per cent in January. Scarcity of butter in trade channels is another source of difficulty. Packing boxes have been hard to obtain at times.

Another cause of the shortage of candy for civilian sale is the large amounts which manufacturers have supplied for the army and navy.

WFA HAS DRIED EGG PROGRAM TO STABILIZE PRICE

Washington, D. C., Dec. 23 (AP).—The war food administration announced today it will accept offers from the manufacturers for dried whole eggs for February delivery under a temporary program designed to stabilize sagging producer prices. The dried eggs will be used to meet war requirements.

The WFA said that manufacturers in the midwest, where most of the egg drying plants are located, should be able to pay the producers between 32 and 35 cents a dozen.

Egg futures reversed their downward trend on the Chicago Mercantile exchange yesterday when a contract for February delivery rose one cent from the season's low point to 36 cents a dozen.

AIR LINE PRICES COMMON AT $30 FOR CONVERSION

United Air Lines directors at a meeting yesterday fixed $30 a share for the company's common stock as the price at which the series of new preferred stock to be sold shortly will be convertible during the 10 years ending Jan. 1, 1955.

John W. Newey, vice president, said that the company's registration statement covering the issuance of 105,032 shares of $4.50 dividend cumulative preferred of $100 par is expected to become effective Dec. 29. Thereafter common stockholders will have prior rights to subscribe to this stock during a 10 day period. The unsubscribed portion, if any, will be taken by an underwriting syndicate headed by Harriman Ripley & Co., Inc.

Two Chicago companies, Wilson & Co., packer, and H. M. Harper company, producer of nonferrous and stainless fastenings, announced yesterday they had received additional army-navy citations for continued excellence in war production.

ALL LIVE STOCK SOLD FOR FIRST TIME IN WEEKS

Most Hogs, Steers, Lambs Are Higher.

For the first time since Nov. 29 there was a clearance of all live stock offered in the Chicago yards yesterday. Some urgent orders were unfilled at the close of trading. Farm shipments were cut to the lowest volume for any Thursday since early October.

However, the relief from the market glut is temporary, stock yard interests warned. Marketing soon after the Christmas holiday will rise again well over the volume packers can slaughter, they said. Yesterday's cut in receipts was nationwide.

Twenty leading markets received only 77,000 hogs, compared with 147,000 a week earlier and 94,000 on the same day last year. Arrivals in Chicago, at 12,000, including directs, compared with 28,279 a week earlier.

Prices Much Higher.

All hogs except packing sows and the 230 and 270 pound "government weights" that had been selling at the $13.75 floor sold 25 to 50 cents per hundred pounds higher. Sows and most of the "support" hogs held at unchanged prices. The market for 280 to 300 pound butchers was automatically lifted 25 to 50 cents and more when the WFA order extending the $13.75 support price up to 300 pounds became effective. The average moved up 15 cents to $13.40, highest of the week.

Lively competition for all good steers and yearlings above the $15 line raised the market for these fully 25 cents more. Top loads brought $17, while the bulk ranged from $13.50 to $16.25. Plainer grades were slow and steady.

Lambs sold at strong to 10 cents higher.

EXPECT PIG DECREASE

Pig raising in the United States is on the down grade, the department of agriculture disclosed yesterday. The number of sows expected to farrow next spring is 16 per cent below the record number which farrowed last spring, but the number of pigs farrowed in the fall of 1943 shows 10 per cent gain over 1942 instead of the 26 per cent gain indicated in a federal survey last June.

This trend is not a surprise to the Chicago live stock trade. Last summer a packer survey published in THE TRIBUNE indicated that more than a million sows bred for fall pig raising this year had been butchered, and last week packers predicted one of the sharpest declines on record in pig raising for the spring of 1944.

WOMEN'S WAGE AVERAGE RISES TO $30 WEEKLY

Increasing reliance upon women workers, together with the rising volume of war production, has lifted average weekly wages of women in Illinois manufacturing industries to $30 for the first time on record, Francis B. Murphy, state director of labor, reported yesterday. The average between Oct. 15 and Nov. 15 was $30.82, or 92 cents higher than in the preceding month.

Weekly earnings of men in manufacturing lines averaged $52.23, or 48 cents higher than in the preceding period, when for all industrial lines, including nonmanufacturing, the average rose above $50 for the first time. Combined average weekly earnings of both men and women in manufacturing in the Oct. 15-Nov. 15 period were $46.53, and in all reporting industries $43.65, the latter figure comparing with $43.60 the month before.

La Salle Street Is Happier as It Aids Its Fighting Men

The Christmas season was observed in La Salle street yesterday with a little more warmth than in the two preceding war time Christmases. Most of the banks, investment and brokerage houses, and other financial organizations were reported to have done a good job of "taking care of their boys in the war"—a holiday duty that is getting first place in the district.

Altho the boisterousness usually associated with Christmas in La Salle street was lacking, there were many small private parties at which competitors forgot business to share holiday refreshments.

Several of the banks had unusually attractive Christmas decorations. Continental Illinois National Bank and Trust company had Christmas trees, evergreen streamers, and flowers on its first banking floor. Today 60 page girls will sing Christmas carols from the balcony.

In the cathedral like banking quarters of the City National Bank and Trust company, a male chorus sang Christmas carols and there was organ music.

One of the most beautiful trees in the loop is in the Harris Trust and Savings bank. Girls and men's glee clubs will sing carols there today after banking hours and Mark Brown, a vice president, will follow his Christmas tradition of passing out shiny red apples to his fellow workers.

American National Bank and Trust company gave a Christmas party for its girls Tuesday night—dinner in the Hotel Sherman, then to the play, "Oklahoma." The men will hold a Christmas dinner in the bank tomorrow.

First National bank is having a quiet Christmas. It sent remembrances to its soldiers thruout the world.

Bonuses Passed Out.

Numerous bonuses were passed out by brokerage houses, but some difficulty was met in conforming with treasury department regulations. One brokerage house gave to some of its executives a share of stock of the American Distilling company which expects to pay a dividend in whisky. It's up to the individuals to untangle the red tape which surrounds distribution of the whisky.

The Chicago Stock exchange, whose members experienced a fairly prosperous year, had a Christmas reception with beer and sandwiches Wednesday. At the Board of Trade usual holiday festivities were lacking; many of those engaged in speculative trading had an unfavorable year.

Markets Will Close.

Banks and stock and commodity exchanges will be closed all day Christmas. The Board of Trade will operate today under its regular Saturday trading hours—9:30 a. m. to 12 o'clock noon. The Winnipeg grain exchange will close at noon today and remain closed until Tuesday morning.

Chicago Gets 'Bad Break' in Bonus Rulings

Brokerage firms with offices both in Chicago and New York yesterday found themselves in the unusual position of having official authority to pay Christmas or year-end bonuses to employes under a more liberal interpretation in the eastern city than here. It was considered possible that under the diverse rulings the same firms may be able to pay bonuses in New York but not in Chicago.

The Chicago regional wage stabilization board has ruled that no bonuses may be paid unless a similar distribution was made in 1942, one of the least profitable years in the stock and grain commission business in half a century.

Some Exceptions Permitted.

A spokesman for the Chicago regional office said that the Chicago ruling was complicated, but that its general effect was to restrict the payment of 1943 bonuses to conform with similar action last year. Exceptions may be allowed under some conditions, he said.

In New York, however, the war labor board announced Wednesday that brokers could pay bonuses of not more than 10 per cent of salaries if similar payments were made in 1936, 1941, or 1942.

Difference in Interpretation.

The rulings are based on the same regulation and the difference is described as a matter of interpretation. However, the New York ruling was regarded as giving the employers more latitude because of the more favorable operating results of 1936 and 1941, compared with 1942.

It is understood that approximately 25 Chicago brokerage houses have applied for permission to pay bonuses.

November Liquor Imports Pass 5 Million Gallons

Washington, D. C., Dec. 23 (AP).—Liquor imports, reflected by November sales of internal revenue stamps, exceeded five million gallons for the second consecutive month.

People and Events

Holden K. Farrar will become a partner in Smith, Barney & Co. on Jan. 1, it was announced yesterday. He will be in charge of the company's midwestern business in the Chicago office, where he has been resident manager.

Holden K. Farrar.

John H. Collier, president of Crane company, was elected director of the National Association of Manufacturers.

Carroll Chouinard has been named director of public relations for Marshall Field & Co. He formerly held a similar position with the University of Nebraska and was associated with Swift & Co.

James E. Weber, for the last five years advertising manager of Armour & Co., will become a member of the executive staff of Leo Burnett Company, Inc., Jan. 1.

Brig. Gen. Albert J. Browning, director of purchases for the army service forces in Washington, D. C., will discuss the war and post-war value of incentive provisions for war contracts in addressing the luncheon meeting of the Chicago Association of Commerce in the Palmer House next Monday.

4 DAY COLD SNAP CUTS VEGETABLE CROP IN FLORIDA

Jacksonville, Fla., Dec. 23 (AP).—A four day cold wave in Florida this week cost the nation's consumers 5,000 carloads of fresh vegetables and growers 5 million dollars, the state marketing bureau reported today.

"It is estimated that 3,800 carloads of fresh vegetables were killed outright and another 1,200 carloads lost in reduced yields, stripping and culling," said Frank H. Scruggs, the bureau's marketing news specialist. "The effects of the severe cold will exist for 45 to 90 days."

The cold wave was at its peak Dec. 19 to 22.

DRIVE RENEWED FOR CHANGES IN TERMINATIONS

Legislation to Push Conversion Urged.

The Chicago Association of Commerce yesterday renewed its drive for congressional action on changes in war contract termination procedure which it said were necessary for the protection of contractors and the government.

Leverett S. Lyon, chief executive officer of the association, said legislation facilitating the settlement of canceled war contracts was necessary to hasten the conversion of affected industries to new war work or to civilian production.

Warns of Audit Delays.

The group reiterated its opposition to the proposal by the controller general that all canceled contract claims should be audited by the general accounting office, contending detailed auditing would delay the settlement of individual claims for several years.

The program was presented to members of the house and senate military affairs committees. Association members, thousands of whom hold war contracts, were urged to express their views individually to congress. Proposals to limit the scope of renegotiation were written into the pending tax bill.

Uniform settlement procedure was urged, the association contending the lack of uniformity would hamper contractors who cannot determine costs and prepare claims unless they are familiar with the requirements of each procurement agency with which they deal.

Asks Removal of Liability.

Except for fraud, government and company officers should be freed of the present personal liability for settlements made by them, the association said. Fair standards should be established for the protection of both the government and the contractor in settlements that cannot be arrived at thru negotiation, it argued.

The association urged some form of immediate payment or loan arrangement on canceled contracts, and said that provision should be made for the immediate liquidation of materials and machinery involved in canceled contracts.

REPORT PLANS FOR 600 MILLION FOOD SUBSIDY

Washington, D. C., Dec. 23 [Special].—Without waiting for congress to pass on the subsidy issue, the war food administration plans soon to announce support price programs on 1944 food production which will probably involve subsidies of more than 600 million dollars if existing price ceilings are maintained, it was learned today.

Marvin H. Jones, WFA administrator, tried to persuade congress to act on subsidies and the continuation of the Commodity Credit corporation before recess for the holidays. When congress went home, however, the administration promised not to start any subsidy programs during the recess.

Officials said today that the proposed announcement did not violate the pledge. The support price program for 1944 represents an extension of existing subsidy programs, it was said.

CASTOR OIL

Mussolini fed castor oil to those who didn't agree with him.

It is now proved that he needed it more than they did.

And Washington is over-run with people of the same kind.

People prescribing for others but unable to heal themselves.

Sick people compounding and expounding remedies for the well!

People who are prepared to sacrifice the American way of doing things for the revisionary Utopias of visionary minds!

STOCK MARKET IS UNEVEN IN QUIET TRADING

Aircrafts, Specialties, Rails Strong.

New York, Dec. 23 (AP).—Strength in assorted aircrafts, rails, and specialties was offset by weakness of liquor shares in today's stock market. Narrow price changes ruled from the start altho there were scattered gains of a point or so. Dealings were relatively sluggish thruout.

Commitments were trimmed for the Christmas holiday. Wage controversies in the rail and steel industries were a buying deterrent, but carrier securities stiffened near the close on the belief a settlement of pay demands may be near. Armament-related issues revived along with talk of a longer war. Confusion over the collection of whisky dividends stalled the alcohol section.

Index Is Higher.

The Associated Press 60-stock average was up 0.1 of a point at 49.5. Of 780 issues traded, 282 were up, 270 down and 228 unchanged. Volume was the second smallest for a full session since Dec. 3 at 580,480 shares.

Hercules Motors and Omnibus corporation made new 1943 tops and modest improvement was retained by Boeing, Curtiss-Wright "A," United Aircraft, Sperry, Dow Chemical, Allied Chemical, General Motors, Santa Fe, New York Central, Southern Railway, Anaconda and Texas company.

American Distilling was down 10¾ points at one time but this was reduced to a net loss of 5¼ when it was reported wholesalers, for a fee, would handle liquor disbursements for shareholders.

SELECTED BONDS RISE.

New York, Dec. 23 (AP).—The bond market was selectively higher today as traders picked out favorites among rails and industrials. The New Haven collateral 6s added 6¾ points to yesterday's gain of more than 8. Other bonds of the road, firm in the preceding session on court confirmation of a plan for reorganization, cooled off, however, and ended with only fractional improvement.

Best performers in other departments included some of the sugar and coal company bonds, both responsive to seasonal and other favorable developments.

CHICAGO LIST UNEVEN.

Altho declines outnumbered advances on the Chicago Stock exchange yesterday, special issues showed strength. Middle West corporation, on a turnover of 5,250 shares, rose to a new high for the year, gaining a half point net. Directors have under consideration the question of distributing proceeds of the sale of assets as a capital dividend. Other issues selling at new 1943 peaks were Midland United A preferred, Northwest Bancorporation, Studebaker, and Omnibus corporation.

FEDERAL JUDGE UPHOLDS OPA ON EXPORT CEILINGS

New York, Dec. 23 (AP).—Federal Judge Edward A. Conger today upheld the authority of the OPA to fix ceiling prices on goods sold for export. It is just as important to control the ceiling price of goods sold here to be exported as it is to control the ceiling price of domestic sales," the court said. "It does not require much imagination to picture the distastrous effect of an unlimited ceiling for goods sold to be exported with a regulated ceiling in domestic sales."

Judge Conger's decision was made in an action in which the OPA asked that A. John Bittson, owner of the A. John Bittson Engineering company, a world distributors corporation of New York, be enjoined from violating the regulations in the sale of iron and steel shipped to Portugal and Iran.

OPEN NEW PLANT FOR HIGH OCTANE GAS COMPONENT

A new alkylation plant at Nederland, Tex., was set in operation this month, Henry M. Dawes, president of Pure Oil company, announced yesterday. The plant, built for the Defense Plant corporation, produces a high octane component which blends to make several times its quantity in 100 octane aviation gasoline.

Dawes said the company's output of high octane aviation gasoline would be increased also by the completion soon of a thermofor catalytic cracking unit. This unit, adjacent to the company's gulf coast refinery, also will supply butylenes to the Neches-Butane Products company, largest butadiene plant in the synthetic rubber program.

Preferred Stock Issue Filed by Paper Company

Philadelphia, Pa., Dec. 23 (AP).—The West Virginia Pulp and Paper company, New York, today registered with the securities and exchange commission 155,830 shares of cumulative preferred stock, 4½ per cent series, par value $100. Holders of outstanding preferred stock will be given until Jan. 14 to exchange their stock, share for share, for the series registered today.

Curtiss-Wright's Bonus Checks Total 3.6 Million

New York, Dec. 23 (AP).—The Curtiss-Wright corporation announced today it was giving about $3,600,000 in Christmas checks to employes this year. Checks also are being sent to workers who have left the organization since Jan. 1, 1943, to enter the army and navy.

DRAFT DIVORCED FROM WMC; SEE SOP FOR M'NUTT

F. D. R. Tells Hershey to Get Board's Advice.

BY LLOYD NORMAN.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Dec. 23.—President Roosevelt tonight separated the selective service system from the war man power commission as required by the fathers' draft law but ordered Brig. Gen. Lewis B. Hershey, draft director, to consult with Paul V. McNutt, WMC chairman. The order directing Hershey to confer with McNutt was interpreted in congressional circles as a sop to McNutt who was reported chagrined by the decision of congress that he be shorn of all authority over selective service.

Gen. Hershey.

The President's directive to Hershey to seek McNutt's advice probably will be examined by congress when it reconvenes after the holidays to determine if the order complies with the revised draft law.

McNutt Blamed for Mess.

When the so-called fathers' draft bill was being debated on Capitol hill, many congressmen interpreted its provisions as stripping McNutt of all power over the draft. The selective service system has been under McNutt's authority since Dec. 5, 1942, when the President transferred the system to the WMC.

During heated debates McNutt was blamed for widespread confusion over the drafting of fathers, resulting from conflicting statements from WMC and selective service headquarters. When the bill was finally passed, it not only scrapped McNutt's "work or fight" order drafting men in nonessential jobs, but prohibited the President from delegating conscription powers to any one except the selective service director.

The President's action tonight was taken in two executive orders. One revoked the transfer of selective service to the WMC and established it as a separate agency with authority to administer the draft laws. The other order gave Hershey, as selective service director, a seat on the WMC.

Keeps Finger in Pie.

Asked about the significance of the executive orders, McNutt said, "I think it means we shall go along as we have been." He had participated in the formulation of the orders which have been in preparation for several days. He is expected to retain the WMC chairmanship, altho it had been reported earlier that he would resign because congress stripped him of his authority over the draft.

In his directive to Hershey, President Roosevelt ordered him to consult McNutt on all draft matters which would affect the "effective utilization and mobilization of the nation's man power" and the administration of the WMC policies and programs.

WMC Wants Job Control.

Washington, D. C., Dec. 23 (AP).—Paul V. McNutt, who wants his war man power commission to have the job of guiding and protecting millions of returning service men, ruled today that those coming home while the war is still on need not take jobs in war plants, but may take other jobs if they think they will give them a feeling of more permanency.

This fits into the vast program of demobilizing veterans, but leaves unsettled the question of what agency will coördinate the overall task—getting them jobs, restoring their health, educating them, putting a little money in their pockets.

President Roosevelt hasn't spoken on this question, and congress may have something to say. One move in congress is to consolidate all veterans' affairs under Brig. Gen. Frank T. Hines, head of the veterans' administration. Also in the picture is the selective service system.

McNutt Stakes Claim.

McNutt staked a claim to the job this week when he announced expansion of the veterans' employment division of the United States employment service, and a plan to tie together the veterans' activities of government agencies.

Notwithstanding McNutt's plans, Sen. Alexander Wiley [R., Wis.] has introduced a bill to consolidate matters relating to veterans, including getting them jobs, under the veterans' administration.

As for selective service, congress in the draft law ordered the director to set up a division "with adequate facilities to render aid" in placing veterans in their former jobs, if they want them. The law also directs the division to help in "securing positions" — not just their old positions. This division announced a program of its own last September.

SUMMIT LOSES 2 FIRE ENGINES IN $37,000 BLAZE

After levying a special tax and struggling with priorities, the village of Summit purchased a brand new fire engine for $15,000, which was dedicated last July 4. With the engine it already had, that made two.

Both engines were housed in the two story frame village hall, ground for which was donated by Long John Wentworth, early mayor of Chicago. The volunteer fire department had its clubrooms upstairs, and the village was ready for any emergency.

So what happened? The village hall caught fire yesterday afternoon from a gas heater and the flames destroyed the hall, both fire engines, and a house next door belonging to Harry Hellmuth, with a total estimated loss of $37,000.

FINDS TEEN-AGE GIRLS SHUN LAKE COUNTY TAVERNS

Harry A. Hall, Lake county state's attorney, after two nights of personal investigation in night clubs, restaurants and taverns in the Waukegan-North Chicago area, said yesterday he had found no under age girls in any of places visited.

"However, quite a few girls 20 to 22 years old, dressed like school girls, were in the place," he said.

Hall announced that all law enforcement agencies, including Waukegan and North Chicago police and the sheriff's office, will coöperate in a campaign to curb delinquency. Under age girls found in taverns, he said, will be taken into custody and turned over to their parents. If they are found again, he said, they will be taken into juvenile court.
